MEXICO'S ANSWER TO BE MADE TODAY; REFUSAL INDICATED

Long Dispatch on Jenkins Case Received by Embassy to be Presented Here.

NEW CHARGES FORMULATED

PROCEEDINGS ARE SECRET

Jenkins's Offer of Bail Refused—Mexico City Taking the Case Out of Governor's Hands.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—The answer of the Mexican Government to the sharp note demanding the immediate release of William O. Jenkins, American Consular Agent at Puebla, probably will be delivered to the State Department tomorrow.

A long despatch bearing on the Jenkins case, it was learned tonight, has been received at the Mexican Embassy and was being decoded today for presentation to the Government.

While authoritative information as to the attitude of the Mexican Government was lacking, all indications here pointed to a technical refusal to order the release of Jenkins. Since his arrest, it was learned, additional charges against the American official have been formulated, based upon alleged evidence that he actively assisted persons in rebelling against the Carranza Government. Payment of a large sum of money to the rebels, which was used by them to purchase munitions, and acting in collusion with rebel leaders, are said to be specific counts in the new indictments.

What was regarded as a hint of Mexico's position in the Jenkins case was noted in an article published by the Mexican newspaper Excelsior, a copy of which reached Washington today. The paper stated specifically that Jenkins's second arrest was based upon charges that he actively assisted the rebels.

"The certain sum of money" which Jenkins is accused of delivering to the rebels consisted of the 300,000 pesos he was compelled to pay as ransom to Federico Cordova, the rebel, whose forces kidnapped him. The collusion charged is based on the fact that Jenkins agreed to pay the rebel leader the ransom in order to save his life and gain his liberty.

Contrary to custom in Mexican courts the proceedings in the Jenkins case on the occasion of his second arrest were marked with the utmost secrecy. Jenkins was summoned to court, where he was placed under arrest. His plea for bail was refused by Judge Gonzales Franco on account of the "gravity of the offense," and in every particular the proceedings were secret and court attachés were warned that they would be dismissed and otherwise punished if any facts relating to the case reached the public.

Officials here regard the nature of the new charges against Jenkins as an effort on the part of the Mexican Government to take the case out of the hands of the Puebla State authorities, as both charges are of crimes against the Federal Government.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—While officials profess to have no line on the attitude President Carranza will assume in his note on the Jenkins case, there was an intimation in an unofficial but very reliable quarter tonight that Carranza may not comply with the demand for immediate release of Jenkins, but the burden of his note may be a recital of the "facts," as viewed by Mexican officials, on which the charges against Consular Agent Jenkins are based, and a statement that the Mexican authorities will try Jenkins in due course in the Mexican courts.

Should this prove to be the tenor of the Carranza reply it is not believed that it will be satisfactory to the American Government. It is understood to be the intention of the Administration not to engaged in further or prolonged negotiations with the Carranza Government over the imprisonment of a trusted official of the American Government, or to submit to argument or temporizing on the part of the Mexican Government.

ANGELES EXECUTION DENIED

Travelers Report Court-Martial Was to Take Place Last Night.

EL PASO, Nov. 23.—General Filipe Angeles, who was captured recently by Carranza troops, has not been executed, according to travelers who arrived here today.

These informants, who left Chihuahua City, Mexico, this morning, asserted that the General was to be tried by court-martial in that city tonight.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Private advices received here direct from Mexico City late today indicated that General Felipe Angeles had not been executed, as reported last night from San Antonio, and that powerful efforts were being made to save his life.

The published statement, that Angeles had been put to death without trial by court-martial, the advices said, were known in the Mexican capital to be untrue.

Mexican Pastoral Letter Warns Against Radicalism

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 22.—Catholics throughout Mexico were warned today against the danger of radicalism as represented by "Socialism and Communism," in collective pastoral letters signed by eight Archbishops and twenty Bishops. These letters will be read in all Catholic churches on Sunday.

Details leading to the present social upheaval are recited in the letters, which assert that "no doubt labor has grievances against capital, but radicalism, with its seductive promises and imaginary happiness, does not provide for the solution of difficulties."

A plea for harmony between employers and workers is made, and priests are instructed to direct their parishioners "to give all prudence to the discussion of affairs." The letters were not prompted by conditions pertaining especially to Mexico, as this country has been comparatively free from labor troubles assuming demonstrative proportions.

ANARCHISTS FLOCK HERE FROM MEXICO

STRICTER LAWS NEEDED

Chairman Johnson of Immigration Committee Talks on Weakness of Deportation System.

America's difficulties with foreign-born anarchists and other classes of radicals will be enormously increased if the laws governing immigration and deportation are not made far more effective, according to Chairman Albert Johnson of the Committee on Immigration of the House of Representatives, members of which are here studying the operation of immigration laws in detail.

Mr. Johnson said an enormous increase in immigration was probable in a few months, and that the newcomers would probably have a much larger proportion of radicals than had come in previous years. The difficulty was not only in handling the men who arrived at American ports, but he said the committee had information that aliens were being smuggled across the Mexican border at the rate of 100 a day, a large part of them being Russian Reds who had reached Mexico in Japanese vessels.

Various charges of absenteeism and sympathetic indulgence of radicals which have been made against ex-Immigration Commissioner Frederic C. Howe in Congress will probably be inquired into at the hearing of the committee on Ellis Island today, but Chairman Johnson denied that it was the purpose of the inquiry to give much attention to the conduct of Mr. Howe or any of the present officials.

Criticises Immigration Law.

"It is difficult to say," said Mr. Johnson, "how far the trouble in handling dangerous aliens has been due to officials, or how far it has been due to the law. For instance, we found, in watching the inspectors at work on the Adriatic today, that they were not complying with the law, because the time, men, and machinery for carrying out the letter of the law were not available. Immigrants were examined by one inspector, when the law calls for examination by two. In five minutes each man was put through a questionnaire, which it would require an hour to make out properly. And the work was easy, because it was a British vessel and most of the immigrants could talk English.

"It is apparent that one reason why vicious, half-crazed foreigners are able to get into this country is that they slip by an organization which is not physically capable of doing the work assigned to it. That is a matter for legislation.

"Whether there has been some laxity in the past is not of so much importance as to make sure that we safeguard ourselves properly against the increasing dangers which we face from future immigration. I am inclined to think that the radicals of the world will seek to come here for two reasons—the opportunities which the country provides for individuals and the fertile field which seems to exist here for the spread of their propaganda.

"One subject under consideration is that of providing machinery in consular offices in Europe for examining and barring undesirable persons from setting sail toward this country. That might have to be handled by treaties with other nations, but such a system would have to be carefully supervised because of the danger of creating worse abuses than now exist here.

Favors Stricter Regulations.

"I don't think that there is any doubt that we should have stricter laws requiring the deportation of aliens who get into this country and then attack its institutions. The Department of Labor refuses to deport foreigners at present on the mere proof that they are members of the I. W. W. Personally, I believe that alien members of the I. W. W. can be deported under the present laws. In joining it they subscribe to doctrines which bar them from ever taking the oath of allegiance to this country and consequently, in my opinion, the present law calls for their deportation. That applies also to those who belong to the Communist Party."

Mr. Johnson said that Tokio, Yokohama and Vladivostok were full of Reds at present who were scheming to get into this country. When the blockade of Russia is lifted and ocean-borne commerce generally restored, he said that

RIGA, Nov. 22.—In the arrogance of their victorious advance through Belgium and France, and in the ignominy of their retreat before the little army of peasant patriots in Lettland, the Germans showed the same bestial cruelty, the same wanton destructiveness.

While British officers in Cologne are greeted with obsequious servility, and American business men in Hamburg with oily flattery, directed to the re-establishment of trade relations, the Germans of Von der Goltz's army have treated the Lettish population exactly as their predecessors treated the Belgians.

In the old town of Mitau there were two artistic treasures which compared favorably with anything in Russia—a magnificent seventeenth century castle built by Rastrelli, architect of the Winter Palace in Petrograd and the College Library, which dates from the reign of Catherine the Great. The former was full of valuable paintings, carved ceilings, and sculptured fireplaces. The latter contained priceless editions from the earliest German presses. The Germans fired both on Wednesday as the prelude to their evacuation—not to cover looting, for the inhabitants say they removed little or nothing of the contents of either building, but in sheer rage for destruction.

I visited also today some farms where the soldiery committed excesses against the civilians. Horsemen of the Third Squadron of the German Iron Division had looted, then fired, a farm at Kleinhof, on the outskirts of Mitau. When the people climbed onto the roof to attempt to extinguish the flames they were driven down by bullets whistling around their ears.

With careful vindictiveness all the fire engines in Mitau had been smashed to prevent extinguishing the fires at the Library or Castle, which were still blazing furiously as I passed.

Atrocities on Rural Population.

At Semels farm, a little further westward, the whole crop of wheat, oats, barley and hay which the enemy were unable to take away had been wantonly fired and the livestock driven off.

At Wilkabuda farm in the hamlet of Malhof, four miles from Mitau, soldiers of the Baden Battery had shot the farmer, Juris Bullits, because he protested against the plunder of his property. This action was performed with particular brutality. The Germans shut Bullits's wife, children and servants in the house and then blew his brains out on the grass plot opposite before their eyes. This was Wednesday evening.

Two hours before a yet more sinister crime was committed in a field a stone's throw away. Four farm laborers had been arrested shortly before and sent to Mitau on a charge of concealing the hiding place of stores. An officer there decided that there was no evidence of this and sent them back with papers justifying their release.

As a thinly-clad woman standing barefooted in the snow told the story the officer at Malhof flew into a towering passion when the men reappeared. Vainly they showed the papers. He tore them to pieces and flung them on the ground. Then he screamed an order to three of his men. They led the unhappy peasants, one of whom was half witted, to a field by the roadside and bade them run. Then they indulged in revolver practice. The wretched half wit stood dazed without attempting to escape and his puny little body lies huddled almost at the roadside. Another had covered perhaps ten yards before heavy bullets literally blew the top of his head off. Even the drifting snow cannot hide that gruesome sight. The remaining couple were more fortunate. Both escaped to a nearby forest, one with a bullet in his shoulder.

The face of the Lettish officer accompanying me was very dark as he translated the story. Here was another whose men would take no prisoners.

Meanwhile the German rout continues. This evening the enemy were reported twenty kilometers southwest of Mitau, with the Letts still pressing them hard. From Lithuania, too, comes good news. On peremptory orders General Niessel, the German commander, and his staff, numbering sixty-five, have left Kovno for their own frontier. At the present rate of progress it will not be long before not a single German will be left in Letvia or Lithuania.

New Outbreaks Reported Against the Armenians

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Fresh outbreaks by Turkish brigands against the Armenian population in Cilicia and elsewhere in Asia Minor were reported in advices today to Miran Sevasly, representative of the Armenian national delegation. Until recently cases of murder and vandalism were isolated, the report said, and the latest outrages were declared to be more vicious than those heretofore.

The brigands, heavily armed and aided by the Young Turk organization, according to Sevasly's information, plundered six villages in one day, drove away all the oxen and killed many Armenians. They went to other places, killing and robbing.

RELY ON CABINET FOR COAL SOLUTION

Garfield, Palmer, and Hines to Confer Today and Present Report.

EXPECT DECISION TUESDAY

Operators Intimate They Might Accept Secretary Wilson's Offer of Increase.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—The real test to determine whether there will be a peaceful settlement of the coal strike probably will come tomorrow or Tuesday, when the Government, as represented by Fuel Administrator Garfield and Attorney General Palmer, will make its reply to the request of the operators for instructions.

There were few developments today giving any intimation as to the outcome. T. T. Brewster, Chairman of the operators' Executive Committee of the Central Competitive District, said the operators could do nothing further until they knew what course the Government wanted them to follow. He intimated that if the Government instructed them to accept the proposal made by Secretary of Labor Wilson such a course might be followed.

But Mr. Brewster made it plain that they would insist on the Government accepting responsibility for any increase in living costs which might follow.

Fuel Administrator Garfield said he would have no statement to make until he had conferred again tomorrow with Attorney General Palmer and Director General Hines. Mr. Garfield then will report on the Wilson proposal, and there will be an exchange of views.

The prediction is made that the conference will not immediately sanction the Wilson proposal and that any settlement approved by Dr. Garfield, as spokesman, will call on the miners and operators to share part of the burden. This may mean that the miners will be asked to accept increases somewhat below the figure of 31.61 per cent. suggested by Secretary Wilson, and that the operators will be told that they cannot increase coal prices at the mine to a point where the full increased cost of production will be covered.

John L. Lewis, Acting President of the United Mine Workers of America, said today that the miners would stand firm and would not accept increases below those suggested by Secretary Wilson. He also said that a seven-hour day at the face of the coal was a principle upon which the miners would insist. There were some who felt, however, that such a statement was not final, and that under pressure from the Government the miners might make additional concessions.

Cabinet May Make Decision.

It was reported here today that the suggestion of Secretary Wilson came as a surprise to other branches of the Government and that it had not received the approval of Attorney General Palmer or Fuel Administrator Garfield. There is some disposition to believe that the increase to the miners suggested by Secretary Wilson will be disputed by other Government officials.

12,000 PICKED MEN OF SERBIAN ARMY HOLD SPALATO

MILLO CENSURED BY ITALY

WARNS NATION OF DANGER

Takes Steps to Deal with All Attempts to Disturb Country's Internal Peace.

VENICE, Nov. 22.—A Serbian division, 12,000 strong, and composed of picked men, has been concentrated at Spalato, on the Dalmatian coast, ready to oppose Gabriele d'Annunzio if he approaches that city, according to information reaching Rear Admiral Andrews, commander of the American forces in the Adriatic, on board the armored cruiser Pittsburgh.

The American commander is in wireless communication with the entire Dalmatian coast and is able to receive an answer to a message to any point within five minutes. Since the Zara expedition of d'Annunzio's no incident has ococcurred at any place on the coast, according to the reports, tranquillity prevailing everywhere.

ROME, Nov. 22.—The course pursued by Rear Admiral Enrico Millo, commander of the Dalmatian occupation forces, in joining Captain Gabriele d'Annunzio in his enterprise against Zara, is condemned in a semi-official statement issued today.

Rear Admiral Millo boarded Captain d'Annunzio's destroyer on the morning of Nov. 15, it is said, and when d'Annunzio left the city the ships of his squadron hoisted the Dalmatian flag. Rear Admiral Millo put a vessel at the disposal of a committee, which, with the Mayor of Zara, proceeded to Fiume.

"This action is the more deplorable as many soldiers and officers were led to believe that the Government agreed to the affair," says the statement. "Evidence is not lacking that other expeditions are being prepared against Sebenico, Spalato, and other Dalmatian towns.

"The Government disapproves of the action of Rear Admiral Millo, which was entirely of a political nature and exceeded his authority. He will remain at his post pending decision by the Government, which will do its utmost to prevent other contemplated expeditions by warning the country of the danger of such proceedings.

"Recent searches at Ancona, Turin, and Milan show that some exalted personages are endeavoring to profit by the situation in Fiume and secure territorial advantages. The Government is adopting all necessary measures, and regards as criminal all attempts to disturb the country's internal peace."

D'ANNUNZIO AT "HOLY ZARA."

Dramatic Scenes When the Poet Took Possession of the Port.

ROME, Nov. 22 (Associated Press.)—Now that publication of details of Gabriele d'Annunzio's recent exploit on the Dalmatian Coast is being permitted after the lapse of nearly a week, some graphic accounts of the progress of the insurgent poet's adventure are coming to light. One narrative by an eyewitness who accompanied d'Annunzio on the expedition to Zara describes the scene on his arrival there.

"At the sight of d'Annunzio," he says, "the crowd seethed with excitement. Women cried incoherent words of welcome. Old people wept unrestrainedly. Nothing was heard but cries of joy; nothing was seen but waving hands, hats and tri-colored handkerchiefs.

"D'Annunzio appeared absolutely transfigured. His followers were obliged to struggle to protect him from the population, who otherwise would have suf-

False Telephone Report of President's Death Breaks Up Marshall Address in Atlanta

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 23.—A false report that President Wilson had died at Washington brought an address by Vice President Marshall to an abrupt end at the auditorium here tonight.

The Vice President was in the midst of his speech, which was being made under the auspices of the Order of Moose of Atlanta. He was delivering a eulogy on Washington and Lincoln and had just finished saying that there were many men walking around in Atlanta and other cities, apparently in the best of health and enjoying life, who really were dead, but that in the case of the two great statesmen mentioned they were really and truly living today; that their influence was still being felt.

A short time before, some man as yet unidentified called the auditorium by telephone and asked to speak to the Vice President. He was told by the engineer that Mr. Marshall was in the midst of his address and could not go to the telephone.

"Well, I guess he'll come now," said the hoaxer. "President Wilson has just died in Washington and Mr. Marshall is wanted at once on the long distance."

The engineer carried the message to Charles J. Haden, a prominent Atlanta man, who stepped to the side of the Vice President and told him that President Wilson was dead.

The Vice President stopped speaking and bowed his head, an action which was followed by all who heard the report. Then Mr. Marshall said:

"I cannot bear the great burdens of our beloved chieftain unless I receive the assistance of everybody in this country."

By this time the report had spread throughout the auditorium. Men sat with heads bowed; many women were crying openly, and the organist began playing "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

Then Mr. Marshall went to the phone and called up The Associated Press only to learn that the report was untrue. Afterward he put in a call for Washington, but was unable to get a connection.

The meeting was ended and the great audience left the auditorium.

Every effort will be made by the police and civic authorities to find the man responsible for the hoax. Governor Dorsey has offered a reward of $100 for evidence identifying the person.

PARTY ASSOCIATES OPPOSED TO LODGE ON MAKING THE TREATY A 1920 ISSUE; FRENCH DEPUTIES NOW WANT REVISION

Argues for Revision of Treaty in Three Years; Garvin Counts on America's Participation Then

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—While refusing to believe the United States will refuse to ratify the Peace Treaty and expressing a firm belief that Washington will arrive at a compromise in a few weeks, J. L. Garvin argues in The Observer that if America does after all withdraw another conference in Paris will inevitably follow, in which she must participate. He says:

"It is quite needless and premature to talk of going on with the League without America. The Western Allies could not decide on separate action for their own security and that of all the late Allies without consultation with the American Government before receiving its reply. There would have to be a grave and frank discussion, invitations would no doubt be issued for a special conference in Paris, and America would necessarily be included."

Mr. Garvin then argues that the peace of the world cannot be established until the work of the Paris Conference has been revised by "a new and far wider supreme congress, including all the late belligerents without exception and as many neutrals as can be persuaded to join." This congress, he suggests, might be fixed for three years from now, and he continues:

"This, we think, would suit the views of both the American parties. The League of Nations would be kept in being in the interval. It is scarcely thinkable that the United States would decline to give any safeguard whatever for the peace of the world or could refuse its pledge to join in acting against any aggressor who might attempt to disturb the general peace pending a revision of the entire settlement by another supreme congress three or five years hence. In any case then there will have to be a new conference in Paris with America participating, and this time we hope that all America will be represented in the delegation, including the authoritative spokesmen of both her parties."

FRENCH ALSO WANT TO ALTER TREATY

SEEK BETTER PROTECTION

German Break in Protocol Parleys Seen as Attempt to Wreck Treaty.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 23.—A semi-official canvass of the members of the new Chamber of Deputies shows that a large majority is in favor of seeking a change in the terms of the Versailles Treaty in case the American Senate does not ratify it. The leaders of this movement would demand an exchange of views among the Allies as to insuring the disarmament of Germany and giving France greater military protection. It is their idea that steps in this direction can be taken after the treaty goes into effect.

This agitation may or may not be expected to have its effect upon the Berlin Government, which has brought about a strained situation by its sudden withdrawal of the commission sent to Paris to sign the protocol to the Peace Treaty. This move promises to upset the Allies' plan of putting the treaty into effect Dec. 1, inasmuch as the protocol was to have been signed before the deposit of ratifications.

The Temps tonight demands a statement from Germany as to what game she now seeks to play in delaying signing the protocol and the consequent putting of the treaty into effect. It says:

"Germany has just made a theatrical move. We demand an explanation. For five months Germany has been insisting that the Versailles treaty go into effect. The first of November the Allies communicated to her the final protocol, which they invited her to sign. The 18th of November the German mission arrived in Paris to conclude the last arrangements. On the 20th the Allies decided that the treaty should come into effect the 1st of December. On the 22d the German mission quits Paris without having signed anything, and without indicating the date of its return. At the moment when it is about to get what it has been clamoring for, the German Government robs itself. Why?"

After saying that the German delegates said they were going to put the protocol before the Government, and after explaining that it had been before the Berlin authorities for three weeks, Le Temps says:

"The thoughts expressed by the German plenipotentiaries are not enough to explain their action. That is why we have a right to look for their other thoughts. May it not be that there are in the German Government, or near it, men who wish to put the peace in question under the pretext that the American Senate has not ratified the Treaty of Versailles? May there not be behind the German Government influences, military and reactionary, which wish to prevent at all costs the enforcement of the treaty in order to prevent the disarmament of Germany and the consolidation of the Democratic regime? It is for the German Government to speak."

TREATY DELAY HAS GERMAN APPROVAL

Professor Schuecking Looks on Rejection by Senate as "Tremendous Moral Victory."

REVENTLOW SEEKS OUR AID

Another German Paper Sees Only Selfish Interests Behind Treaty Action Here.

BERLIN, Nov. 23.—Rejection by the United States of the treaty of Versailles would be a "tremendous moral victory for the cause of universal peace," in the opinion of Herr Schücking, German pacifist leader and a member of the German peace delegation. Speaking to The Associated Press, Herr Schücking expressed the belief that delay in ratification would "give Americans a further opportunity to study the document," adding that he "trusted they would avail themselves of it."

"The treaty in its present form," he continued, "demands revision, not only on the ground of its general infeasibility, but because of the structure of the covenant of the League of Nations. Plainly its rejection by the United States would be dictated only by the interests of America. While I would regret the absence of American representatives from the Commission on Reparation and the lack of American influence on deliberations, I believe the moral victory accomplished by the rejection of the treaty would be almost preferable, both for the benefit of mankind and the restoration of peace.

"The longer the Senate debates the treaty the better chance Americans will have to acquaint themselves with the true inwardness of this pernicious document, which in its present state is destined to be banefully fateful for the whole world."

Herr Schücking declared the treaty, as it now stands, is "merely an instrument of one-sided imperialistic politics and directly the opposite of President Wilson's peace, which would be dictated by righteousness."

"Take, for instance," he said, "the provision which gives England's dependencies one vote each. The United States, with a solitary vote, would trail far behind English interests in the League, and would probably be doomed to become her handmaiden. The march of world events for the last decade has brought the peoples of the earth nearer each other; distances have been overcome and the community of interests has been consolidated. The United States can no longer isolate herself. If she is to be expected to join the League, however, it must be an ideal institution, and not one maintained in the furtherance of imperialistic aspirations, such as, for instance, Japan's hold on Shantung."

Count Reventlow, writing in the Tageszeitung, says:

"We still are of the opinion that no price is too high for Germany to induce the United States to interest herself in the future of Germany and the vitality of her people."

The Pan German editor believes that it is impossible for the United States permanently to dissociate herself from European affairs. The question of the exploitation of Russia alone, he declares, is of the highest importance for the United States, which equally cannot be indifferent to the economic future of Germany, especially in view of "the present English and French efforts to make Germany a storage warehouse highway to Russia."

The Morgen Post, commenting on the treaty, says:

"The rejection of ratification on the part of the United States would not occasion special joy in Germany because it would not be prompted by cordiality toward Germany, but would be dictated by purely selfish American interests."

The paper believes that the action of the United States Senate will prove injurious to Germany, inasmuch as it postpones permanent peace.

EXPECT EARLY RATIFICATION

PROPOSE TARIFF AS ISSUE

ALARMED BY WOOD'S BOOM

"Old Guard" Said to be Organizing a Movement to Head Off His Nomination.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Republican leaders, astute in political psychology, do not agree with Senator Lodge that the treaty fight will become an issue in the 1920 campaign, nor are they anxious to have the impression go out that the Republicans favor it as a plank in the platform next year. Their position, as expressed by one of the most far-seeing leaders today, is that the treaty will be ratified early next session, after a compromise offered by the President and acceptable to the majority, and that as an issue it cannot figure vitally next year.

While they say that aspects of the treaty fight, such as a declaration for a strong American policy, will be part of the Republican party's appeal, the real issue will be the upbuilding of an American merchant marine, the stimulation of foreign trade and a tariff sufficiently high to protect American industry and labor from competition of foreign-made goods and Old World wage scales.

There has been a quick reaction against the defeat of the treaty from the interests in the country that have always expected the Republican party to protect American interests and pave the way for a broader policy looking to a greater prosperity for the United States. It may be said that these interests, entirely Republican, had hoped to see the treaty ratified and were willing to accept, if necessary, most of the Lodge reservations. Inasmuch as the Republicans were in control, criticism is being leveled upon the majority leaders for not offering to eliminate the preamble which required three signatories to accept the reservations before the treaty became binding on the United States.

The only way in which the League of Nations and the treaty wrangle can be injected into the coming election, Republican leaders said tonight, would be by the defeat of both in the next session. Public opinion, it is argued, will compel both sides to compromise, and it is generally believed that when the Senate reconvenes for the regular session on Dec. 1 there will be a readiness to ratify the treaty, so that Congress can enact pressing legislation needed to restore the country to a normal condition.

The gathering of the party leaders of both parties here within the next six weeks is expected to have a decided effect, not only on the treaty fight, but in focusing the attention of the nation upon the national elections. The Republican National Committee will meet on Dec. 7, and about a month later the Democratic chieftains will be here. These meetings are called mainly to decide upon the convention cities, but the State Chairmen, of course, will have something to say upon the issues now before the people.

Presidential Booms Impending.

Not only has the treaty fight obscured major legislation impending in Congress, but it has also tended to restrain aspirants for the nomination for the Presidency from announcing their candidacies until the situation has become more clarified. In the next few weeks—certainly by the time of, or shortly after, the meetings here—there will be a flood of Presidential booms.

The illness of President Wilson, preventing him from making his expected announcement against a third term, has prevented Democratic booms from taking on a definite aspect. Most of the possible candidates, aside from ex-Speaker Clark and Vice President Marshall, are men who are either members of the Cabinet or were former members of it. The usual amenities, therefore, have held them from coming strongly to the fore as candidates until the President recovered or permittted some formal announcement.

In the Republican ranks the indifference toward things political has been due to the fact that the leaders were concerned with the treaty fight and had no opportunity to advise on the various booms. In the meantime General Wood's, directed by a good organization, has become almost all-absorbing, and the leaders opposed to him recognize that action in halting its spread is necessary. Strange to say, despite Senator Lodge's desire to have the treaty carried to the electorate, the fight did not develop any Presidential material in the Senate, although there are half a dozen Senators who are mentioned as "favorite son" possibilities.

Even the recent elections failed to produce a conspicuous candidate. While Governor Coolidge, in Massachusetts, made a successful contest and one that attracted national attention, he does not represent political strength, in the opinion of the leaders, by reason of his geographical position. He and half a dozen Republican Governors and half a dozen Senators are expected to go into the primaries and win their own delegates in order to prevent General Wood from capturing delegates from States that ordinarily can be controlled by the leaders.

Wood's Boom Alarms His Opponents.

Republican leaders opposed to General Wood do not conceal their anxiety about his strength. They say that he is not handicapped with having participated in the issues before Congress in the last two years, such as prohibition, woman suffrage and the treaty, and is strong negatively because of this aloofness.

That there is forming a movement among the so-called Old Guard leaders to prevent General Wood's nomination is now apparent, but as yet the leaders have not uncovered another candidate, who necessarily must be acceptable to business and both wings of the Republican Party.

It is expected that some indication as to this choice may be found within the next five weeks, when candidates must file their papers to enter the Presidential primaries in South Dakota. While the primaries will not be held there until March 23, the laws of that State fix Jan. 1 as the last day for filing petitions.

General Wood, Governor Lowden, and perhaps Senator Harding of Ohio will be entered in the South Dakota primary. The first primary election in the country will be that of New Hampshire, March 9. General Wood is expected to capture the delegates of that State.

North Dakota will hold its Presidential primary March 16; that of Michigan will be held April 5, and that of New York April 6.

Other Presidential primaries will be held as follows:

April 13—Illinois.
April 20—Nebraska.
April 23—Montana.
April 27—Massachusetts, New Jersey, and Ohio.
May 3—Maryland.
May 18—Pennsylvania and Vermont.
May 25—Texas and West Virginia.
June 8—Florida.

GERMAN CHANCE TO GET SEIZED PROPERTY BACK

Our Government Experts Say Congress Would Restore It by Declaring Peace.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—International law experts of the Government are firm in the opinion that if Congress declares the war with Germany at an end all private property of German citizens seized by the United States will revert to German ownership. It is asserted by these experts that in the absence of treaty provision for the disposition of this property a recognized declaration by Congress that the war was at an end would bring the seized property within the jurisdiction of international law, and thus deprive it of its enemy status. The formal ending of the war would abrogate the right to the possession of German property given by the armistice of Nov. 11, 1918.

A law of Congress providing for taking over the property of German citizens stipulates that the ultimate disposition of this property shall be left to Congress through subsequent enactment. With the exception of merchant ships seized, which are being operated by the War Department, the Navy Department, and the Shipping Board, the enemy property taken over by the United States remains in the possession of the Alien Property Custodian. Some of this property has been leased to private individuals, but its ultimate disposition remains with Congress.

The whole situation has been complicated by the action of the Senate in refusing to ratify the Versailles treaty. No specific disposition of seized private property is made in the treaty, but rights to it are renounced by the German Government through treaty provisions. In the allied peace exchanges in Paris the peace plenipotentiaries of the allied powers were unable to agree upon the method of ultimate disposition of enemy property taken over by the Allies. The British Government advanced a proposition that all enemy merchant ships seized should be considered as belonging to a common pool, and that they should then be distributed among the victorious nations, either in proportion to marine losses sustained in the war or to naval effort in the war. This would mean that the United States Government would receive only a small proportion of the enemy tonnage which is seized and which is now in its possession.

AMAZED AT NATION'S ATTITUDE ON TREATY

Dr. Newton, Here to Take Up Pastorate, Says England Is Dismayed at Our Stand.

BRITONS FOR THE LEAGUE

Declares Weight of Opinion Favors Covenant, Which He Thinks Could Be Improved.

The Rev. Joseph Fort Newton, D. D., who recently resigned the pastorate of the City Temple, London, England, arrived here yesterday on the White Star liner Adriatic with his family to begin his ministry in the Church of the Divine Paternity, at Seventy-sixth Street and Central Park West. When asked about the League of Nations Dr. Newton said:

"I am one of those who believe that whatever is to be the fate of the League of Nations, the responsibility for the future freedom and peace of the world will largely rest upon Britain and America. Hence the necessity of interpretation and understanding; and to that ministry I gave strength without stint—more in fact, than I had to give—going all over England, Scotland, and Wales, speaking in churches, cathedrals, universities, and every kind of assembly, seeking to interpret what is finest and best in our national life to our kinsmen.

"I found the people there much interested in American conditions and opinions. The kindly spirit toward America is marked everywhere in England. Much of the misunderstanding between Britishers and Americans is due to mere sensitiveness. What annoys an American puzzles a Britisher and what makes one of the latter mad amuses an American."

"What is the real attitude in England toward the League of Nations," he was asked.

"Opinion is divided, as it is here, not as to the desirability of a new way of working together, but as to the workability of the present scheme, and as to that I confess I have grave misgivings. The Little Englanders are against it, but the weight of opinion over there is in favor of the League of Nations, if only because the alternative is so appalling, and so we find conservative, practical statesmen like Mr. Balfour and Lord Robert Cecil among the champions of the League.

"No one claims that the covenant is perfect, but the best mind of Britain feels that if the nations stay together they can change the league for the better, whereas if they draw apart it will be difficult, if not hopeless. Hence an amazement, not unmixed with dismay, at the attitude of America, as if our own country were trying selfishly to escape from its full and fair share of responsibility for the public law and order of the world."

Dr. Newton said there was very little Bolshevism in England, and what there was in the country was of a very tepid form. The labor situation there, he said, was very different since the great railway strike, which had brought about a spirit of co-operation and comradeship between the classes, which more than anything else would solve the industrial problems of the future.

With regard to religion in England Dr. Newton said that organized religion seemed to be dead in Europe, and that the church had lost ground. England's soul had remained heroic and cheerful, he added, despite the great sacrifices of the war.

URGE PEACE BY RESOLUTION

Senator Reed Here Today to Confer with New York Committee.

A campaign in favor of the Lodge resolution to declare the war ended is to be undertaken at once by a "Committee of American Business Men," according to a statement made yesterday by its secretary, George Henry Payne.

Today Senator James M. Reed of Missouri will be in New York to confer with the officers of the committee as to the campaign. Later in the week Senator Miles Poindexter will speak at a meeting of the Eastern and Middle West Travelers' Association, who are organizing to assist the Committ of American Business Men.

FRENCH ALSO WANT TO ALTER TREATY

American failure to agree on the treaty, says:

"The danger that the action of the Senate may produce on this side of the Atlantic unhealthy irritation with America as a whole cannot be neglected. There are anti-American influences here, as there are anti-British influences there, and the Senate's action gives them a new opportunity for activity. In quarters where America's delay in entering the war was the object of acid comment her apparent reluctance to share the burdens of peace offers new temptations to criticism.

"The spirit in which the news of the rejection of the treaty has been received has with few exceptions been admirable; but restraint must not for a moment be confused with indifference. The action of the Senate is a profound and bitter disappointment to all in this country who care for the peace of the world in general and in particular for the association of the two great Anglo-Saxon races in the service of humanity. There is no need to conceal those feelings, least of all from Americans, nor here is there any thought of questioning the right of the Senate to exercise the powers intrusted to it under the Constitution; but hope that the people of America will insist on taking their stand in peace, as they took it in war, with the people of Great Britain will not be extinguished till a formal and final refusal has been recorded."

Anxious Over France's Safeguards.

PARIS, Nov. 23.—The possible effect of the failure of the United States Senate to ratify the Peace Treaty or the proposed Franco-American and Anglo-French military conventions is commented upon editorially. La Presse de Paris today publishes a L'Eclair editorial, which says:

"The failure of the United States creates the danger of the annulment of the Anglo-French-American conventions, by virtue of which Great Britain is pledged to aid us if any one should make an unprovoked attack upon us."

L'Eclair recalls Bonar Law's statement that the English agreement was dependent upon American ratification of a like convention, and adds:

"The English Government reserves the right to use this way out, opened by America, and we risk finding ourselves alone facing a united and still powerfully armed Germany, always obsessed with the idea of prompt and brutal revenge. One failure induces another, and it is to be feared that the treaty of Versailles will shortly join in the kingdom of shadows the great diplomatic work of President Wilson."

"What is the significance of the departure of Herr von Simson for Berlin?" asks the evening edition of the Presse de Paris. "The reasons alleged by the German diplomat are by no means conclusive. Why should it be necessary to consult the National Assembly on the terms of the protocol, which have been known since the beginning of the month?

"It must be, therefore, a manoeuvre of Germany, wishing to exploit the American Senate's hesitation, but such a move is condemned to failure in advance and the Supreme Council is about to meet it. Furthermore, it must be repeated that the Berlin Government is the first whose interests demand prompt application of the treaty of Versailles."

GERMANS IN LETVIA STEAL, BURN, SLAY

around the sky was lit up by the blaze of farms fired by the fleeing enemy, which threw a red glare on the snow. In the immediate foreground the huge ancient Castle of Mitau flared like the funeral pyre of German ambitions in the Baltic. The broad white causeway barred with the shadows of high trees was trodden hard and slippery by the advancing Lettish infantry, whose weeks of bitter fighting against heavy odds have been crowned by this remarkable success.

Despite reports to the contrary which reached Riga about noon today the enemy gave up Mitau without resistance, although the Lettish casualties were heavy yesterday in a turning movement from the right and left flanks which brought about the evacuation. At 11 o'clock last night the Germans issued an order that all their troops must evacuate the city by 3 A. M. Some were able to escape by rail, the remainder marched along the road leading directly south toward Chawli.

True to type, the Germans burned and looted before departure. In the main street of Mitau today there was not a single shop unsmashed and not stripped bare of its contents. Despite the bitter provocation the Letts behaved exceedingly well.

Dupes of von der Goltz.

These Russians, and probably Bermondt himself, were little worse than dupes of von der Goltz, whose prime object was to keep Courland for Germany. A considerable portion of the German force had been recruited on promises of land they would receive. Anti-Bolshevist operations were an excuse about which the Germans proper hardly bothered, although right up to the end the Russians were told they were fighting the Bolsheviki. Indeed, as late as yesterday evening announcement was made in Mitau that it was the Bolshevist enemy which was approaching, while attempts were also made to key up the lowered morale of the troops by the absurd story that one wing of their forces had met with great success and was actually expectin gto enter Riga today. This tragi-comedy of Bermondt's "Russian" army was maintained to the last.

It is now clear that Bermondt himself was the German catspaw and it is very doubtful whether the Reval promoters of the movement ever intended serious action against the Bolsheviki, although they may at first have entertained the idea of winning Russian gratitude and prestige for their own—that is, the reactionary—party at home by assisting Yudendich to defeat the Red troops.

The bulk, however, of German troops were simply mercenaries inspired by the hope of booty. They were aided and abetted, as here in Riga before, by balts of German origin. Plunder, murder and rape, committed against the unfortunate Lettish inhabitants, were everywhere common. In the village of Gudeasic there was one outrage of a particularly disgusting character which recalls the worst excesses of the early days of the great war in Belgium.

Despite this the Letts keep their troops under control and their entry was unaccompanied by the reprisals which German behavior would almost seem to justify. The only dead bodies visible in the town were those of German soldiers, who had been unable to escape or had been trying to cover the retreat, and of one group of four men in civilian clothes and heavy fur overcoats, but wearing German army boots and puttees, who had evidently hoped that their disguise would conceal their true character.

Hostile propaganda had suggested that the Letts might wreak vengeance upon the Baltic civilians, but nothing of the kind occurred, and Colonel Tallents, commanding the British political mission to the Baltic, who was the first allied representative to enter the town, found the Lettish officers keeping excellent order.

Great Work by Lettish Army.

Great credit is due the Lettish force, which practically unaided has solved the problem, which puzzled the allied statesmen for months, of getting von der Goltz's army away from Courland. True, their first victory, in crossing the Dvina in the neighborhood of Riga and forcing the enemy back from the city, was accomplished with the aid of the British warships. But since then it has been a Lett show entirely, and their forces, hardly numbering more than 15,000, have shown remarkable fighting qualities, coupled with no small endurance and tactical skill.

While they maintained steady pressure against the Mitau front in the centre, their right wing swept down along the railroad from Tukkon to the northwest, and simultaneously the left wing advanced in a wide turning movement some miles southeast of Mitau. Yesterday afternoon it was reported that they were within shelling distance of the road leading south to Chawli, and the Germans, evidently realizing the danger, immediately decided upon a headlong retreat.

Upward of a score of cannon were captured in and around Mitau, including a six-inch gun with a hundred rounds of ammunition. Thanks to the method of their approach, the Letts were not forced to damage the city, which is intact, with the exception of the castle and a few other buildings fired and the main street stores looted by the enemy.

The inhabitants declared that they had been living during the last few days under a reign of terror. The Bermondt forces looted indiscriminately, and when a pretense of payment was offered for goods seized, it was in worthless paper money which the Germans had printed in Berlin and whose acceptance they had compelled. They terrified every one by the repeated assertion that it was the Bolsheviki who were approaching, determined, they declared, upon a wholesale massacre.

Aided by German Government.

There is every reason to suppose that complicity of the German Government is seriously involved. An official Lettish document was shown to me this morning asserting that they had proof that until Oct. 15 at any rate the German Iron Division received money from the German Treasury.

In a reply formulated yesterday to a request for an armistice from General von Eberhardt—who finally took Bermondt's place, that theatrical Caucasian having apparently thought it wise to disappear—the Letts asked pointedly whether Eberhardt called himself the German or "West Russian" commander and whether the German Government admitted solidarity with his actions.

It is unlikely that fears expressed to me in Germany of a reactionary attempt by von der Goltz's force will now be realized. One thing at any rate is certain—von der Goltz's famous army cannot be said to be returning home with the prestige of victory.

People of Riga Dance-Mad.

Like London, Riga is dance-mad. Despite the alarums and excursions of the last few months polka and waltz—for fox-trot and jazz have hardly penetrated—have found ardent devotees at semi-public balls. During the recent bombardments the latter were prohibited, but it is announced now that the meadows in the city gardens are being flooded and that ice dancing is about to take the place of floor dancing.

In a city whose population roster has fallen from upwards of three-quarters of a million to somewhere round two hundred thousand it is remarkable to find any such evidences of cheerfulness, which speak well for the popular morale. Indeed the local high spirits sometimes manifest themselves in a rather startling manner. A few weeks ago four energetic gentlemen broke up a big dance in Poluscklstrasse by suddenly firing revolvers at the ceiling in the best "wooly Western" manner. Ultimately half a battalion of infantry invaded the premises, summoned by a report of a Bolshevist uprising, but no arrests followed.

Less innocent, but equally in keeping with Western traditions, was the holdup of a small private bank—a regular banking system is still not functioning—not a stone's throw from the British Mission. Some twenty men armed with revolvers suddenly appeared and drove officials and clients, including two allied officers, into a strong room—where they were only saved from suffocation by one of the officers having the foresight to put his foot in the doorway—and stripped the whole place to the last kopeck. They then retired in good order and are still at large.

Berlin Refuses Further Aid.

BERLIN, Nov. 23.—The Entente Commission has gone to Tauroggen (an important customs town 70 miles from Kovno)—the occupation of which by Lithuanian troops is confirmed.

General von Eberhardt, who succeeded Colonel Bermondt in the command of the German Baltic troops, is at Shavli. The "Iron Division" is returning, but its whereabouts is unknown.

Minister of Defense Noske has refused a request by General von Eberhardt for help in equipment and money, and also declined to give military assistance to liberate the railroad, which has been cut, says the Lokal Anzeiger.

JAPAN PREPARES TO ACT IN SIBERIA

Forces There to be Strengthened and New Proposal Made to the Powers.

FEARS BOLSHEVIST MENACE

Japanese Admiral at Vladivostok Denies Statement by Russian General Rozanoff.

TOKIO, Nov. 20, (Associated Press.)—The opinion is growing in Japanese army circles that the retreat of Admiral Kolchak and the increasing ascendency of the Bolsheviki in Siberia are so menacing that Japan cannot remain indifferent, the Jiji Shimpo says.

Therefore Japan, adds the newspaper, may make a new proposal to the powers regarding the Siberian problem and likewise strengthen the Japanese forces in Siberia.

VLADIVOSTOK, Nov. 21 (Associated Press).—Deepest gratitude to "our noble Allies for the services they have rendered" and to "the allied soldiers who protected the property and the dignity of the Russian State" was expressed by General Rozanoff in the name of the Government in a proclamation which dealt with the recent attempted revolution.

The Official News Agency also issued a note of thanks to "the Allies, and particularly the Japanese, for services to the Russian cause." The note added that Admiral Fedeorovitch has stated that a Japanese warship had aided the Russian flotilla.

Admiral Kawahara took exception to the statement, and declared that the Japanese naval forces had conformed to their attitude of strict neutrality. The Japanese Press Bureau also asked for a correction of the statement that the Allies, and especially the Japanese, had aided the Government forces in the overthrow of the rebels.

General Rudolph Gaida, Czechoslovak commander and leader of the revolutionary forces, who was wounded during the fighting, said in an interview that the movement was purely of the people.

"Its supporters," he said, "were of the Russian democratic classes and its leaders, including members of the Czar's Duma, three figures in the Kerensky Government, and many young Russian officers. That it was not Bolshevist, its records and its leaders' program outlined to the people is all the proof necessary."

General Gaida asserted that his forces included 100 of his personal guard, 500 deserters from the Government's forces, and 1,500 workmen and civilians. He said the fighting started when a company of Russians fired on a company of deserters.

"I used every effort within my power to prevent fighting," he declared. "I believe we would have won had not Japanese troops prevented our sending out raiding parties from the railway station. These parties were turned back, which placed us in a trap. Unable to spread our activities, we were surrounded."

Although he will be deported soon to Czechoslovakia, General Gaida said he would continue to work for the Russian cause. He arraigned the policy and activities of the Allies in Russia.

NEW JAPANESE PLOT STORY.

Reported Attempt to Cause Revolt of Chinese Mohammedans.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PEKING, Nov. 23.—Alarmist reports have reached Peking regarding Japanese activities in Sin kiang and Kan su, where, it is asserted, they are endeavoring to incite the Mohammedans to revolt against the Chinese Government and proclaim Islamic independence.

A feature of the movement is reported to be a request that Chinese Mohammedans be permitted to visit Mecca. As a matter of fact, Chinese Mohammedans have never required such permission.

Confirmation of the Japanese activities is furnished by the publication at Mukden of an organ to promote Pan-Asianism, printed in Chinese, Japanese, Mongolian, Turkish and Arabic. This organ is published by a well-known Japanese. It contains articles particularly adverse to British influence in Asia.

The movement claims to have branches at Mukden, Talien, Calcutta and Constantinople.

Arrest Man Here for Chicago Theft.

Charged with being a fugitive from justice, Harry Cox, 43 years old, an advertising manager, living at 231 West Fifty-second Street, was held in the West Side Court yesterday to await extradition papers from Cook County, Illinois. Cox was arrested Saturday night while leaving a Broadway theatre by John Hay, owner of Hay's Hotel in Chicago, who alleges that Cox, while stopping at his hotel on April 7, opened his safe, took $3,500 in cash and jewelry and disappeared.

Au Trade-Mark

The French law requires that when a partner whose name is part of the firm name dies, the firm name be immediately changed. For a long time there was a great puzzle as to how it was possible to perpetuate the name of the company. A clever lawyer found out that if the business was dedicated to something, either an idea or a disembodied spirit or a saint, the title could be made permanent.

That is the reason why you see the word "Au" "To the"—before many firm names—"Au Bon Marche" (To the good bargains)—"Au Samaratain" (To the Samaritan)—"Au Louvre" (To the Louvre), so that never mind who runs these shops, the title is perpetual.

Fortunately there is no American law that limits a trade-mark to the life of any individual or firm.

JAPAN TO KEEP TSING-TAO CLOSED

Tokio Paper Says She Won't Establish International Concession There.

SIBERIAN DISPUTE ENDED

Impression Prevails That America's Conciliatory Attitude Precludes Further Trouble.

TOKIO, Nov. 20 (Associated Press).—Viscount Uchida, the Foreign Minister, will be appointed Japanese Ambassador to Great Britain, and H. Ijuin, at present Ambassador to Italy, will take the portfolio of Foreign Affairs, according to a statement made by the Yomsuri in an extra edition today.

The newspaper says, in connection with the change, that Japan has decided not to establish an international concession at Tsing-tao, as suggested by Viscount Uchida in September, but will maintain an exclusively Japanese concession there.

Although there is no official confirmation of the report of the Yomsuri, well-informed persons express the opinion that Viscount Uchida will probably go to London to succeed Viscount Chinda and handle the important questions embraced in the renewal of the Anglo-Japanese alliance and the inauguration of the League of Nations.

The Foreign Office declines to comment on the report that Japan will maintain an exclusive Japanese concession in Tsing-tao, saying that this question forms part of the future negotiations with China concerning Shantung.

Four Japanese destroyers have been sent to Foochow, China, where anti-Japanese disturbances have occurred.

Friendlier Relations With Us.

The American Government has replied to Japan's recent answer to the American note concerning co-operation as regards the operation of the Trans-Siberian Railway. The American reply notes with satisfaction Japan's willingness to co-operate, but points out the futility of bringing forward concrete instances of any lack of co-operation in the past. The conciliatory nature of the American reply is such as to give the impression here that a further exchange of notes will be unnecessary and that the incident is considered closed.

It is pointed out in high quarters here that the recent friendly intercession by Japanese troops at Chita, when General Semenoff tried to seize a portion of the rifles the Americans were forwarding to Admiral Kolchak, is evidence of Japan's determination to co-operate with the Americans.

The notes exchanged between the two Governments have not been published.

The adoption of the Shantung reservation by the United States Senate caused some apprehension here as to how, if it were embodied in the German peace treaty, it would affect the Chinese situation. The Foreign Office has declined to comment on the question. It has reiterated, however, its intention to endeavor to open negotiations with China on the Shantung question as soon as the general ratification of the treaty is announced in Paris.

Representative Japanese are expressing the fear that the recurring criticism of "everything Japan does," as they put it, is likely to create the impression that there is some basis for the idea of deliberate unfriendliness. They say that any economic advantages which Japan obtains in Shantung are duplicated by other countries in other parts of China.

At a dinner given in honor of Viscount Ishii, former Ambassador to the United States, given by the Japan Society last night and attended by a representative company, including Ambassador Morris, Viscount Ishii said that he had consistently endeavored to explain to his countrymen something of their ignorance regarding America and Americans. While he deplored the "indiscreet utterances" of some American newspapers and some Americans about Japan, he had repeatedly warned the Japanese, especially the press, of the mischievous effects which were likely to grow out of hasty, inconsiderate criticisms of the United States, and especially of its President. The Japanese, he declared, deprecated nothing more strongly than the altogether undeserved attacks that had been made upon the personality of President Wilson.

After congratulating Americans upon the "remarkable and conspicuous part their illustrious President" had played in the struggle for the world readjustment, the Viscount expressed regret that the Paris Conference had not incorporated some guarantee in the League of Nations covenant against racial discrimination. He said he believed that the omission of the just proposition made by Japan would affect the prestige of the league, but he was confident it would prevail ultimately, and without undue delay.

Ishii Warns of Class Wars.

The former Ambassador emphasized his belief that all countries were confronted by a new and imminent danger, namely, a war of the classes, or a war against the State and other established institutions.

"The defense," he said, "should be common, as the danger is common to all countries. All petty and selfish considerations of a racial and economic character should be merged into the vaster consideration of this common defense."

Tuichi Soyeda, former President of the Japanese Industrial Bank, who has just returned from Europe, urged, like Viscount Ishii, the necessity of a united front to combat the world danger of Bolshevism and anarchy. He favored an American and Japanese co-operation in the work of world reconstruction and the solution of unsettled questions. Every nation, he declared, must guard against falling into the same militaristic path as to which Germany had stepped.

In consonance with the object of the society, frankly to discuss American problems, Charles H. Sherrill, former American Minister to Argentina, speaking at the American-Japanese dinner last night, urged the Japanese to supplement a gentlemen's agreement by a "ladies' agreement." He suggested this because he believed that the advent of numerous "picture brides" in California imperiled good relations between the countries more than the Japanese realized.

An agreement limiting the number of wives going to America, said Mr. Sherrill, would restore the situation on a broad basis. A fixed gentlemen's agreement would help to remove economic friction.

focated him. Finally an automobile succeeded in carrying him to the seat of the Government, where Admiral Millo awaited him. He remained talking for half an hour with the Admiral, after which the latter in D'Annunzio presence ordered Major Bucci, his Chief of Staff, to send a telegram to the Government at Rome announcing the arrival of the Fiume volunteers and adding that Admiral Millo had sworn not to allow a single Italian soldier to leave Dalmatia.

"When D'Annunzio, accompanied by Admiral Millo and Mayor Zilliotti and other notables, appeared on the terrace overlooking the sea, where a body of 800 Zara volunteers had gathered, he received a notable ovation, the outburst lasting ten minutes. Then, in a loud voice, D'Annunzio gave his first greeting to Holy Zara,' saying that every Dalmatian stone was worthy to form part of an altar to the mother country. He concluded by solemnly presenting Admiral Millo as the first Governor of Italian Dalmatia.

"D'Annunzio returned on foot to his ship, struggling through the crowds. One young woman among the demonstrators burst into tears of joy as she approached the poet, who embraced her and explained:

"'I thought to carry the flame of Fiume to the sister city of Zara, but I find I have carried flame to flame.'

"After a review of the troops d'Annunzio called all his officers to him and placed them under the orders of Admiral Millo, to be commanded by General Oneto, representing General Ceccherini. Admiral Millo announced that he had sent a telegram to Rome accepting the Governorship of Zara in the name of the King of Italy. From all sides the national hymn was sung and the church bells were rung. In the afternoon d'Annunzio again spoke to the people, who were in a state of delirium, the poet being obliged to protect his face from the flowers showered upon him."

The accounts show that when d'Annunzio appeared on the balcony of the palace he was frantically applauded for several minutes by the throng below before he could speak. When finally he raised his hand, and a dead silence immediately ensued, he said he had been walking about Fiume, "wishing to tread the soil of Zara and feel its throbs." Then he spoke of the Italianity of Dalmatia and recalled the episode of a little girl of Fiume to whom he had said: "Take care they do not make you become a Croat," and who had replied "Not until our Maggiore Mountain falls into the sea." D'Annunzio continued:

"The same can be said about you. You certainly will not become Slavs until your Dinaric Mountains slide into the Adriatic."

He added:

"Here today we celebrate divine service. We came from Fiume, where the motto is 'Italy or death!' Arriving at Zara, we are greeted by the cry 'Italy or death!' And you will once more join me as the brothers in Fiume did."

The narrator says the entire crowd took the oath amid great enthusiasm.

D'Annunzio showed the people the flag in which the body of his fellow-aviator, Captain Randaccio, was wrapped when he died on the Carso.

"It is made," said d'Annunzio, "of the stuff of your suffering, woven with faith and sewn with constancy. From the Carso it was planted on the tower of the castle at Duino, so that Trieste could see it. To the dying Randaccio I promised to hoist it on the tower of San Giusto in Trieste, which promise I kept after having baptized the flag with the water of Rome, the capital. Today I bring it to Zara, and perhaps further."

Pointing to Admiral Millo, d'Annunzio exclaimed:

"Our great Admiral, our great citizen, you have accomplished an act of faith which will be honored throughout the centuries. The memory of this act, the memory of this solemn day, which is also the anniversary of your entrance into Zara, will be carved upon our Roman arch."

While the crowd was acclaiming Admiral Millo, d'Annunzio drew out the tri-colored flag which he had carried on his person in all the encounters in which he was engaged during the war and which he intended to present to the citizen of Zara "who had suffered the most." Now, however, he exclaimed:

"The entire people of Zara deserve it, so I give it to the people," and he dropped the flag from the balcony countless hands reaching out to clutch it.

PRESS CONDEMNS ZARA COUP

Fears That It Will Lead to Humiliation of Italy by Allies.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Nov. 23.—The official news of the expedition to Zara of the Fiume volunteers under d'Annunzio has been received with no great excitement, as almost every one knew of the occupation a few hours after it had taken place. Nor has this new move on the part of the poet roused the same enthusiastic approval that his Fiume expedition did.

The entire press, with the exception of the Idea Nazionale, the Intransigeant Nationalist organ, although admitting that the occupation of Zara was probably dictated by a feeling of patriotism, deplores this new act of the poet's, especially now, when the country is passing through a difficult period of adjustment. It is felt that the Zara incident puts a most powerful weapon in the hands of the Socialists, who will seek to rouse the people by proclaiming that the situation in the Adriatic may be the cause of new wars, not to speak of the impasse the Government finds itself in with regard to the allied nations. It is feared that Entente countries will be more severe in their judgment than on the occasion of the seizure of Fiume, and demand that the Italian Cabinet immediately take necessary measures to prevent the movement spreading to other Dalmatian towns.

The attitude of the Giornale d'Italia regarding the occupation of Zara is surprising, as this is the newspaper which after the Idea Nazionale most fiercely defended d'Annunzio's Fiume coup. On this occasion, however, it criticises the poet's act as absolutely unnecessaary, as Zara was occupied by Italian troops commanded by a high Italian officers, and, whereas it formerly indulged in indignant expostulations when d'Annunzio and his followers were accused of indiscipline, it now says:

"Another cause for concern is the lack of discipline shown by the alacrity with which Admiral Millo, who in the name of the King and Government was Governor of Dalmatia, sent in his resignation."

The Tribuna says:

"Why is there such raving about freeing Zara and Sebenico, which already were occupied by our victorious army and navy? There is no one who does not realize the criminal folly of the project of seizing Dalmatia, which would constitute a violation of fundamental international principles, and might involve Italy in a conflict with all the allied nations, with the risk of having to submit to unthinkable humiliation, or expose the leaders of the movement to be treated as filibusters, without Italy being able to do anything for them."

The Epoca publishes a manifesto issued by the Mayor of Zara after the occupation of the town by d'Annunzio. This reads:

"Citizens! Gabrielle d'Annunzio is here. Do not utter a word. Continue to weep with joy. Dalmatia will always belong to Italy."

ITALY'S SOCIALISTS PROCLAIM BOLSHEVISM

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, Nov. 23.—Foremost on the program of Italy's Socialists in and out of the new Parliament is, according to the Avanti, the resolution to defend and enter into immediate relations with the Russian Soviets "economically, spiritually, and politically."

Regarding home affairs, it is demanded that many more soldiers must be rapidly discharged, the barracks must be more humanely utilized, wealth must be taxed to pay off the country's debts, the land must go to the peasants, and working men must share in the direction of all industrial organizations. Due appreciation is, however, accorded to those intelligent technical managers "who have so often been victimized by capitalists." Finally, speculation must cease.

It is declared that the Socialists need no advice from any one, but will accept offers of held from those who are in sympathy with their program, and thus Italy shall became a republic and mistress and arbiter of her own destinies.

ROME, Nov. 22.—An agitation of some proportions is in progress in several parts of Italy in favor of the noted anarchist, Enrico Malatesta, now, that he has succeeded in obtaining permission to return to Italy. Malatesta tried to assassinate King Alfonso in Madrid on the latter's wedding day, and fled from Italy in 1914. He has left London and, after remaining a short time in Milan, will go to Ancona, his birthplace, to make his home.

A labor bureau is about to be organized to include all institutions affecting labor, chiefly those concerned with savings, insurance, unemployment, employment, and emigration. When the organization is completed the bureau will be given into the charge of Signor Cabrini, the former Socialist deputy.

SWANN WOULD OPEN GRAND JURY RECORD

Knows of No Precedent, but Thinks Revelation Would Prove His Position.

GOV. SMITH STILL SILENT

Will Not Decide Controversy Without Full Consideration—Jury Will Meet Today.

The Extraordinary Grand Jury will be in session again today, but it is not expected that it will immediately resume inquiry into city government matters or in the District Attorney's office until Governor Smith announces his decision regarding the jury's request for legal assistance by Attorney General Newton. For the same reason the investigation of transit matters will go over temporarily, and the jury will devote itself to criminal anarchy cases and the taking of evidence in the milk investigation, as directed by Justice Weeks.

Governor Smith is not yet ready to give consideration to the requests of the jury and of District Attorney Swann, who has asked for the designation of a Justice and the calling of another jury to take up the charges mentioned in Foreman Almirall's letter concerning the prosecutor's office and departments of the City Administration. Pending the Governor's decision, the District Attorney said he would refrain from any further comment on the action by the jury.

In Mr. Swann's reply to the first letter of the jury to the Governor he asserted that the extraordinary Grand Jury had sought to replace him by special counsel before he had completed his examination before the jury of President Frank Hedley of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company. In his statement on Saturday Mr. Swann again referred to this.

The District Attorney was asked if, in view of this situation, as reported by him, it would be advisable for him to petition the Court to permit a disclosure of the extraordinary Grand Jury minutes relating to this and to matters referred to in their second letter to the Governor. Judge Swann replied:

"I cannot find a precedent for it but if the Court should feel it to be proper to open the minutes, or any part of them, it would please me. But I do not want to place myself in the position of asking the Court to do something for which I cannot show a precedent except on the ground of my personal reasons."

The District Attorney said he would like to have everything disclosed in the minutes that have a bearing on any feature of the controversy between himself and the jury that had been placed before Governor Smith. He declared that such disclosures would show that his statement was correct, that there were nothing o show grounds for suspicion of an "overshadowing crime," or any evidence forming a basis for the jury's proposed investigation of municipal offices and the District Attorney's office of New York County.

the most vigorous immigration system would have to be provided to enable this country to fight away enormous numbers of Reds using every kind of fraud and perjury to get into the United States.

The committee at its hearing at Ellis Island today will call inspectors and immigration officials to give their opinions of the defects in the present laws and their views on strengthening them. The committee will also make an individual study of each of the cases of the famous trainload of Seattle "Reds" who were transported to this city last Spring from the West for deportation, but who, with ten exceptions, were released in New York City. Some of these Seattle "Reds" were not even required to furnish a bond, according to the information of the committee, but were released on their own recognizance. In connection with this particular group, the committee will probably inquire whether any officials used undue influence to aid their release.

Several Reds Disappear.

Members of the committee are also anxious to learn who issued an order that a number of Russian Reds who had been ordered deported should be allowed to go free until relations with Russia were resumed and the men could be returned to friendly soil. According to the information of the committee, all of the men, who were released temporarily on the ground that it was an unnecessary hardship to hold them in confinement and that they would be deported later, have disappeared.

"One of the defects in the immigration system," said Mr. Johnson, "is that the Immigration Commissioner of the Port of New York is not responsible to his superior, the Commissioner General of Immigration. The Commissioner of Immigration at this port is paid more than his superior, because, in addition to his salary, he receives a salary of $1,500 as custodian of property on the island. We find that the Commissioner of New York had dealt with the Commissioner General when he saw fit, but otherwise had disregarded the Commissioner General and taken up questions directly with the Secretary of Labor."

Seven members of the committee went down to Quarantine on Staten Island yesterday on the United States Coast Guard cutter and spent the day there boarding steamships to see how the work of inspection was conducted, and returned to New York in the afternoon on the White Star liner Adriatic, which had 700 steerage passenger who were to be held on board all night and taken to Ellis Island today.

Medical Inspection Unsatisfactory.

Congressman Isaac Siegel, who has been five years on the Congressional committee dealing with this port, said that the medical inspection was not satisfactory. He said:

"I do not mean that this is the fault of the officials at the Quarantine Station, but of the Public Health Service. The United States laws demand that every immigrant must be medically inspected by two doctors, but owing to the shortage on the staff it has to be done in a perfunctory manner by one physician. With the numerous scourges in the Near East and Southern Europe, resulting from the great war, it is vital to the health of the nation that the medical inspection of immigrants arriving from those countries should be strictly carried out."

The Congressmen visited the steerage quarters on the Adriatic on the trip from Quarantine to the pier at the foot of West Nineteenth Street and had no fault to find with the accommodations or the manner in which the immigration inspectors examine the cabin passengers.

Berger Predicts Indictments.

"This will be a blue week for the Reds," Deputy State Attorney General Samuel A. Berger predicted last night in forecasting a continuation of the activities of the forces warring on criminal radicalism. He expects the returning by the New York County Extraordinary Grand Jury of several indictments against criminal anarchists who are disciples of communism. Then there is to be a further examination by the Lusk committee into the affairs of L. C. A. K. Martens, who calls himself the Soviet "Ambassador," with a view to having him deported, if possible. In addition, the House of Representatives committee will continue its investigation into deportations to determine whether the immigration laws need revision.

Mr. Berger told of a defiant reply to recent raids made in the current number of The Communist, in which it is declared that no amount of "persecution" will end the party, however much it may be raided, its members imprisoned and its property destroyed.

The Deputy Attorney General said the national drive against lawless radicals had awakened the whole country. He said the Attorney General, Charles D. Newton, personally would examine Martens tomorrow at City Hall, and added that he had no further information of an alleged plot to put radicals on American ships, so that the vessels could be seized and run into ports under Soviet control, though one of the alleged radicals under arrest now was a sailor receiving $115 from the Government.

Mrs. Rose Pastor Stokes, whose appeal on a conviction of violating the espionage law is pending, has been subpoenaed to appear before Assistant District Attorney Alexander I. Rorke of New York County at noon today.

URGES MORE DEPORTATIONS.

Hanson Calls on Nation to Do Its Full Duty.

The People's Liberty Chorus, which made twenty-three public appearances in behalf of the Liberty Loan, Red Cross and similar drives, celebrated Thanksgiving yesterday afternoon at the Hippodrome with a patriotic and musical program. Ole Hanson, former Mayor of Seattle, was the principal speaker.

Mr. Hanson said that of 5,000 agitators arrested for disturbances within the last year only thirty-seven had been deported. He said that previous to 1900 statistics showed that the aliens coming to our shores were mostly families of the peaceful, law-abiding kind who came here to settle and become good Americans, but that since 1900 there has been an influx from Eastern Europe and more men and boys than women of families came than was previously the case. Mr. Hanson said that a vast number of those men coming here since 1900 had the same ambitions as many of us had who started going to Sunday school two or three weeks before Christmas.

"I simply want to say," he contnlued, "that as an American citizen, this Government must do its full duty and stop camouflaging, and arrest these anarchists and similar disturbers, place them on a ship and send them to their own country and keep them there.

"It seems to me that in the future we should admit only those who want to come to this country and become real American citizens and only those that we have need for. In every country across the sea we have certain representatives. Let the intending immigant call upon one of our agents in Europe and make application for entrance; let him deposit $25 or $50 with our representative, or whatever is necessary to look him up; let the aspirant be physically and mentally examined at once; let him fill out a questionnaire somewhat similar to the one our boys filled out for the army."

At another point in his address the ex-Mayor said: "I believe the time has come in this country when we must lay party ties aside and be Americans first. I repeat what I have said before, 'that a man who will not put his party aside for his country should be made to leave this country.'"

The speaker criticised Secretary of War Baker for including the bestowal of honorable discharges from the army upon conscientious objectors. In many cases, he said, these men did not work, and in very few cases did work only in camps. These men, he vehemently protested, should not have been given honorable discharges, and he declared that they should be taken away from them, regardless of what Woodrow Wilson, Secretary Baker, or any one else thought.

At the close of Mr. Hanson's address a resolution was adopted urging Congress to consider the selective immigration and scientific distribution of immigrants, as proposed by former Mayor Hanson, and declaring that "in all matters the business of immigration shall be conducted primarily for the benefit of the United States of America, and that all conscientious objectors who have received honorable discharges from the Government, certifying to their patriotic service during the war, which they did not perform, shall be revoked and taken from them."

Other speakers were Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, pastor of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, and George Brokaw Compton, head of the New York branch of the American Legion, who were the guests of honor at the celebration. Deputy Police Commissioner Frederick A. Wallis presided. The invocation was delivered by the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, rector of Trinity Church.

LABOR CONFERENCE CLOSING ITS WORK

Recommendations of Committees Come Before the Body of Delegates This Week.

THEN GO TO GOVERNMENTS

Labor Bureau of the League of Nations Will Be Formed on the Basis of This Conference.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—The International Labor Conference participated in by representatives from forty countries, which has been meeting in Washington since Oct. 29, will tomorrow enter upon the final week of its deliberations. During the week it is expected that the efforts of the conference of the last three weeks will result in the adoption of a series of conventions and recommendations to be submitted to the various nations represented for approval by their respective Parliaments and lawmaking bodies.

The conference expects to have completed its work inside of a month from the day it met. The opening session of the conference was held on Oct. 29. Ten days ago the conference decided to adjourn by Nov. 29, in order to allow the various delegates to return to their homes in different parts of the world at as early a date as possible. The work of the conference up to the present time had been confined largely to organization matters, the election of officers, the admission of delegates, and other purely functional matters, as well as the thrashing out in a series of committees of the actual problems before the conference.

The principles agreed to in the various committees and which will be submitted to the conference during the coming week for approval are as follows:

(1) The adoption of the eight-hour day and forty-eight-hour week principle, with the exception that (a) where less than eight hours are worked on some days of the week the hours not worked may be redistributed on other days, but with no day to exceed nine hours, and (b) that in continuous processes the limit shall not exceed fifty-six hours a week. All overtime to be paid not less than time and a quarter. The labor employed in the devastated regions of France and Belgium is to be considered as employed under special conditions. This agreement cannot, of course, lower any higher standards already established by law or by collective agreement.

(2) The prohibition of work in industries between 10 P. M. and 5 A. M. for all women through the substitution of a modernized and enlarged convention for that adopted at Berne in 1906. The eastern countries are prepared to adhere to the new convention.

(3) The prohibition of the employment in industry of children under 14 years of age, except that Japan has agreed and India has been asked to raise the limit in their respective countries from 9 to 12 and with 14 as the eventual standard.

(4) A special commission has dealt with the limitation of hours of work in Eastern and other special countries which were fully represented in the commission, and are recommending considerable reductions in the present hours of employment with definite limitations in each case.

(5) Special reports are to be received on unemployment, the employment of women before and after childbirth, and the employment of children at night.

The conference tonight issued this authorized statement regarding its work to date:

"The conference has proved itself different in many ways from any other conference yet held. For the first time Governments have agreed to submit the recommendations of an international labor gathering to their legislative bodies for approval, though it should be clearly understood that until such approval is given no State is in any sense bound. The present conference, therefore, will not merely meet, debate, pass resolutions, and then adjourn, but will have the guarantee of each of the forty States represented to present its findings officially to the competent legislative authority within one year.

"The conference is, moreover, more widely representative than any other yet held. It includes not only the high industrial States of Europe and North America, but the less developed States of South America, Africa, and Asia. While, of course, this broad representation of States with such widely varying standards makes agreement most difficult to obtain, it serves, nevertheless, on the one hand, to extend to those States which are now becoming industrialized the safeguards of a more liberal industrial legislation, and on the other hand to protect the more advanced States from the unfair competition of lower standards.

"The organization of the conference into three groups, governments, employers, and workers, has also had a salutary effect. Not only has it allowed the employers and workers of different countries to unite on an identic program without fear of unfair competition from States having lower standards, but it has also assured the support of each group to any decision finally reached by the conference. Consequently the conference recommendations will not only have been thoroughly threshed out by the various groups in each country called upon to indorse them, but each nation will be free of the fear of prejudicing its interests by adopting legislation more liberal than that of its neighbors.

"Probably the most important outgrowth of the conference will be the constitution of the international labor office which is designed to be the permanent labor organization associated with the League of Nations. Its function will be to act as a clearing house for information on all international labor problems, to register laws and regulations, and to prepare the agenda for the annual conferences. Already many problems have been referred to it by the conference for examination. Considerable difficulty has been experienced in selecting the governing body of this office, but agreement is expected this week."

A Grave Necessity

The continuous sinking of the foreign exchanges has reached a point that imperils the economic welfare of this country, and the danger lies in our failure to think and act.

At current prices for the pound sterling and the exchanges of other countries with which we have been accustomed to deal, it is not possible for those countries to purchase our goods, chiefly raw materials, and until they make such purchases, generally speaking, they will have nothing to sell us, while even what they have they cannot sell profitably at the present valuation of their currency. Meanwhile, with exceptions, of course, the credit of these countries is sympathetically impaired.

Stabilization of the exchanges is now demanded, and this can only be accomplished by liberal extension of credit to foreign nations. We do not mean as between governments, but as between individuals as firms or corporations, whether or not the credit is based upon government support.

The Harriman National Bank speaks with a great deal of concern in this matter because in behalf of its clientele it has long contended for prompt and constructive action. It was in January of this year that we first spoke of "Untying the Knot," hastening the return to normal conditions, with the suggestion that Europe's debt to the United States should be refinanced and disposed of to the American investing public, releasing credit then and still restricted; and affording a basis for the education of the American public in foreign credits. The matter presses.

BARNETT FOR 27,467 MARINE CORPS MEN

Major General Virtually Would Double the Pre-War Force, His Report Shows.

URGES CONGRESS TO ACT

Recommends Two, Three, and Four Year Enlistment Terms—Praises Taking of Blanc Mont Ridge.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—A permanent enlisted strength of 27,467 men for the Marine Corps, approximately double the pre-war force, is recommended by Major Gen. Barnett, Commandant, in his annual report. Early action of Congress is urged, as delay would mean loss of rank for temporary officers who will be retained.

Opportunity to qualify for permanent commissions should be given all present temporary officers eligible for transfer, the report said, adding the recommendation that such commissions be made probationary for one year.

Attributing much of the success of the Marine Corps in the war to the system of drawing its commissioned personnel from the ranks, the Commandant said the "highest efficiency" would be served by adherence to this policy, which attracts the highest class of recruits.

General Barnett recommended that the present two, three and four year enlistment terms be made permanent, as being more attractive than the rigid pre-war term of four years, and asked increased pay for both enlisted men and officers.

Great difficulty is being experienced in replacing the temporary enlisted personnel of the aviation section of the corps, now completely demobilized. General Barnett recommended special grades be provided in order to place the three aviation services on a parity, and asked for sixty additional officers for aviation.

The report declared the taking of Blanc Mont Ridge during the war by the 2d Division, to which the marine brigade was still attached, was an "achievement the brilliancy of which rivals the record of the marines in Belleau Wood." The commandant also paid tribute to the fighting of the marines in the Aisne-Marne offensive of 1918, declaring their early morning surprise attack in the Bois de Ret, near Soissons, on July 18, to have been one of the most brilliant achievements of the war. Their operations in the St. Mihiel offensive, he said, proved the same invincible spirit.

Four members of the corps received the Medal of Honor, four the Distinguished Service Medal, 349 the Distinguished Service Cross, 1,237 were awarded the French Croix de Guerre, and fifteen the French Legion of Honor. Total Marine Corps casualties in France, the report showed, were 11,968, with 1,514 killed.

The report described operations of Marine Corps aircraft co-operating with ground troops in Haiti and Santo Domingo. A squadron of seven water planes and six land planes now is working with the expeditionary brigade in Haiti, while six land planes are stationed in Santo Domingo.

COOLIDGE INDORSED FOR PRESIDENCY

Republican Club of Massachusetts Formally Comes Out for the Governor in 1920.

ISSUE OF UPHOLDING LAW

Supreme Question the World Over, Club President Says—Appeal to the Nation for Support.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov. 23.—The latest boom for Governor Calvin Coolidge for the Republican nomination for President in 1920 comes from the Republican Club of Massachusetts. The Executive Committee of the club at its last meeting unanimously adopted the following resolutions:

"Whereas, The time approaches for the selection of a Presidential candidate by the Republican Party; and

Whereas, Massachusetts now has in Calvin Coolidge, Governor of the Commonwealth, a worthy representative, who embodies in himself the purposes and ideals of the American people, and their determination to maintain unimpaired their cherished institutions; and

"Whereas, His stand in Massachusetts in crushing the forces of disorder and disruption made clear to the nation the fundamental principle of the action as expressed in his own words, 'so long as I am in authority I shall continue to resist those who resist Government'; and

"Whereas, The overshadowing issue of the hour is the maintenance of established Government; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That we present to the people of this Commonwealth for the Republican nomination for President the man whose acts in this great crisis are known, and whose convictions appear in the following words: 'The choice lies between living under coercion and intimidation, the forces of evil, or under the laws of the people, orderly, speaking with their settled convictions, the revelation of a divine authority'—Calvin Coolidge.

"Further, we call upon all the people of the nation to whom the ideals and purposes of American institutions are dear to join in this undertaking."

Regarding the resolutions, George H. Ellis, President of the club, makes this statement:

"This action was taken only after mature deliberation by leading members of the club. It seemed unusually fitting that we should take action in this matter because the Republican Club of Massachusetts is the oldest independent Republican organization in the State, and has a membership of nearly 2,700 representing every part of the Commonwealth.

"The supreme issue today is the continuance and maintenance of orderly government. This is true the world over. Calvin Coolidge today is the foremost champion of government by the people as against any special interests in this country. He has been tested along these lines. His acts have shown him to be a friend of all classes so long as they respect the laws that the people have made. He is an inflexible defender of such laws when their nullification is attempted by anybody.

"We believe that the time has arrived when a man should be elected President whose actions have proven him to be thoroughly in sympathy with that great American ideal, 'With malice toward none, with charity for all, with firmness for the right as God gives us to see the right,' but who cannot be intimidated.

"Calvin Coolidge has risen to his present position through simple living, clear thinking, and hard, honest work. His public life has attracted to him men of all classes, irrespective of race or creed.

"I am for Calvin Coolidge for President because he represents American citizenship and constructive ability at its best."

GIVE UP 18 AS LOST IN SUPERIOR STORM

Attempts to Rescue Crew of Steamer Myron Twice Futile.

MEN COULDN'T HOLD ROPES

Two Vessels Forced to Leave Them to Their Fate to Avert Being Wrecked.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Nov. 23.—Eighteen persons, comprising the crew of the steamer Myron, are believed tonight to have been added to the victims of Lake Superior's fury of the last two weeks. Caught in a terrific northwester, the Myron foundered and sank a mile and a half off Whitefish Point early today in four fathoms of water. Tonight coast guards are patrolling the shores of Whitefish Bay for forty-five miles, hoping the Myron's two lifeboats will be blown ashore.

The United States subchaser 438 also was scouring the bay tonight for possible survivors. The beach is covered with lumber, the ill-fated Myron's cargo, but not a body had come ashore late today. The gale continued tonight, and there was little hope that passing steamers could have picked up the lifeboats, which, it is believed, were swamped in the mountainous seas.

The steamer Calumet, passing here late today, reported sighting a waterlogged lifeboat south of Whitefish Point. As far as could be ascertained, the boat was unoccupied.

The barge Miztec, which the Myron had in tow when she left Munising down bound, was cut loose and was picked up by an unknown steamer which towed it into shelter at Whitefish Point. The barge's deck load of lumber and her rudder were carried away, but it is supposed her crew is safe.

The first word of the mishap to the Myron came by wireless from the steamer Farling, lying in shelter behind Whitefish Point. When the steamer Adriatic, ice covered, locked through here today, her Captain reported that he twice turned his ship around in an effort to pick up the vessel's crew, who were then in two lifeboats. The men were unable to hold the lines, however, and the attempt at rescue had to be abandoned.

The steamer McIntosh later passed through wreckage of the Myron close enough to throw lines to several men seen clinging to the cabin. The men had life preservers on and were calling for help. One man also had a small flashlight. This attempt at rescue also failed and the sailors, unable to grasp the lines, had to be left to their fate.

The Myron is the third vessel swallowed up by storm-driven Lake Superior in the last two weeks. The other two were the H. E. Runnels and the John Owen, the latter's crew of twenty-two men perishing.

The Myron, of wooden construction, was built in Grand Haven, Mich., in 1888. She was 186 feet long, with a beam of 33 feet, and 676 gross tonnage. O. W. Blodgett of Bay City, the vessel's owner, is understood to be on the way to this city tonight from Chicago.

HONOR TODAY MEN WHO MADE SEA SAFE

Secretary Daniels Will Review 59 Ships That Swept North Sea Clear of Mines.

ALL NOW IN THE HUDSON

City Ready to Entertain 3,600 Officers and Men Back from Perilous Duty.

The United States Navy and the City of New York will unite today in honoring the Navy's Mine-Sweeping Force which is now in this harbor after successfully completing one of the most hazardous undertakings incident to the war.

The fifty-nine ships of the patrol, with their 3,600 officers and men, were lined up last night in the Hudson awaiting a review at 9:45 this morning by Secretary of the Navy Daniels and a group of distinguished military men and civilians as the first event in a day to be devoted to paying tribute to them for clearing the North Sea of the mines laid in unprecedented numbers to stop the operations of German submarines. The vessels have been arriving for several days, the last of them having dropped anchor last night, and officers and men were busy until late making everything trim for the review.

Secretary Daniels and his party will board the reviewing destroyer at the navy's dock at West Ninety-sixth Street. Rear Admiral Joseph Strauss, who was in charge of the sweeping operations, will be aboard his flagship, the Black Hawk, which will fire the Secretary's salute as the reviewing vessel passes it.

At noon there will be a reception and luncheon aboard the U. S. S. Columbia, flagship of the train of the Atlantic fleet. It will be attended by officers of the sweeping force and their wives, who will be presented to the Secretary.

At about the same time 2,000 of the men from the fifty-nine ships will be taken to the Hotel Astor where the welfare societies will give them a luncheon. Secretary Daniels will address the men as will other speakers. After the luncheon the men are to be entertained at various theatres.

In the evening Secretary Daniels and Admiral Strauss will attend a dinner given by the officers of the sweeping force, after which hosts and guests will go to the Hippodrome.

Navy men say the success of the mine-sweeping force adds another to traditional accomplishments of the service—doing "a job that couldn't be done." Within an area of 250 square miles in the North Sea they took up more than 50,000 mines under every sort of danger that sea and weather and explosives combined could present.

In view of today's ceremonies, the Navy Department last night made public the reports to the Secretary of the seven sweeping operations carried out by the force. These terse, official accounts, punctuated with brief references to explosions, to struggles against heavy weather, to entanglements with mines, and notations of a few tragic incidents make a chapter that will be memorable in the annals of the service.

Some hints of what these sweeping operations meant may be gathered from these excerpts from the report of the second operation, which is typical of all:

All minesweepers, plus ten subchasers and eight British trawlers got under way on the morning of May 9, 1919. The long field of mines laid on Oct. 13, 1918, was divided into three sections, and one section was assigned to each division. The preliminary clearing was carried out at right angles to the field, each pair of sweepers being followed by one subchaser to sink mines which were cut adrift, but not exploded. The British trawlers planted buoys and stood by them, acting as marker boats. Due to the frequent parting of sweeps by mine explosions and the difficulty of accurate manoeuvring, as well as the inexperience of the sweepers, it was necessary to resweep the field several times.

After telling of the loss of fifty kites, thousands of fathoms of wire and other sweeping material, due to the parting of sweeps, the report continues:

Sixteen hundred and seventy-two mines were swept up, of which 923 were exploded by the sweep, 747 were cut adrift and sunk by rifle fire, and 18 exploded after the sweepers had left the field. This represents 43 per cent. of the mines originally laid in this system.

Many British and some German floating mines are adrift in the North Sea, but floating American mines are seldom seen. This is interesting, since four times as many American mines were laid in this area as British mines. The presence of the British floating mines constitutes a serious danger against which a careful lookout is the only precaution for safety.

The sweepers remained out from May 9 until May 30, operating continuously, some of the chasers remaining out for eight days. Large quantities of fish were killed by the mine explosions and afforded ready supply for the vessels at sea.

The report then describes some of the accidents encountered:

May 12, at 2:10 P. M., a mine exploded close to the starboard quarter of the U. S. S. Patuxent, very near the surface. Commanding officer lost thumb of right hand. Chief Boatswain's Mate R. Eslinger injured knee. Several men washed overboard, all recovered.

May 14, a mine exploded in the kite under the stern of the U. S. S. Rail, slightly injuring the Captain and causing a leak in the after oil tank, also breaking lights in shaft alley. Vessel was able to continue operations.

May 14, while heaving in her kite, the U. S. S. Bobolink sighted a mine foul of the kite. The commanding officer ordered all hands forward and ceased heaving in, with the apparent intention of veering or cutting the sweep. Before this could be done the mine exploded, throwing a column of water 100 feet in the air, covering the entire ship, and the commanding officer, Lieutenant Frank Bruce, U. S. Navy, was killed. The boatswain was knocked unconscious and washed overboard, together with one man. Both were rescued.

May 16, a mine exploded in the kite under the stern of the U. S. S. Rail, carrying away her steam line and temporarily damaging the main engine. Repairs were made in the mine field.

May 20, the U. S. S. Oriole, while heaving in sweep exploded a mine approximately fifty feet astern, causing damage to main engine, auxiliary machinery, floor plates, lighting circuits, &c.

May 20, the U. S. S. Sanderling, while hauling in a parted sweep, exploded a mine close under her stern, drenching the ship with water and blowing off the propeller nut, but doing no other damage.

The Navy Club of 509 Fifth Avenue last night appealed for contributions of food or money for its Thanksgiving dinner at which the enlisted men of the Mine Sweeping Force, with other Navy men, will be its guests.

PLEDGE FOOD SUPPLIES TO GERMAN AUSTRIA

Members of Economic Council Vote to Continue Inter-Allied Plan After Dec. 31.

ROME, Nov. 22.—The Supreme Economic Council today considered the question of supplying German Austria with food, and decided to continue the agreements for inter-allied co-operation concerning food supplies after Dec. 31.

Signor Muraldi, Italian Under Secretary of Supplies, said Italy was ready, in view of the critical situation, particularly in Vienna, to give immediately the necessary assistance as soon as financial agreements were concluded. Cecil B. Harmsworth, British Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, approved this proposal. He emphasized the fact that it was important to clear away all uncertainty by declaring that the Economic Council possessed neither the resources nor the authority to provide for the needs of German Austria. The other Allied delegations associated themselves with Mr. Harmsworth's declaration.

Signor Giannini, of the Italian delegation, said the Italian Government was agreed regarding the necessity of bringing about a final solution of the question, for the present system was dangerous to all concerned.

Discussing the coal shortage, the Earl of Crawford said that in his opinion the only remedy for it consisted in increasing coal production in Great Britain, France, and the rest of Europe.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Nov. 21 (Via Geneva, Nov. 22).—Owing to the protest of the Sub-Commission of the Reparation Commission, Vienna's scheme of selling the art works of the imperial house has been given up. The proposed sale is alleged to be in contravention of the Peace Treaty.

The position of the present Austrian Government has been weakened owing to the desperate food situation. It is generally expected that the Government will resign if speedy relief is not forthcoming. The people are deeply depressed on account of the passive attitude of the Supreme Council in Paris, which so far has not responded to numerous appeals by Chancellor Renner.

and it is possible that the whole matter, including a report of the findings made at the conference among Dr. Garfield, Attorney General Palmer, and Mr. Hines tomorrow, may be placed before the Cabinet Tuesday morning for final decision.

That a formal decision must be made within the next two days is accepted as a foregone conclusion. The operators are charging that Secretary Wilson has placed the miners in the position of being able to say that they were holding out only for that which a member of the President's Cabinet had said should be granted to them. There is much bitterness of feeling on the part of the operators toward Secretary Wilson, who contend that his offer represents a victory for the miners.

Operators Bitter at Secretary.

So keen is this feeling that the Executive Committee of the operators is preparing to issue a statement tomorrow which will, it is understood, deal with the Wilson offer and make plain their attitude. They allege that Secretary Wilson's suggestion not only was unacceptable to them but that it ended direct Governmental dictation. An increase of 31.6 per cent. to the miners would saddle the public with a heavy burden and go a long way toward defeating efforts to reduce the cost of living, they say, for the operators could not absorb such an increase.

The Government's whole policy in regard to high living costs, and demands for wage increases by labor, is involved in the decision which must now be made. Some predict that if the Government formally recommends granting the increases proposed by the Secretary of Labor an impetus will be given to the demands of railroad workers and other branches of labor for sharp advances.

The operators say the Government would find it a difficult task to mine sufficient coal to prevent the closing of many industries and consequent unemployment and suffering. It would involve the housing of 400,000 men, as well as the policing of the mines by soldiers.

The operators assert there is a strong tendency among miners in some of the central fields to refuse to work, and that the leaders, such as Lewis, could get them back now if they were ready to make the effort, pending settlement of the dispute by the Government.

BRITISH WILL ERECT PATROL SHAFT HERE

Our Navy Shared in Work of Crews Who Maintained Communication with France.

A replica of the Dover Patrol memorial, a shaft one hundred feet high to be erected on Shakespeare Cliff in Kent, England, in honor of the 575 men of the Dover Mine Sweeping and Drifting Patrol who sacrificed their lives in the war, is to be erected in the United States.

Percy S. Bullen, Treasurer of the Association of Foreign Press Representatives in the United States, who has just returned to this country, announced yesterday that the fund raised by the Mayor of Dover with the assistance of the British press would be sufficient to erect the original memorial and replicas both in this country and in France. The French co-operated in maintaining the patrol from the start of the war, as did the United States Navy from the moment of this country's participation in the conflict.

Mr. Bullen said it had not yet been determined whether the monument here would be erected in New York or Washington. If this city is decided upon, it has been suggested that the shaft be placed either in Battery Park or somewhere on Long Island where it will be visible to every vessel passing in or out of the harbor.

The fund for the commemoration has passed $300,000, and it is planned to have the monument already accepted by the French Government and the one now offered to the United States unveiled with ceremonies fittingly expressive of the amity existing among British, French and American sailors. The monuments are to be designed by an artist of international fame and both Presidnt Wilson and Rear Admiral Sims are to be asked to participate in the unveiling ceremonies in this country, which it is hoped will occur next Summer.

In summarizing the work of the Dover Patrol yesterday Mr. Bullen said:

"During four years and more the Dover Patrol held the Straits of Dover and not only kept the enemy from Old England's gate, but a clear path to and from France for troops and supplies. With the straits in possession of the enemy, or the communications effectively cut, troops in France would have been isolated, supplies would have failed, and disaster would have resulted to the allied armies.

"Now that the war is over the amazing work of the Dover Patrol which was never published is becoming gradually known. Over 600 miles were swept daily by the trawlers and drifters and the entire strategic area of the straits and beyond was made practically untenable for the cunning submarine. Daily and nightly, at great risk to life, German mines were swept up and destroyed. The Trawler and Drifter Patrol of 256 vessels lost thirty vessels from mining, bombing, and collision, but from Aug. 5, 1914, to Nov. 11, 1918, they safeguarded the passage of 125,000 ships.

"Ten thousand barges crossed the Channel from Richborough, in Kent, with a tonnage of 1,250,000 tons gross, carrying 650,000 tons of ammunition and 11,000 guns. The transports from Dover alone included 3,875 hospital ships and ambulance transports and 2,094 troop transports. From Folkestone, a few miles from Dover, 10,636 vessels carried troops, 8,032 other vessels carried supplies exceeding 15,000,000 tons. The approximate number of troops carried reached the amazing total of 8,124,858.

"When it is remembered that but for the Dover Patrol this work could not have been carried out it will readily be conceded how much the allied and associated powers owe to its officers and men."

Governor-Elect Edwards Returns.

Governor-elect Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey, who, since his election, has been resting at Hot Springs, Va., returned yesterday to his home, 39 Duncan Avenue, Jersey City. He denied rumors that he had appointed a private secretary.

A JOSEF HOFMANN Recital in Your Own Home by Means of

The DUO-ART PIANO

(Mr. Hofmann Makes Record Rolls Exclusively for the Duo Art)

ON Saturday afternoon, November 22nd, Josef Hofmann gave his first recital of the season in Carnegie Hall. To everybody who is interested in piano music—students, teachers and lovers of the pianists' art—a Hofmann recital is a leading event of the season.

Every seat was sold far in advance; the vast auditorium was crowded to the topmost balcony; many stood to hear him and many were turned away. For Josef Hofmann has fulfilled the promise of his youth, and by his marvelous playing illumines the path that leads straight to the stars.

A Wonderful Instrument, Wonderfully Played

THE audience also had an opportunity to enjoy the full scope and beauty of the instrument of which Hofmann is past master—that happy combinaton of solo and accompaniment that makes the piano the most beloved and popular of instruments for the home.

The glorious Concert Grand sang with a hundred voices under Hofmann's eloquent fingers. Thousands of people were held enthralled by his artistry. And it is the privilege of the Aeolian Company to extend the splendid uplift of an afternoon of music such as this to the intimacy of your own home.

Hofmann's Playing On YOUR Piano

The Duo-Art Reproducing Piano is a sensational, yet logical outgrowth of the Pianola—the first practical and artistic "self-playing" musical instrument. With the player-piano idea as a basis, the ingenuity and resource of the Aeolian organization has, in the Duo-Art Piano, broken all limitation. It stands today a thing for laymen and musicians alike to marvel at.

The perfection with which the Duo-Art Piano, when actuated by the Authorized Record Rolls, repeats the playing of Hofmann and scores of other pianists is beyond even the expectation of its makers. The artists themselves, who give to this instrument their art with all its soul and beauty, are unstinted in their praise.

Mr. Hofmann, in a recent letter to the Company says, after referring to the fascination of working with the Duo-Art: "I have become a living propaganda for the Duo-Art as I am now fully convinced that the instrument is able to play exactly the way the Artist does. What is put in 'will come out'—no more, no less."

Just What the Duo-Art Would Bring to You

A PIANO:—To the cultured music-lover who desires a piano, as to the musical supremacy of which there can be no question, it would bring a Steinway if that is your ideal—a Steck, Wheelock, Stroud or famous Weber—a grand or upright, according to your taste and the price you desire to pay.

A PIANOLA—To the untrained music-lover who would appreciate the privilege of self-expression in piano music, it brings the most highly perfected and musically satisfactory means ever devised of personally playing the world's best music, the technique provided by means of regulation 88-note music-rolls.

A REPRODUCING PIANO:—To every man, woman or child who would welcome the wonderful and unique experience of hearing at home the most beautiful playing the talent of the world provides—classic and program music, played by such celebrities as Paderewski, Hofmann, Bauer, Gabrilowitsch, Ganz, Grainger, Novaes and scores of others; popular and dance music played by the best executants of this type—the Duo-Art Piano offers this ideal and only means to satisfy his desires.

A Duo-Art Pianola in a fine Upright Piano may be obtained for a moderate initial payment and monthly terms of $20

DUVEEN REPORTS GERMANY IN DESPAIR

Returning Traveler Says the People of Central Powers Are Down and Out.

LOCOMOTIVES ARE NEEDED

London Lawyer Tells of Heavy Taxation in England — Tuberculosis Specialists Arrive on Adriatic.

Sir Joseph Duveen, head of the firm of Duveen Brothers, in Fifth Avenue, returned on the Adriatic yesterday from a three months' business trip to Europe, accompanied by Lady Duveen and his secretary, H. W. Morgan.

"Living conditions in Austria and Germany are very bad, indeed, and no matter how much the Germans may bluff in the newspapers, at home they are down and out," said Sir Joseph, "I state this opinion after traveling all over those two countries. The people themselves have nothing to say, and the victory could not have been any worse for Germany if the Allies had marched to Berlin and sacrificed another 200,000 lives. The factories are almost at a standstill, and it will take Germany many years to recover her trade and commercial prosperity even if she starts now, which is not likely. Austria is bankrupt, and the condition of her people is pathetic."

W. H. Woodin, President of the American Car and Foundry Company, and a Director of the American Locomotive Company, returned on the Adriatic from a two months' business trip to England, Belgium, Holland and France.

"There is a great need for locomotives in Europe," Mr. Woodin said, "and also for cars to replace the rolling stock destroyed during the war. France and Belgium want $500,000,000 worth of railroad stock right now, and supplying them is merely a matter of credits and rates of exchange. The United States Government should step in and carry out the task of financing Europe regardless of what any of the other powers have to say on the matter. We have ten billions of dollars invested in Europe already, and it will require two and a half billions more to carry Europe over until the nations are ready to look after themselves."

John G. Masaryk, son of the President of Czechoslovakia, arrived on the Adriatic on his way to Washington to be Chargé d'Affaires at the Legation there in place of Dr. Dergler, who is going to Tokio. It is his first visit here for seven years.

Arthur J. Stanley, a London lawyer, who arrived on his way to Australia, said that the taxes in some of the towns in England were so heavy that the inhabitants could not pay them and had to move away. As an illustration he said that Mexborough, in South Yorkshire, of 18,000 inhabitants who are chiefly employed in factories, has a tax rate of 18 shillings and 8 pence in the pound, and a water rate to be added of another 1 shilling and 3 pence in the pound. The total sum is 19 shillings and 11 pence in the pound, which would be similar to a tax in New York of $4.98 on every $5 income. This excessive taxation, which leaves the people of Mexborough just 2 cents a year to live upon if they paid up to the Government, is due to the municipal trading of the Urban District Council. The members operate the gas, electricity, water, telephone and tramway systems, and the only thing that pays its working expenses is the cemetery.

That is not due, however, to the intelligence of the Urban District Council, but to a prevailing epidemic of influenza which is steadily removing the population. Mr. Stanley added that there were towns in England where the taxes were more than 10 shillings in the pound, $2.50 on every $5, and they were increasing all the time to the great alarm of the population.

Among the 396 cabin passengers arriving yesterday from Southampton and Cherbourg on the Adriatic were three well-known American tuberculosis specialists, Dr. Charles J. Hatfield, Managing director of the Phipps Institute, Philadelphia; Dr. William C. White of Pittsburgh, and Dr. David R. Lyman, who for two years did research work in France for the Rockefeller Institute. They have been attending the annual meeting of the National Association for the Prevention of Consumption, held in London. The doctors hurried back to America to take part in the drive to raise $6,500,000 for the National Tuberculosis Association and its 1,000 affiliated agencies by the sale of Red Cross Christmas seals.

"If the people of the United States knew how necessary their help was at this time to prevent the spread of consumption," said Dr. Hatfield, "the Christmas Seals would be sold over night. Its a small individual appeal we are making, but, for God's sake, tell the people to help.

"I am glad to say," continued Dr. Hatfield, in discussing the business of the meeting in London, "that our American methods of fighting tuberculosis have received the stamp of approval of the best European experts. Our methods and programs were highly applauded.

"But while America is setting the pace, I am convinced from a study of the situation in England, Scotland and France that our efforts must be greatly increased, because we have so seriously altered our methods of living in many instances in the last two years that unless immediate steps are taken to safeguard the lives of men, women and children, tuberculosis will steal a march on us at home."

Dr. Hatfield, with his associates, visited Scotland and other sections of the empire. They spend several weeks in France, in conference with the leading specialists in tuberculosis.

Ex-Mayor Van Wyck's Body Here.

The body of Robert A. Van Wyck, the first Mayor of Greater New York, from 1898-190[illegible], who died abroad, was brought back to this country on the Adriatic yesterday by his widow and daughters, the Misses Ethel G. and Kathryn Van Wyck.

Packard Delivery Serves Public and Pays Merchant

World's Greatest Department Store Built Business on Delivery. Uses Packard Transportation Principles and Packard Trucks

SINCE installing its first motor truck, the largest store in the world has increased its field nearly four fold. Its local deliveries now cover an area of five hundred square miles.

The really remarkable part of this service is not the length of the routes covered but the fact that they are covered daily and some of them twice a day.

This bringing the goods to the public's door is the great merchandising achievement of the modern store.

Although the cost of living is high, how much higher would it be were it not for the system which brings a great many people to one centre to do their purchasing?

Successful merchants recognize that the Public's sense of values is very acute. Any element of service in their business must be run with the greatest economy so that it takes its proper place in the cost of merchandise.

The rule for economical delivery service is to haul the maximum number of packages and tonnage with the minimum of equipment.

Compliance with this rule gives cost of upkeep and length of life precedence over first cost of truck.

More Packards than ever are being selected for this work. Perhaps because there is little guess work about selecting a Packard.

Packard facts and figures are established and are constantly being amplified by tests in every transportation field.

In this delivery field especially the importance of having one high standard for the whole Packard truck—and building every part in the Packard factory in order to keep it—is recognized.

The one outstanding fact about Packard trucks is their consistency of performance—as evidenced in the records of department store Packards, many of which have gone over two hundred thousand miles.

More study has been given department store delivery than to any other phase of truck transportation. Yet even here the Freight Transportation Department of the Packard organization in your city can help by keeping figures up to date. Call upon them. No charge for service.

To Consumers of FLOUR

Our attention has been called to rumors, possibly inspired by overzealous flour salesmen, to the effect that there is an impending flour scarcity in this country.

The facts of the flour situation are simple and there is no need for consumers to be alarmed. There are ample stocks both of wheat and of flour in this country, stocks far in excess of the usual supplies at this season. It is true that there is a shortage of the grades of hard wheats of which hard wheat patent flours are made, and it is for this reason that flour buyers are paying extravagant prices for the patent grades.

This does not mean that there is not enough flour to go around. There is enough wheat and enough flour to take care of all our requirements. There will be no more "War Flour," "Victory Flour," or flour "substitutes."

On the other hand, the UNITED STATES GRAIN CORPORATION is preparing to market from its large stocks as much standard quality flour of straight grade as the consuming public cares to buy. Arrangements are being perfected to place this flour in retail packages with the leading retail dealers of this city and within a few days buyers may know where to purchase UNITED STATES GRAIN CORPORATION Standard Pure Wheat Flour at a large saving as compared with current retail prices for the patent grades.

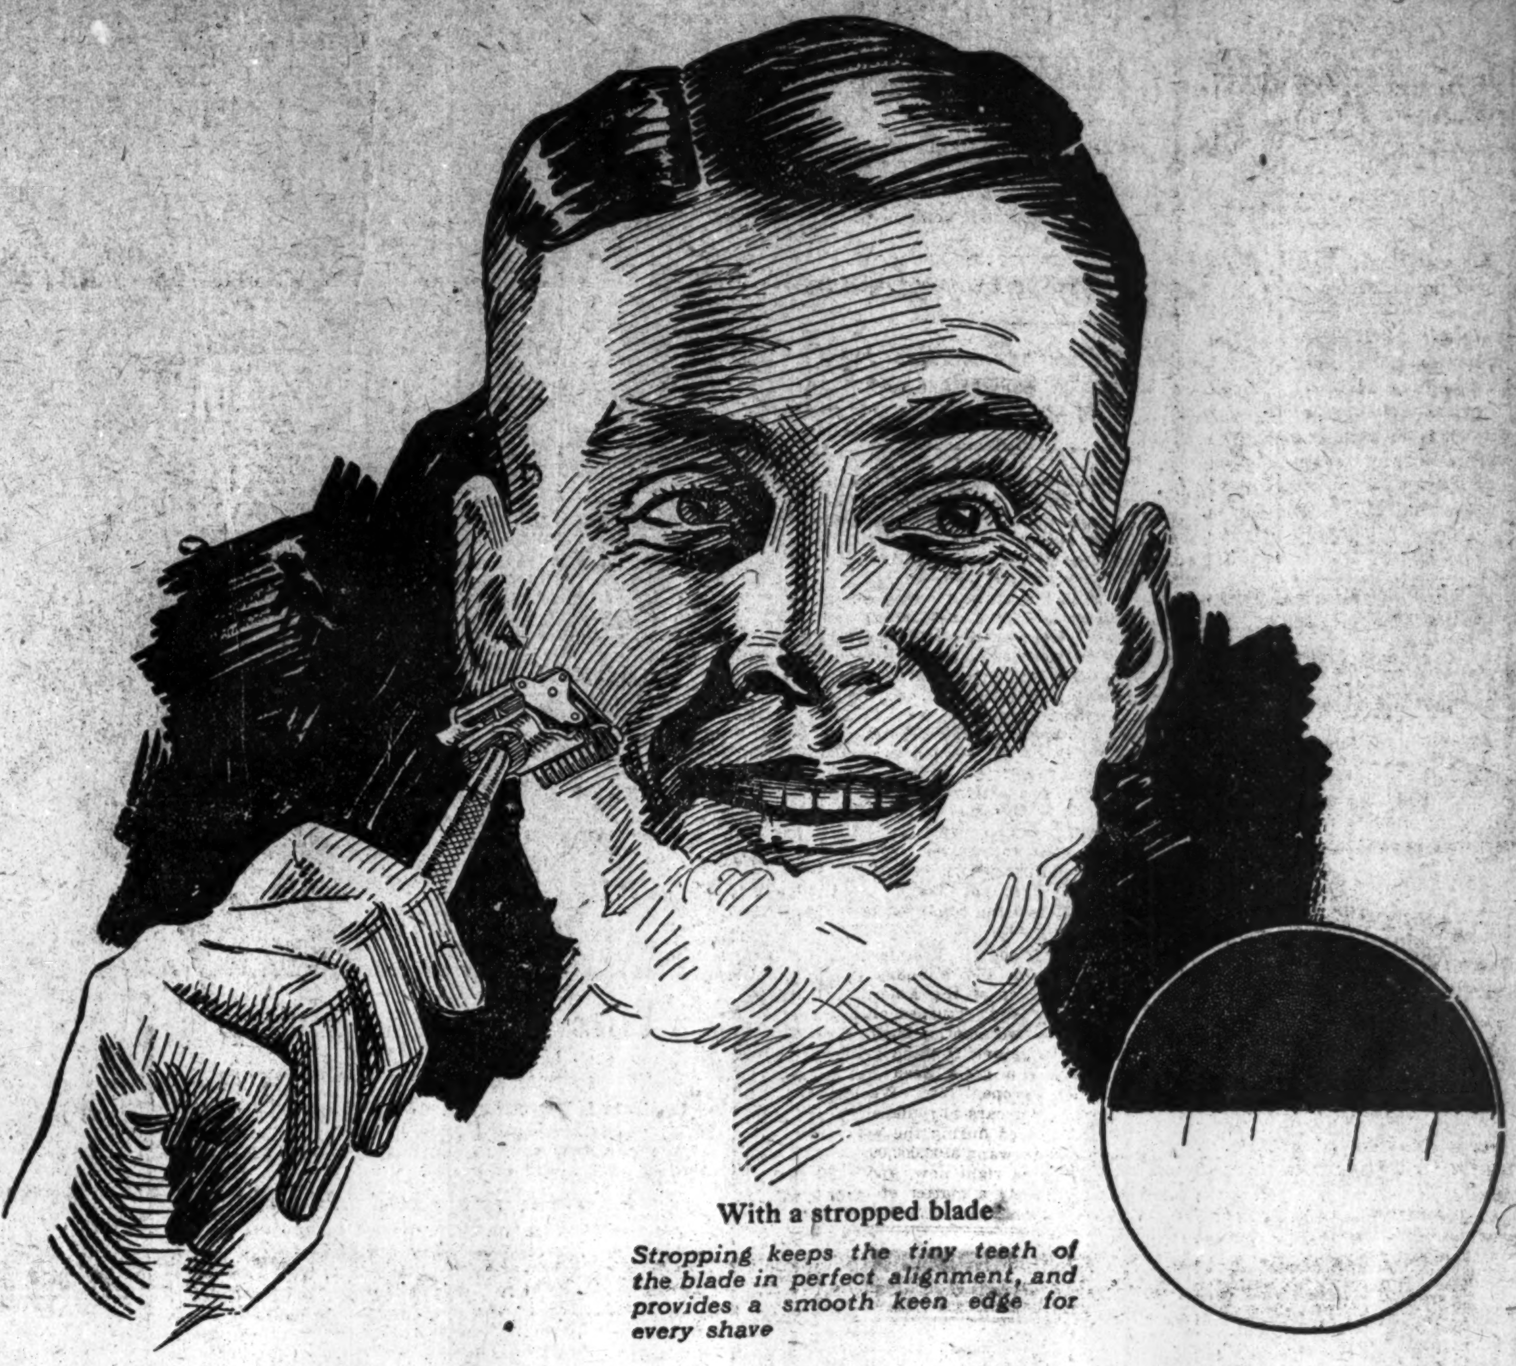
With an unstropped blade

Seen under a powerful magnifying glass, an unstropped razor blade, after use, looks like a saw edge



With a stropped blade

Stropping keeps the tiny teeth of the blade in perfect alignment, and provides a smooth keen edge for every shave

Can you average 42 good shaves from each razor blade?

HOW many satisfying shaves do you get from one razor blade before it begins to pull and scrape?

On the first day, when the blade is fresh, your shave is smooth and cool. But very soon your beard begins to dull the edge. Soon the pulling and scraping become unbearable. You throw the old blade away — slip a new blade in your razor — and begin the same round again.

The real reason that blades grow dull

Under a microscope, a razor edge is seen to consist of hundreds of tiny teeth. When these teeth are in alignment, the blade is sharp. But the very first shave with a new blade bends these teeth out of alignment, and the blade begins to lose its edge.

With most safety razors, there is no way to smooth the delicate teeth back into alignment. The original smooth, fine edge of the blade grows rougher with every shave.

Today there is one safety razor that gives you a fresh, keen edge for every shave. With the AutoStrop Razor you will get 500 cool, clean shaves from every dozen blades—an average of 42 satisfying shaves from each blade.

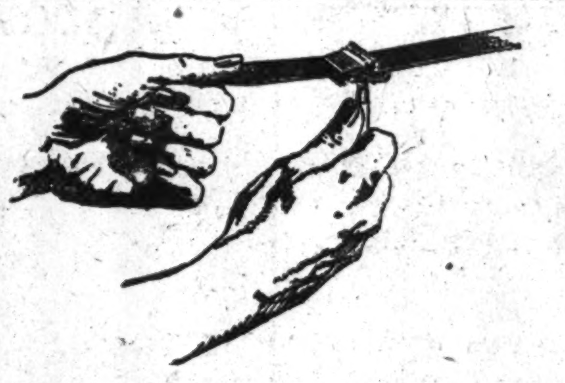
Like having a new blade for every shave

Built right into the frame of the AutoStrop Razor is a remarkably simple self-stropping device which keeps the blade keen-edged as when new—day after day. It smooths the tiny teeth of the blade into perfect alignment, and gives you a freshly-sharpened blade in a few seconds — without taking the razor apart or removing the blade.

All the comfort of a fresh blade every day—that's what the AutoStrop Razor means for you! It ends all the many shaving troubles due to dulled or dulling blades—"pull," aftersmart, tender spots on the face. Morning after morning it gives you a smooth, comfortable shave with a keen, freshly-stropped edge.

The AutoStrop Razor is the only safety razor that sharpens itself, shaves, and cleans without removing a single part. A touch of the thumb adjusts the blade for close, medium, or light shaving.



A few passes of the AutoStrop Razor over its specially treated strop put the original keen, fresh edge back on the blade day after day

Don't put up any longer with the scrape and smart of fast dulling blades. Begin tomorrow to get the comfort of a fresh, keen edge for every shave. Ask your dealer today about the AutoStrop Razor free trial plan.

MOVE TO ENLIGHTEN WAR RISK ELIGIBLES

State Bureau Will Conduct Educational Campaign Among Soldiers and Sailors.

NEED FOR MORE KNOWLEDGE

Many Entitled to Insurance Are Unfamiliar with Means to Obtain Benefits.

A campaign of education in matters pertaining to the Government War Risk insurance among soldiers and sailors in New York, as well as ex-service men, will be opened in this State at once according to the statement yesterday by R. Rexford Shaffer, a special representative of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance, who will have charge of the work.

A letter from R. G. Cholmondley-Jones, Director of the bureau, to Governor Smith, introducing Mr. Shaffer, stated that the latter had been "instructed to co-operate" with the State Adjutant General and Insurance Commissioner in the organization for active participation in the campaign for the "service and education in war risk matters," with members of the American Legion and other soldier organizations, and the American Red Cross and other social welfare bodies.

The letter continues:

"Mr. Shaffer has been instructed to visit such other cities and towns in New York as may be necessary in the carrying out of his duties, and will immediately establish his headquarters in the branch office of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance in the City of New York.

"The Director has felt for some time," said Mr. Shaffer yesterday, "that persons in this and other States interested in Government insurance on account of their taking out policies during the war needed some instruction in the value of the their policies and the benefits to be gained from them. A great many ex-service men it was found were dropping insurance who could well afford to carry it. Also a number of others who deserved compensation had received none, owing to their ignorance of how to go about getting it."

In this connection, Mr. Shaffer said that three army surgeons had been assigned to the office of the bureau for the purpose of examining men in the hospitals here who were entitled to insurance.

"Last week," he said, "the surgeons visited the hospital at Fox Hills and found twenty-two soldiers and two nurses, totally disabled in service, who should have received payment from the Government since early in the Fall, but who through ignorance had never even applied for aid. Their insurance will start at once. Other hospitals will be visited.

"There are a number of men who are asking every day innumerable questions about their policies. The majority of these are unable to get to Washington, and it is proposed to answer their questions as well as others in the course of the campaign."

Mr. Shaffer made public yesterday a statement by Director Jones in reply to the report that 114,570 men were now awaiting compensation due them on account of injuries. The statement says:

"The 114,570 claims do not represent claims made by wounded men. When a man is discharged from the service and when it is found that by his record he was disabled in action in line of duty, either by wounds or by disease, the bureau immediately sends to that man proper forms for him to execute and send back to the bureau, so that we can put him under an immediate physical examination, upon which is determined his disability. Thousands of men never respond to that communication. The bureau holds these cases as potential claims, believing the men eventually will make application for compensation. Until we are able to get replies from the men it is impossible for us to handle their cases.

"These potential claims were included in that 114,570 'disabled men now awaiting compensation.' This statement would lead people to believe that these claims are actual claims, and not potential claims, and that they have not been settled because of the neglect of the bureau. This is absolutely not a fact."

Girl's Present to Princess Mary.

Captain Robert Foster, whose daughter Mary presented to the Prince of Wales a bouquet of American beauty and Killarney roses on the battle cruiser Renown on the afternoon before his departure, said yesterday that the gold mesh purse for Princess Mary of England was presented to the Prince by Miss Anne Catherine Worden, the 11-year-old daughter of B. L. Worden of East Orange, general manager of the Submarine Boat Company. It had been credited erroneously to Miss Foster.

HUMANITARIANS TO MOVE.

Misha Appelbaum, leader of the Humanitarian Cult, announced yesterday that for lack of funds the organization would give up its four-story home at 266 West End Avenue and take smaller quarters at 254 West Seventy-fifth Street.

"I shall continue my interest in questions of public welfare," said Mr. Appelbaum, "especially along educational lines, and I hope to ally myself with a business producing something useful to education."

The league is to continue its weekly public meetings. The first this season will be held on Dec. 2.

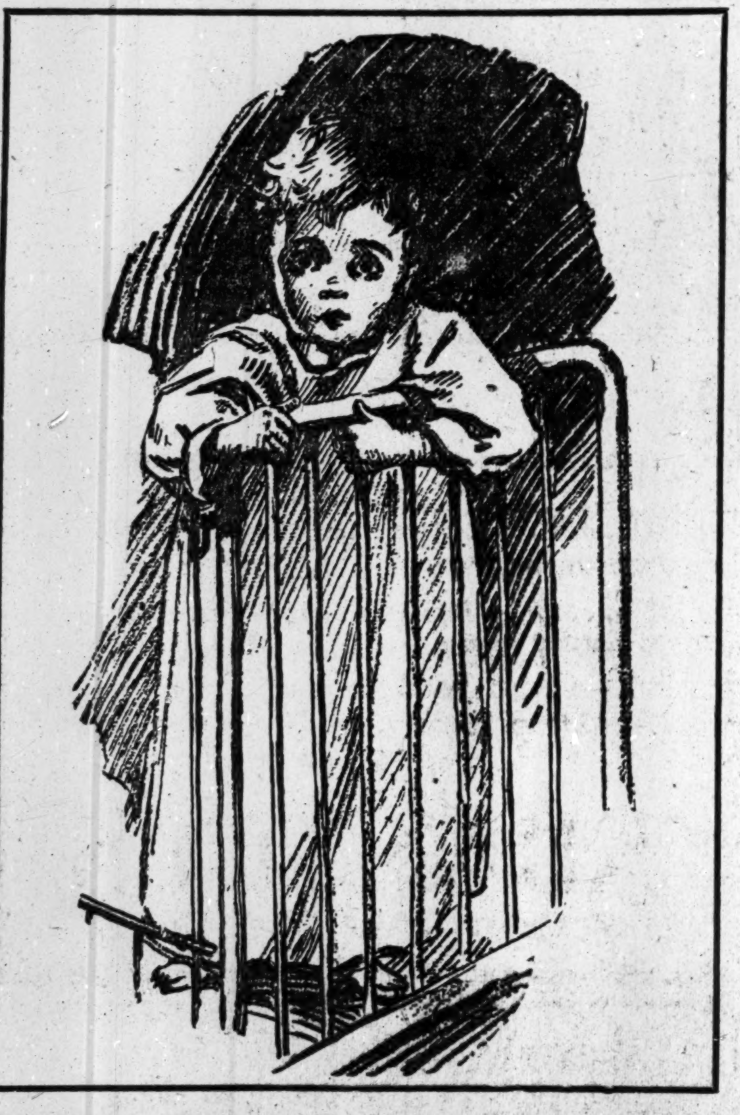
For How Many Days Will You Take Him On—At $3.50 a Day?



POOR little Joe; his legs are no good; he has never walked in his life.

But he will walk some day, if only he can spend days enough in the hospital.

The trouble is that it costs $3.50 to keep him in the hospital and the hospital is out of money.

Forty-six hospitals all agreed to give up their individual campaigns for funds this fall and unite in one appeal.

They needed three million dollars to carry on their work for the poor; they decided to ask us for only one million.

Clip the coupon now and send it with your check. Think of little Joe when you do it; think what it would mean to your own boy or girl if he or she were in Joe's place.

Perhaps you can give $5,000, perhaps $1,000. At least, you can take Joe on for a few days at $3.50 a day.

It will mean a real Thanksgiving for you.

And for Joe—you can imagine how he will feel—it will mean legs for him, and the power to work, and a chance to win out in the game.

FIFTY-TWO per cent of the folks who have to go to hospitals can't afford to pay. Last year the 46 non-municipal hospitals gave 1,250,000 days of free care. Will you underwrite a thousand of those days? or a hundred? or ten? or one? You'll have the satisfaction of knowing on Thanksgiving Day that some little Joe or Mary is to have a real chance in the world, because you had a heart.

THE SCREEN

Cecil B. De Mille's "Male and Female" came to the Rivoli yesterday.

When it was announced that Mr. De Mille would produce a screen version of "The Admirable Crichton," but that the title would be changed to the phrase from Genesis, i., 27, it was explained that the original title would cause confusion in the minds of exhibitors and the movie-going public. Many people, it was said, did not know how to pronounce "Crichton," and some were under the impression that he was a naval officer of high rank. These explanations, however, do not justify the dropping of the name of Barrie's play. It is justified by the simple fact that "Male and Female" is not "The Admirable Crichton" at all. It is not Barrie. It is not English. It is a typically American movie romance.

This should be borne in mind by those who know and love—and all who know must love—"The Admirable Crichton." Mr. De Mille has a right to borrow Barrie's story, alter and arrange it to suit his purpose, completely change its emphasis and character, and issue the product of his motion-picture mill under the title of "Male and Female." This is his right, and no one should deny it. In this connection it is important only that every one realize at the outset what Mr. De Mille has done, so that no one will waste time and perhaps spoil the picture for himself by expecting to find Barrie in it.

"Male and Female" should be considered simply as a motion picture. As such it has noteworthy merit. It is not, as its title, certain scenes and lettered labels seek to make it, a philosophic presentation of elemental human realities. It is a movie romance, and those who "go to the theatre to be entertained" need not be afraid of it. Of course, if any one is profoundly impressed by the solemn assurance that the best looking, most competent man and the prettiest girl of a party shipwrecked on an island will, in two years, gravitate toward each other, regardless of the fact that in England one was a butler and the other a "lady," for that one "Male and Female" is apocalyptic. But the same person should ponder deeply over the revelation that two and two make four.

The press notice sent out about the production states that "the shipwreck scene in which a real ship meets a real wreck; the Babylonian episode, where Crichton's dream that he was a King in Babylon and Lady Mary a Christian slave is visualized. * * * and the bathroom scene, are three features that stand out." This is true, and serves to indicate the nature of "Male and Female." Lavishly staged, skillfully directed, adequately acted, with a good story well told, it is a remarkable movie.

First credit for its excellence should go to Mr. De Mille, for without his ability behind the camera much of the material used might have been wasted. Those in the cast, however, deserve recognition for more than satisfactory work, especially Theodore Roberts, as Lord Loam; Gloria Swanson, as Lady Mary; Thomas Meighan, as Crichton; Lila Lee, as Tweeny; Raymond Hatton, as the Honorable Ernest Wooley, and Robert Cain, as Lord Brockelhurst.

Doing what many others have done before him, but better than most of them, Allan Dwan produces a screen melodrama for which Richard Harding Davis's "Soldiers of Fortune" provides the story. It is at the Capitol this week.

Most persons familiar with Mr. Davis's romantic story and Mr. Dwan's work will know what to expect, and they will not be disappointed. They may even be pleasantly surprised, for Mr. Dwan has never done better than in "Soldiers of Fortune" and in some particulars he has never done so well. Many directors could take lessons from him in pictorial composition, for with the same magnificent country, numbers of men and stage sets at their disposal they do not make pictures that the eye must admire. There are broad views and long vistas in "Soldiers of Fortune" that almost make any one, and do make some, exclaim out loud, and when it comes to presenting "action," the battle of armies or the love-making of one and one, Mr. Dwan is also competent. If "Soldiers of Fortune" were not so well done, it would be uninteresting, because in one version or another its story has often been told on the screen and it is not a story of any great enduring quality, but it is exceptionally well done—and, therefore, enjoyable.

Among those who help to make it enjoyable are Pauline Starke as the heroine, Norman Kerry as the adventurous engineer who operates a mine and interferes with a revolution in a South American republic, Wallace Beery as the revolutionist, Herald Lindsay as the wife of the republic's President, Anna Q. Nilsson as a most particular person even in movie-ized South America, Philo McCullough as an upright soldier of fortune, and Fred Kohler as the hero's dependable friend.

The acting of Anita Stewart, Conway Tearle and Hattie Delaro does most to make the screen version of Pinero's "The Mind-the-Paint Girl," at the Strand this week, interesting. The photoplay has another claim to distinction in the fact that it does not tumble absurdly into a conventional "happy ending." The ending may not be tragic, but it is far from gay. Its virtue is that it is consistent. The picture was directed by Wilfrid North.

Maurice Tourneur's adaptation of Joseph Conrad's "Victory" is at the Rialto this week, and "Fighting Cressy," with Blanche Sweet, comes to B. S. Moss's Broadway Theatre today.

The second Newman Traveltalk, "Occupied Germany," drew a large crowd to Carnegie Hall last night. It will be repeated this afternoon at the same place. Mr. Newman's subject next Sunday evening and Monday afternoon will be "Belgium Redeemed."

TO FLY FOR ACTORS' FUND.

Lieut. Maynard Will Drop Order for $5,000 Seat on City Today.

Lieutenant Belvin W. Maynard, leader in the transcontinental air race, will rise from Mineola at 2 o'clock this afternoon and fly over this city, carrying a number of orders signed by the managers of the campaign for the Actors' Fund, which he will drop among the crowds. These orders entitle their finders to seats at the benefit matinees to be given on Dec. 5. One of them will be a coupon for the $5,000 seat at the New Amsterdam bought by Jules Bache and turned over by him to Lieutenant Maynard.

Today's flight will be a final tryout of Lieutenant Maynard's specially built biplane, "Greyhound," before he starts tomorrow morning on a 1,600 mile non-stop journey to Dallas, Texas, from which city he expects to "hop" to San Diego, Cal.

ROSSINI'S OPERA ON DEC. 5.

The American Premiere of Merry "L'Italiana in Algeri."

Rossini's "L'Italiana in Algeri" is to be the Metropolitan's next opera production, announced as the American première of a merry classic by the composer of "The Barber of Seville." Mr. Papi has rehearsed the work, which is now scheduled by Mr. Gatti-Casazza for Friday of next week, Dec. 5. The opera-bouffe is in three acts, and its five scenes have been painted by James Fox and Frank Platzer from new designs by Willy Pogany.

The leading rôle, Isabelle, will be sung by Mme. Besanzoni, Elvira by Miss Sundelius, Zulma, Miss Howard; Lindoro, Charles Hackett; Taddeo, De Luca; Haly, Millo Picco, and Mustafa, Adam Didur.

Throng at Opera's First Concert.

There was a packed audience at the Metropolitan last evening for the first of the season's popular Sunday night concerts, a program of fifteen favorite airs, duets and quartets from operas of Puccini and Verdi, to which the printed bill said no encores would be allowed. Interest centred in two of last week's newcomers, Jeanne Gordon and Renato Zanelli, who were much applauded in selections for contralto and baritone from "The Masked Ball." Mabel Garrison was ill, and Kitty Beale sang the "Caro Nome" from "Rigoletto" while the others were Mmes. Sundelius and Romaine, Messrs. Hackett, Diaz and Mardones. Mr. Bamboschek conducted.

MANY SUNDAY CONCERTS.

Philharmonic and Orchestral Societies in Day's Events.

The Philharmonic Society opened a Sunday afternoon series of concerts at Carnegie Hall yesterday to a large attendance, including many standing. The symphony was Beethoven's Fifth, while after Tschaikowsky's "Romeo and Juliet" Mr. Stransky called his men to acknowledge with him the applause. There were also four excerpts from music dramas of Wagner.

The Orchestral Society, led by Max Jacobs, began its sixth year at Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon, assisted by Mildred Dilling in a fantasy for harp and orchestra by Dubois. Mozart's "Jupiter" symphony was the principal number, with others from Beethoven, Napravnik and Gluck.

Marcia Van Dresser, Rafaelo Diaz, and Eddy Brown appeared before a large audience at the Manhattan Opera House in the second matinee of Miss Dick's "American Concert Course." Miss Van Dresser sang songs by Car- [illegible] representative writers, and Mr. Brown's solos included a "Rondino" of his own.

George Reimherr, tenor, at the Princess Theatre yesterday, introduced new songs from the Japanese by Amy Ashmore Clark and Koscak Yamada, and others by Russian composers. At the Hippodrome, the People's Liberty Chorus assisted in a Thanksgiving festival, with speeches on Americanization, as elsewhere told. A Christmas festival by this chorus was announced for Dec. 23, at the 71st Regiment Armory.

MARION GREEN ARRIVES.

American Baritone Is to Appear in the Title Role of "Beaucaire."

Marion Green, the American baritone, who created the title rôle in the production of the musical version of "Beaucaire" at the Prince's Theatre, London, last Summer, where it had a successful run, arrived yesterday from England on the White Star liner Adriatic, accompanied by Harry Hardy, the stage manager, who brought the scenery, costumes and properties. They were met at the pier by Gilbert Miller, who will produce the operetta at the New Amsterdam Theatre shortly in conjunction with Klaw & Erlanger.

Mr. Green, who was almost unknown in the musical theatrical world before he appeared in "Beaucaire," said that the remainder of the cast were coming on the White Star liner Megantic, and among them was Lennox Pawle, who took the part of Frederick Bantison, the funny man of the operetta in London, and who made his first success with the New York public at Wallack's Theatre as the disguised city toastmaster in "Pomander Walk."

League Pays Tribute to Stage Today.

The National League for Woman's Service has arranged a meeting of women who were prominent in war work to be held in the large ballroom of the Hotel Plaza this afternoon. The gathering will honor the actors and actresses who gave their services during the war. Many women's clubs and organizations are co-operating in this testimonial to the men and women of the theatre. The chief speakers will be Job E. Hedges, the Rev. Dr. Karl Reiland, Major Ian Hay Beith, and Daniel Frohman. Among the guests of honor are nearly all the stars now playing in New York.

Catholic Actors Guild to Celebrate.

More than two hundred members of the Catholic Actors Guild of America will hold a Thanksgiving luncheon and entertainment at 12:30 this afternoon to celebrate the closing of the most prosperous and useful of their six years of existence. Among the guests who are expected are the Very Rev. Mgr. Dunn, Chancellor of the diocese; the Rev. Francis P. Duffy, former chaplain of the 165th; Ethel Barrymore, Wilton Lackaye, Patrick Francis Murphy, and Augustus Thomas.

THE TREATY AT THE POLLS.

Senator Lodge wants the people to "see," "understand," "think of" the reservations, the "purely American" reservations; in short, the purely Republican denaturing of the Peace Treaty. In every household, farm, shop, and factory he sees the people reading and studying the reservations, and he has no doubt about the people's verdict. It is honest in Mr. Lodge to admit by clear implication that his party has made a great international question and crisis a matter of campaign literature and material.

If the prosperity and welfare of the country instead of mere politics were the Republican policy, the Republican course on the Treaty would have been the exact reverse of what it has been. Abroad and at home business men want immediate ratification. They see in it the condition precedent of commercial and industrial rehabilitation, of the stabilization of exchange, of the financing of foreign trade.

In what American Chamber of Commerce, in what association of men of business, will Mr. Lodge find a majority for his wrecking of the Treaty? More than that, in how many States will he find prevailing that political view to which he appeals? In his own State his face was saved by a politeness pitiless to his course, to him so "American," in regard to the League of Nations. Is it Maine or Rhode Island that is more sympathetic to that course? In how many States west of the Mississippi will the people to whom he appeals approve him? What did Senator Hiram Johnson accomplish in California by his motions and emotions? In the Far and the Middle West is the people's opinion of the official Republican attitude flattering to Mr. Lodge?

Mr. Lodge is perfectly sincere, no doubt, in his expressed belief that the people will and do sustain the Republican Senate majority. Yet is there any reason for imagining that the American people do not as a whole desire the ratification of the treaty of peace, allowing, of course, nondestructive, honest expository interpretations, not because they are necessary, but as a concession to honest belief in that necessity?

THE LATEST BOMB PLOT.

Following on the heels of the discovery in Philadelphia of a plot to murder officials all over the country by sending them bombs at Christmas comes the discovery of a less general conspiracy to murder three officials in this city. The country-wide conspiracy was marked by the particularly fiendish idea of sending the bombs as Christmas packages, gay with holly and ribbon. There does not seem to have been any such embroidery of deviltry in the plot against the three New Yorkers.

The plot, it is said, though against New York men, originated in a Western city. This is quite in accordance with the later policy of the enemies of society. They are aware that the local police mind in any city does not, as a rule, go beyond its own terrain, and that valuable time is sure to be lost in trying to find clues to local plotters instead of going north, south, or west. All the recent bomb plots have been managed in such a fashion as to meet this foible of the police mind, a foible not so much to be blamed, since it comes from long experience of such crimes. A force that has been trained for life to hunt for local murderers is not apt to change its habit in a trice, and the anarchic elements, knowing that fact, make use of it.

A closer co-ordination between the police of different cities is needed, and they should be taught everywhere to accept at once the theory that an anarchist murder was engineered from some other place. At least they should allow that theory to hold equal place in their minds with the theory that it was planned and carried out at home. The Federal agents, less given to the local theory, have already shown perspicacity in reckoning with the probability. In this case the discovery of the New York bomb plot seems to have come from the confession of some of the Reds rounded up here in recent raids, a sufficient answer to those who have denounced these raids as useless and unlawful. In dealing with organized murderers, and in trying to save valuable lives, the widest possible latitude should be given to the letter of the law. It was from such a confession that the leaders of the Centralia slaughter were identified; for the I. W. W. seems always to have in its ranks men who are bold enough in action, but cowards and informers in a cell.

THE OUTLOOK FOR COAL.

Coal is being burned much faster than it is being mined, while the debate about wage payments proceeds leisurely. Taking the side of the country's consumers rather than that of the disputants, the proper course would be to dig coal during the debate, the findings to be retroactive. There is no reason why either side should object to that, and the side which objected would be prejudiced before the public. At the end of last week the miners rejected three proposals of arbitration. One was that the matter should be left to the President, who has been known to go to extremes for the sake of workers' interests. Another proposal was that the President should appoint arbitrators to sit with the miners and operators, each to appoint equal numbers. The third proposal was that arbitrators selected by the miners and operators should themselves select the members to decide between them.

It is more permissible to find fault with the details of the results of arbitration than to find fault with the principle of arbitration. Almost always arbitrations result in giving something to the party which makes arbitration necessary, and therefore is disadvantageous to the payers of wages as a rule, since strikes are more frequent than lockouts. When labor refuses arbitration it therefore puts itself in an undesirable position toward the public, since the offer of arbitration is itself an admission that the strike has been successful to that degree, irrespective of the merits. As the matter was left on Saturday there was nothing pending. All proposals had been rejected, from whatever source, including Secretary Wilson's figures of the increased cost of living to which wages should be raised. Anybody with a slate and pencil can produce figures, but the only way to produce conviction in the figures is to base a course of action on them. The miners have done that by going without their wages. The operators have done that by foregoing profits they might have made. The blemish on these proofs of good faith is that both seek to enlarge wages and profits by methods of domination. On that comparison the operators gain, because they are willing to proceed and abide by disinterested judgment on the merits, whereas the miners are resolved to be judges of their own interests and to enforce their judgment by power. They are even so high-handed that on Saturday they said they were tired of waiting for a settlement. Others than the miners are even more tired, particularly those who are in no way to blame for the controversy, and who are sure to suffer by whatever either side gains.

THE RAILWAY LEGISLATION.

Upon behalf of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee of the House, Representative Schuyler Merritt explained the purposes of the Esch bill. It will be remembered that this bill was passed with knowledge of the Senate or Cummins bill, and that the antagonism between the measures creates a blockade which can be broken only by choice between them in accord with public opinion. Senator Cummins has been quoted as saying that the Esch bill "has no chance of survival," and that the Senate intends to substitute its bill for the Esch bill. The Senator is so in love with his own way of preventing or punishing strikes that he expects to offer it to the Senate if its own committee will not accept it, and in that case will try to extend it to "all other basic "industries, including fuel, iron and "steel, foodstuffs, lumber and other "building materials, and clothing." Inasmuch as punitive and compulsory methods of regulating the labor of multitudes have often been tried and never have fully succeeded, it is safe to say that the outlook now is not bright. The specific railway questions are numerous enough and difficult enough to make it inexpedient to entangle them with the labor problem, which would better be treated on principles more applicable to it than to the merely financial questions of the railways. Representative Merritt explains that the House committee preferred a mild form of arbitration, but that the House substituted a proposal even more indulgent toward labor. As the matter stands in the Esch bill, railway labor questions must be arbitrated if labor wishes it, and cannot be arbitrated if labor refuses consent. Moreover, the present wage level cannot be altered without labor's consent. That confirms the obnoxious Adamson act and makes it worse. The House proposal is as much too lenient to labor as the Cummins bill is too punitive. Representative Merritt will carry the country with him in condemning both bills in that respect.

Respecting the finances of the roads, the Representative says that the committee felt compelled to take into consideration that the roads were taken over by the Government against their wish, and were administered contrary to their opinions and interests for the good of the country. The least the Government should do, in the opinion of the committee, would be to fund the debts incurred for the roads by the Government. But the House modified the committee's proposal in a manner as severe toward the companies as the House had been lenient toward labor. Instead of paying the rental the Government had promised, debits and credits were set off, and only the balance was funded. That may be good enough accounting, but it lacks something of generosity, if not of good faith, toward those looking to the Government's agreed rental as the source of payment of the railways' obligations in interest and dividends. The House seemed to be of the opinion that the rich could forego what is coming to them, and that railway finance could be managed as loosely as the Government's. Here, again, the country will sustain the committee against the House. Many millions more than the total of the railway workers would miss the dividend and interest payments by the railways, if their reduction were made necessary. The payments are not made to a tithe of them directly, but come from the fiduciary institutions of the country, the insurance companies and others. The depreciation of railway credit already is so severe that the companies holding the obligations of the railways are obliged to value them in an arbitrary manner to maintain their own credit. It is not alarmist to say that this situation already has continued too long.

Representative Merritt made an instructive comparison of the House and Senate proposals respecting the rate question. The Cummins bill proposes to create a commission to advise—or instruct?—the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the rates are not to be made with reference to the finances of the companies, but to provide something like a guarantee of the total earnings for a region, above which limit the earnings are to be taken from the companies and allocated to sundry uses. The theory of the House bill is that the commission has seen the light, as the House committee has, and that the commission has power enough, and now has the disposition, to err on the side of liberality to the companies in the present emergency. In the way of the facilitation of commerce, apart from the rate question, the House proposes to authorize much of what the law has hitherto forbidden in the way of "combinations for the restraint of trade" in such reasonable ways as actually to increase it.

It is sinking into the country's perception and appreciation that what is done for the railways is done for the country itself. It is cruelty to the country to compel the companies to go into the credit market in their present low finances to borrow what the Government owes them on a pledge, which is all the more binding because it was made in the cause of patriotism and without collateral.

POLAND AND GALICIA.

The Peace Conference has decided to give Poland a twenty-five-year mandate over Eastern Galicia, at the end of which time the disposition to be made of the territory is to be determined by the League of Nations. Paris observers see in the form of the decision evident indication that if the Polish Government, after a quarter of a century, is satisfactory to the bulk of the population, the territory is to belong to Poland as it did throughout almost all Polish history until the partitions. In the meantime, there will apparently be a considerable degree of autonomy under a federal tie with Poland.

The majority of the population of Galicia is Polish—about 60 per cent. by the last Austrian statistics—but the Poles, while in an overwhelming majority in the western half of the province, are heavily outnumbered east of the River San. Here they are a majority in Lemberg and some other cities, but the vast bulk of the rural population is Ruthenian, which is more or less the same as Ukrainian. The bitter hostility between the two races, notorious during the years of peace, broke out into open war early this year, and the Polish troops conquered the territory after sharp fighting.

But the decision of the Conference does not depend for its principal sanction on the military situation any more than on the historic connection of all Galicia with Poland. These factors entered into it, beyond doubt; but the decisive cause was something else. The decision is to be read as a vote of confidence for the Polish Government. As to the real force of Ukrainian nationalism, and its influence in Galicia, there is much dispute. It was undoubtedly favored by Berlin and Vienna, but this alone does not condemn it, since Berlin and Vienna on occasion favored Polish movements against Russia during the war. However, German influence was stronger among Ukrainians than in Poland, where Pilsudski and Haller in succession awoke to the real meaning of German designs in time to keep the Poles from unhappy entanglements. The Ukraine Republic which first appeared at Brest-Litovsk was under German domination, though not without much popular dissatisfaction and considerable violence, until the end of the war.

What happened before November, 1918, is less important in this affair than what has happened since. The Poles set to work with a remarkable display of patriotic effort to rebuild their country. There are some undesirable elements in Polish policy, as in the policy of most countries, but in the main the ideals of the Polish Government have been good ones, and it has made excellent progress toward their realization. Poland has in the past year built up a stable Government, which as a Government has the confidence of the people no matter what changes in party control may occur. That the Polish armies have proved their military capacity by brilliant campaigns against the Bolsheviki is important, but less important than the demonstration that the Poles are eminently capable of self-government.

Meanwhile the various Ukrainian factions have been unable to establish any substantial Government which can be trusted to hold a country of considerable strategic importance. While Petlura is at war with Denikin and the Bolsheviki and almost everybody else, there is something approaching anarchy in most of the Ukrainian territories. Ukrainian nationalism may eventually become a living thing, either by itself or in a federal Russia; but it has failed under the strain of the past year. That was a great strain, and it is no terrible disgrace to have been unable to endure it; but the Poles did endure it. They can bring the reign of law and order back to Eastern Galicia; that their occupation is for the present in the form of a mandate is an indication that the other Powers are disposed to remind the Poles that this is a trust to be justified by faithful performance. That the performance will be faithful, and the accomplishment beneficial to Galicia as well as to Poland, seems highly probable.

By this decision the Conference does something more to create a strong Poland, which as international affairs stand today must be the principal guarantee of the security of Eastern Europe. But mere disposition of territory by the Conference, whether before or after military occupation, would not make a strong Poland. What has made a strong Poland, and seems likely to preserve it, is the patriotism and energy which the Polish people have displayed in the critical year.

A CONSTITUTION FOR EGYPT.

Field Marshal Allenby, British High Commissioner in Egypt, makes an announcement of great international interest and importance. The British Government will send to Egypt a mission which, in consultation with the Sultan and his Ministers, will provide a constitution for that country. The details will have to be worked out on the spot. What is clear is that the British Government is seeking to let the Egyptians have a constitution essentially made by themselves and for themselves.

The entrance of Great Britain into Egypt and the great improving constructive work that she has done there are known to everybody. There is much loose talk about "self-determination," often an illusive, sometimes a dangerous, phrase. No amount of well-meaning or ill-meaning sentimentality can alter the essential facts in regard to the relation of Great Britain and Egypt. Great Britain will not leave Egypt until she is ready to give up the Suez Canal. Those of us who remember the little peculiarities of Pasha finance know that if the Egyptians are left to themselves their country will become bankrupt. Great Britain saved Egypt from bankruptcy. What is more and most of all, Egypt cannot protect herself against the Sudan. The moment the English leave there will be another Mahdist irruption. The security and the prosperity of Egypt depend upon British rule. While it is only the intellectuals, a small class of the nation, who have any interest in the passionate political agitation and propaganda going on there, it is true, of course, that the peasants, the great majority of the population, are not friendly to British rule. Yet, the administration of Egypt is a native administration. The village, the district, the province are administered by Egyptians. A roaming British Inspector or two and a British adviser to the Ministry represent the British power. The British adviser has or can have his way about great matters; but the peasant is subject in all matters immediately affecting his interests and daily existence to Egyptians.

The intellectuals have been able to get hold of the peasantry. Apparently the revolutionary movement had the sympathy of all classes. Thus the position of Great Britain, the economic beneficial results of whose rule in Egypt are obvious and undeniable, is unpopular and unfortunate. Whatever concessions in the way of a constitution are made to the desires of a class that aches to revive its old extortion and oppressions, it is for the commercial interest of all nations trading with Egypt, and it is for the interest of the Egyptians themselves unless financial ruin and the Mahdist tyranny and madness are to come upon them again, that no constitution granted by the British shall impair the honest and humane rule which has made the Egyptians better off than they had been for thousands of years. It is not for the good of the majority of Egyptians or for the good of the world that the Egyptian intellectuals should be allowed to bring on again the old abuses and invite destruction from the Sudan.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Hardships, Mental and Physical.

A phase of Bolshevism, or rather a consequence of it, that has not yet received deserved attention was admirably described in the Magazine Section of The Sunday Times yesterday by J. V. Hessen, a Russian publicist and editor who escaped recently from Petrograd after long, or what seemed long, experience of life under a dictatorship that pretends to be proletarian.

Evidently the writer of the article is well read in modern psychology, and well understands the rôle in human activities played by what, not very happily, is called the subconscious mind. That was shown by the fact that to it he ascribed no small part of the mental and bodily exhaustion that has been observed in those who have had to endure the despotism established by Lenin and his confederates. The physical hardships endured by all not in the new ruling class, or in its armies of soldiers or bureaucrats, are terrible enough, but even worse and more wearing on the nerves is the complete change from living conditions to which humanity has adjusted itself in the slow upward climb through the centuries.

The Russian not a member of the favored minority finds himself suddenly obliged constantly to do by the conscious expenditure of nervous energy a hundred or a thousand things which he has been accustomed to relegate to the unconscious. Nothing any more is habitual and therefore so easy that it seems to do itself. The getting of daily food requires so much of thought and exertion that it assumes an enormous and overwhelming importance. To go to bed is not to enter upon a period of calm and recuperation, but to lie awake listening for the poundings on the door that herald the domiciliary search, the arrest, and the march to jail that may be the event of any night. All thought moves in unfamiliar channels and in consequence is laborious and tiring, the end of no day can be foreseen, and sooner or later the "anxiety neurosis" of the psychologists appears in one or another of its innumerable forms.

A Reducing of Labor to Slavery.

Such is the experience and such the fate of the "bourgeoisie" and of members of the professional classes in the Russia of today. The lot of the working people—the supposed beneficiaries of the new system—is different, but it would be considered no more easily tolerable by the "labor" of other lands—not even by that small part of "labor" that has been deluded into supporting Bolshevism and into attempting its extension to other lands.

As a matter of fact, the civilian worker under the Communist régime is subjected to a discipline even sterner than that which the "Red" armies are now under. It makes him a slave to masters who do not hesitate to tell him what he must do, and where, or to punish disobedience with death inflicted in most summary fashion. Striking is not allowed. If a strike is attempted, the leaders are seized and taken away. They are never seen again, and though no reports of trial and execution are made nobody doubts what has happened to them.

Ingenious methods of concealing the identity of such leaders have been devised, but, says a British secret agent who has been studying Bolshevism in Petrograd, "it finally, in most cases, is ferreted out, and some morning the strikers awake to find their leader gone. Without any organization, they are ineffective and generally go back to work in worse conditions than when they left."

Insurance Denied for Cause.

Quite the queerest outcome of prohibition is the determination of the insurance companies that they cannot afford any longer to permit specific mention in their policies of wines and liquors accumulated and held in stock by individual owners in order to mitigate the dryness of the times or to defer the awful day of total desiccation. Experience, it seems, has taught these companies that the theft of such stores has become so frequent that there is no possibility of profit in such insurance, and the strong implication is that it is too much to expect, human nature being what it is, that the temptation which surrounds these necessarily rather ill-guarded treasures should be resisted. In other words, they are sure to be stolen by somebody, for either consumption or sale, and so they constitute a "risk" as bad as certain buildings of the firetrap order, on which no insurance company will take chances at any price. It is intimated, too, that the stealing of these stores is often what the police call an "inside job," against which there is practically no protection at all, so far as an insurance company is concerned.

The plausibility of these statements or accusations must be admitted, for much value in small extension and conveniently portable lies in almost any of the departed or departing variants of potable alcohol. Always they have tended to create moral confusion, and it is not surprising that now they do it more than ever. There is reason for fear, however, that this determination of the insurance companies will have one deplorable effect—it will make the owners of the too precious stores "save" them by drinking them in passionate and violent haste.

An Abandoned Plan Tried Again.

There is interest in the report that the Farmans, the well-known French builders of airplanes, are making them for commercial use with the propellers behind the planes instead of in front of them. This is a return to the method of construction and propulsion used by the Wrights in their first machines—the machines that made the dreams of innumerable ages a reality at last and put to confusion the Wise Ones who were so sure that for man flight was a demonstrable impossibility. It was not long before the inventors of the airplane abandoned the "pusher" type, and practically all of their imitators, too, have built "pullers." There were reasons for the change, and the propellers in front certainly have justified their placing. They have their obvious disadvantages there, and the aviator and his passengers would be glad if the whirling vanes and their hurricane blast of air could be relegated to the rear. The steering of a pushed machine, however, can hardly be as easy as that of one pulled.

WELFARE OF CHINA

Will Be Found Through Carrying Out the League Plan.

Baltimore, Nov. 20, 1919.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Reservations to the treaty of peace will be legally inoperative unless the assent of the United States to the treaty be conditioned on their acceptance by our fellow-signatories. So conditioned, they operate as a change of the treaty. And, since binding changes in a contract may not be made by one party alone, it follows that the treaty must then go back to all the signatories for action on the changes. Among these signatories is Germany, which, now that our army is disbanded, would be foolish not to take advantage of the situation to get better terms.

When this fact is faced squarely it becomes apparent that the proper course for us is to ratify the treaty as it is and seek modifications where necessary through subsequent amendment. The Entente powers are genuinely grateful to America for her timely aid in the war, and will probably do in this respect what we ask of them. Gentlemanly expression of a wish by resolution of Congress should be quite as effective as a hectoring attitude. Should it not, we may always fall back on the right to withdraw from the League on two years' notice.

So much from the standpoint of those persons who think that the interests of the United States are endangered by the treaty as it stands.

But are our interests endangered by it? One of the provisions vociferously declaimed against is that relating to the disposition of Shantung. Would we either advance our own interests or befriend China by rejecting the treaty on account of it?

From the standpoint of self-interest it is important for us to establish the policy of the "open door" in China—in every part of China, including the areas already given over to foreign jurisdiction. From the standpoint of altruism we are concerned in the ultimate welfare of China. Are the interests of the United States in China as thus expressed, both the selfish and the altruistic, likely to be advanced best under the treaty or without the treaty?

We have witnessed the dismemberment of China going on piecemeal for many years. That happened while China was still under a Government which succeeded fairly well in maintaining peaceful conditions within the country. Today we behold China distracted by civil war under a Government which is practically without authority even over its own followers. In the absence of a league are we not certain, under such conditions, to see the dismemberment of China take place wholesale, with the additional chances of war between outside powers over the spoils? Under a League of Nations, at least the process of dismemberment may be successfully arrested. And if, with the aid of the League, China should succeed in establishing orderly Government throughout the land, it is not unreasonable to hope that even France and England, as well as Japan, will give back to China that which they have taken from her.

Japan's acts in China have simply followed the path mapped out for her by European powers. It was a régime of special interests that she found in China and she has been operating merely in harmony with the principles of that system. If Japan, as China's nearest neighbor, finds herself being shut out by foreign spheres of influence and by foreign possessions of the soil of China, is it not natural that she should seek to offset this disadvantage by acquiring similar exclusive rights herself?

That system is precisely what the League is designed to change. Under a League we may look forward confidently to equality of opportunity for all nations not only in backward regions administered under mandates but likewise in all spheres of influence, possessions, and such colonies as are not actually self-governing and which therefore determine their own trade policy. A true "open door" in China, not only in respect of trade but likewise of concessions for the exploitation of her resources, will at once lessen the motive for acquiring physical possession of her territory. Japan, with all the advantages arising from proximity, facility in acquiring the language, and kinship of race and color, should be ready to welcome an era of a fair field and no favors there. In other words, under a League the world may justly ask of Japan that which it cannot ask with good grace under the present régime. For the first time in decades China has a chance, under the League, not only to save herself from further dismemberment but to be assisted to her feet in a way which will benefit China herself and all who take part in the great work.

In one sense China carried democracy ages ago, further than any others of us have carried it; self-government was extended down to the family with the consequence that order is habitually maintained not by police, constabulary, and courts, but by observance of family tradition and the moral law. With this advantage she should be able, under the aegis of the League, to rear the structure of a superior government; whereas, without the League, she is certain to be browbeaten and despoiled. Any temporary injustice suffered by the terms of the treaty is as nothing compared to the immense vista of possibilities which will open up before her if the United States makes the League of Nations a substantial and promising reality by adhering to the treaty.

THEODORE MARBURG.

FULL MOON.

The sleeping garden lay
  In a silver dress,
And great gray owls flew low
  With a swift caress
To the tall white lilies'
  Saintly loveliness.

Ash-gray the roses peered
  O'er her window-sill;
Straight flared her candle-flame
  In a night so still
She heard a far-off clock
  Chiming clear and chill.

She heard the placid sea
  On the beach below,
Lapping, lapping softly,
  Crawling, crawling slow;
While on the glitt'ring lawn
  Hares leaped to and fro.

Sudden, the poplar trees
  Gave a dreaming sigh,
Shaking their sparkling leaves
  In the cloudless sky;
A waking cock crowed shrill—

NEW POLISH RELIEF PLAN.

Committee to Distribute Supplies from America by Motor Trucks.

The distribution of food and clothing sent from America, quickly and safely throughout Poland, by the establishment of an organization similar to a regularly organized express company, is planned by the Joint Distribution Committee, which disburses relief for the American Jewish Relief Committee and other Jewish relief agencies.

The plan calls for a central office in Warsaw, with branches in seventeen large Polish cities, including Siedlitz, Vilna, Krakow, Minsk, Pinsk and Brest-Litovsk. With sixty trucks flying the American flag it is planned to cover territory not reached by the railroads. It is estimated that on the basis of forty pounds to a package 140,000 parcels could be distributed monthly.

Immediate action on the part of France, England and America is necessary to save the Polish situation, according to J. A. Morehead, President of Roanoke College and Chairman of the Lutheran Commission to Europe, in a statement issued yesterday by the Lutheran Bureau of the National Lutheran Council.

"Poland faces the Winter," said Dr. Morehead, "with her army insufficiently equipped with necessary clothing. Because of the lack of raw materials most of the factories are idle with the consequent problems of unemployment. The stream of refugees unceasingly flows into the country. Prices are soaring and the exchange value of the Polish mark correspondingly suffers. The lack of the fundamental necessities of coal, food and clothing not only introduces the spectre of famine but presages internal Bolshevism and revolution."

N. Y. U. TO RAISE $6,000,000.

Drive for New Buildings and Endowment to Start Next Month.

New York University next month will begin a campaign for an endowment fund of $6,000,000. In making the announcement, Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown said $2,000,000 would be used to increase the pay of members of the teaching staff and $1,600,000 to pay off the floating indebtedness. A new building program also is proposed.

"The needs of New York University are the needs of the city," said Chancellor Brown. "One-fourth of the young men and women who seek higher education in the city's institutions find it at this university. If additional financial support is withheld, students must carry on their work in antiquated buildings and under faculties forced down, in course of time, to a standard of mediocrity. The curriculum must be pared down to a minimum and the city must see the university forego an ambition to be worthy of the honor."

It is intended to remodel and re-equip the Washington Square building and to devote it entirely to university uses. This work, with a new building for the School of Applied Science and new gymnasiums at University Heights and Washington Square, will cost about $900,000. About $1,800,000 will provide endowments for the School of Applied Science, the College of Arts and Pure Science, Washington Square College, the School of Commerce, Accounts and Finance, the College of Medicine, and the Veterinary College.

GIVES TUBERCULOSIS DATA.

Red Cross Estimates There Are 125,000 Cases in City.

Figures from Health Department records, showing how tuberculosis affects various sections of the city, were made public yesterday by the Greater New York Red Cross Christmas Seal Committee, which is engaged in an intensive campaign against the disease.

The total estimated cases in the city, June 30, was 125,000, and the actual reported cases 29,131. Deaths from the disease totaled 10,097 last year.

A table of registered cases in the clinical districts of Manhattan shows the largest number in the Harlem district, from Ninety-ninth Street to the Harlem River, which had 3,206, while the smallest number, 1,309, was registered in the Chelsea district, from Fourteenth to Forty-second Streets west of Fourth Avenue. There were 2,443 "floating" registered cases, 3,366 in the two clinical districts of the Bronx; 6,777 and 91 "floating" in the four clinical districts of Brooklyn and 279 in Staten Island.

MADRID STILL LACKS BREAD.

Confectioners Join Striking Bakers —Meat Shortage Expected.

MADRID, Nov. 22.—This city is still without bread, except that supplied by the military and the few pounds that small bakeshops can turn out, as the result of the bakers' strike. Large hotels are fortunate in having their own bakeries, and as a result their restaurant business is largely increased. Butchers announce that, owing to a shortage of supplies throughout the country, Madrid may soon be without its usual plentiful supply of meat.

Confectioners and candy makers joined the striking bakers today. Some porters were attacked while delivering bread, and a few shops were stormed. The output of bread was increased during the day to 150,000 kilograms, which includes supplies received from the military.

CARRIES FOOD TO ARMENIA.

The Beatrice Sails with Cargo of Supplies for the Starving.

The Near East Relief steamship Beatrice sailed yesterday from Pier 22, Brooklyn, for Constantinople with her holds filled with clothing, food, medicines, and hospital equipment for the starving in Armenia.

It is said there are 800,000 suffering from famine and pestilence. The cargo of the Beatrice is consigned to Colonel William N. Haskell, U. S. A., who is in charge of Near East affairs for the Allies at Constantinople.

LONGER WORKDAY IN MINES.

German Workmen Volunteer to Increase Their Output.

BERLIN, Nov. 22.—During a conference of Government officials today, Minister of Finance Erzberger announced that the coal miners in the Ruhr district had volunteered to introduce a seventh shift in the week's schedule in order to increase the output.

Reports coming in from various districts in Germany indicate improvement in the labor situation. In Mecklenburg, the railway repair shop workers insisted upon working last Wednesday, which was an official religious holiday. In the vicinity of Dortmund, twelve out of nineteen smokestacks which were idle six weeks ago now give indications that the plants are in full operation.

"CORNELL FACES DISASTER"

Committee Says Income Will Not Maintain 60 Per Cent. of Faculty.

The Cornell University Endowment Campaign Committee for New York, 511 Fifth Avenue, last night announced a joint call for "money and service" to each of the 4,000 Cornell graduates in the district. Beginning today, the campaign for a $10,000,000 endowment fund will go on a new basis, all alumni being called upon to contribute.

"Bluntly, Cornell University faces disaster," says the appeal. "Her income is not sufficient to maintain properly more than 60 per cent. of the Faculty. There are no existing means of increasing her income."

SOCIETY OF ADLER ATTACKED BY RABBI

Ethical Culture a "Synagogue Without a God," Says Dr. Schulman.

AMERICA WILL CRUSH REDS

Sees Sign That Nation Is Awake to Its Danger—Baptist Preacher Attacks Theatre.

For the first time in the history of American Judaism, a recognized leader of the reform movement, Dr. Samuel Schulman, rabbi of Temple Beth-El, Fifth Avenue and Seventy-sixth Street, yesterday attacked the Ethical Culture Society, of which Dr. Felix Adler is the founder.

Dr. Schulman in "Our America," his Thanksgiving sermon, termed the society, "a synagogue without a God." The sermon was inspired by a recently published book, with the same title as the sermon, and written by Waldo Frank.

"It is a refreshing revelation to see this young American Jew," the rabbi said, "get under the skin of the real significance of the Ethical Culture movement, and what it means for the Jew. He hesitates not to call it a form of 'degenerate Judaism.' I call it a synagogue without a God.

"He comes to close quarters with ethical culture when he says that Adler proceeded to 'evolve an adulterate religion.' He avoided the concepts of God and Godhood. He declared faith to be of 'no importance.' He gave them a religion that would 'bring them no preoccupation to conflict with their affairs, which would fit them more aptly for the life of respectable material dominion.' He freed them from their past. And our author, with biting sarcasm, says, 'The Society of Ethical Culture met their problem. It was free, not only of the suppressed demands of the Jewish soul, but even of the odium of the Jewish name.'

"And Frank is right. For to bear the Jewish name and to stand for the Jewish priestly service to God and Godhood means to pay a price which the world is still exacting. To drop the name and rôle of the Jew in history is the easier way. And the easiest way is never the noblest way."

State Must Crush Radicalism.

"When the radical proceeds to revolutionary action," said Dr. Schulman at another point, "the State in self-defense must meet and crush him. When he contents himself with thought we simply say that his thought is too narrow and petty to span the meaning of America.

"Two virtues our country just now especially needs. All American patriots need courage and humility. America must be neither cowardly nor arrogant. Cowardice would encourage those who plot to overthrow and ruin the republic, which is the hope of mankind. Arrogance would carry the strong will that must crush the threatening danger, by the force of its own momentum, to a reaction that with equal danger might threaten the spirit of our free institutions.

"After all, revolutionary radicalism in this country is an insignificantly small thing. It is not at all organic. The recent elections in this country give the sign of the awakening of America to its danger. The whole nation must exult in the thought of the triumph of righteous authority, of law and order, of an Americanism greater than class, which the result in Massachusetts revealed.

"We exult also in the magnificent patriotism of the great mass of laborers. The coal miners proved to the country that their Americanism was a greater thing for them than the pride of their so-called class and their self-interest. They showed themselves to be bigger Americans than many intellectual radicals, who would make our America shrink to some radical formula, or to some particular literary conceit."

Pastor Attacks the Theatre.

An attack on a certain type of theatre was delivered by the Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton at Calvary Baptist Church in the morning. He declared that the moral tone of the playhouse was at its lowest ebb, and charged what he called the "theatre trust" with responsibility for it.

The labor disorder in this country will be cured when the spirit of co-operation manifested in the war returns, said Dr. Christian F. Reisner in his last sermon at Grace Methodist Church, in West 104th Street, between Columbus and Amsterdam Avenues. Dr. Reisner goes to join the Methodist Centenary Conservation Committee.

An innovation in religious methods was effected at St. George's Episcopal Church, Stuyvesant Square, yesterday, when the congregation with whom the late J. Pierpont Morgan used to worship listened to the reading of the Scripture lesson by George W. Wickersham, who was Attorney General in the Cabinet of President Taft. The aim of the Rev. Dr. Karl Reiland, Rector of St. George's, was explained to be to bring every element of the community into close touch with the work of the Church. At the last two Sunday afternoon services David Bispham and Howard Kyle read the lesson. In the near future Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson will officiate at St. George's in the same capacity.

NEW DEMURRAGES ON DEC. 1

Charge for Refrigerator and Lumber Cars to be $10 a day.

New demurrage rules and charges have just been issued by J. E. Fairbanks, agent of the United States Railroad Administration. One provision imposes a charge of $10 per car on all refrigerator cars under Federal control not unloaded at the expiration of five days, and the same charge will be made for cars loaded with lumber that is held for reconsignment after forty-eight hours from the hour when free time begins under the demurrage rules. These charges will be in addition to other demurrage or storage charges.

No change is made in the free time allowance for loading or unloading, but the new tariff explains that loading and unloading a car are to be considered as separate transactions.

The new rules are to become effective on Dec. 1. Copies will be on file in the Traffic Bureau and may be freely examined.

25 KILLED, 15 HURT, IN DANCE HALL FIRE

Many Mothers Give Their Lives to Save Babies in Villeplatte, La.

PASSED THEM OVER BARRIER

Terror-Stricken Mass Blocked the Only Exit—Fifteen Died in Crush.

Special to The New York Times.

VILLEPLATTE, La., Nov. 23.—Several mothers sacrificed their lives to save their children in last night's fire horror, which cost not less than twenty-five in dead and fifteen seriously injured, mostly women and girls. Survivors of the fire today described the devotion manifested by these women to their young ones as of the most inspiring sort.

The ball given on the second floor of the Deville Building last night, had hardly begun before the frightful disaster happened. An oil stove in charge of a 12-year-old boy, who was making coffee in a rear room of the P. D. Martin grocery store, which was in the Deville Building, exploded and the flames spread quickly before the 300 people attending the ball on the second floor could begin finding their way to safety.

The flames had risen high. A panic ensued, a majority of the men, women, and children in the crowd making a concerted rush for the one exit, with the result that the stairway became virtually blocked, a barrier of struggling, terror-stricken people cutting off the ones inside.

Shrieks and moans of the weaker ones being crushed and trodden underfoot filled the air. Fifteen of the twenty-five known dead were killed in the panic. Self-sacrificing mothers of about twenty babies had come to the ball chaperoning their daughters. Latest accounts are that every infant was saved, though several of the mothers perished. Their safety was secondary to that of their offspring. Some of them passed their babies forward with the aid of other persons in the jammed exit until the infants were out of the building. Others deliberately flung the wee ones over the heads of the human wall that cut off the means of egress.

First reports indicated that the babies were lost, which would have placed the total lives lost at about fifty, but this was due to the great confusion that prevailed.

VILLEPLATTE, La., Nov. 22.—The identified dead in the fire at Villeplatte last night are:

Miss Anna Robiero, Mrs. Octav Barre, Miss Etta Barre, Miss Lena Guillory, Mr. and Mrs. Curley Solleau and daughter, Andre Vidrene, Mrs. Zelma Johnson, Culver West, Bernadat Fotenot, and Miss Ozette Buillon. Other bodies recovered have not been identified.

WILL HELP BISHOP BURCH.

Committee of Laity Organized for Episcopal Diocese.

In the library of Bishop Charles S. Burch's home yesterday afternoon, Mrs. E. H. Harriman, R. Fulton Cutting, August Belmont, and other members of the Episcopal Church organized a committee of laity to act as a permanent advisory board to the Bishop.

On motion of Mr. Cutting the committee was organized on a permanent basis and on motion of Mrs. Harriman, Mr. Belmont was made Chairman of the body and Mr. Cutting Vice Chairman. The Committee will be known as the Bishop's Committee.

The first work of the Committee will be to assist the Bishop in vitalizing the Every Name Campaign in the days between now and its climax, on Dec. 7.

LEGION INVITES KREISLER.

Violinist to Play at a Testimonial Concert in New York on Dec. 28.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Nov. 23.—Fritz Kreisler, who gave a concert here today, announced that he had accepted an invitation telegraphed by General Robert Alexander of the New York branch of the American Legion, to appear in a testimonial concert at the Hippodrome in New Yorkk on Dec. 28. General Alexander said in his telegram that John McCormack was to sing at the concert, which was to be under the auspices of the American Legion.

No attempt was made to interfere with the violinist's recital here, his first public appearance since cancellation of his engagement at Louisville, Ky., last week at the suggestion of the Mayor after several organizations had protested against his playing there. He made no comment on the resolutions adopted by a mass meeting of citizens in Worcester last night objecting to his proposed concert in that city next Tuesday.

IRISH TAILORS FALL FOUL OF G. B. SHAW

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—George Bernard Shaw is in trouble over another of his plays, this time with some of his fellow-countrymen. His "Androcles and the Lion" has been running at the Abbey Theatre in Dublin. The hero of the play is a tailor, but the members of one Irish branch of the Amalgamated Society of Tailors came to the conclusion that the author was holding their craft up to ridicule. They accordingly wrote to the manager of the theatre suggesting that the character should be removed from the play.

The matter was referred to Mr. Shaw, who has sent a letter to the manager expressing his amazement at the tailors' action. He points out the fact that ever since the theatre has existed tailors have been introduced in plays to be ridiculed and made the butt of jests. Even Shakespeare, he says, makes the hero of one of his plays address a tailor in the following terms:

> Thou liest,
> Thou thread, thou thimble,
> Thou yard, three-quarters, half-yard, quarter, nail!
> Thou flea, thou nit, thou Winter cricket thou!
> Braved in mine own house with a skein of thread!
> Away, thou rag, thou quantity, thou remnant;
> Or I shall so be-mete thee with thy yard
> As thou shalt think on prating whilst thou livest!

Mr. Shaw adds:

"These lines have been spoken on the stage for 300 years, and many others equally insulting, by English authors, and no Irish tailor ever protested. But when I, an Irish author, make a tailor the hero of a play, representing him as gentle, kindly, brave, wise, devoted, a martyr to the Christian faith, and greatly the superior of the Emperor who runs to him for protection—then, if you please, for the first time in history, the Society of Irish Tailors tells me I am belittling them and asks me to remove the tailor from the play!"

HOLD UP DANSEY BURIAL.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMMONTON, N. J., Nov. 23.—In deference to the theory of some investigators that the skeleton found in Folsom Swamp was not that of "Billy" Dansey, permission to bury the child's supposed remains has been withdrawn and an inquest will be held in a few days.

Some of those who have examined the skeleton contend that the smooth bones indicate that the body has lain in the swamp a much longer time than the child has been missing. They argue that the kidnappers may have put the skeleton where it was found with the child's clothing nearby to end the search for him.

Prosecutor Edmund G. Gaskill, Jr., of Atlantic City, aroused by criticism of the failure of his detectives to solve the mystery, came here himself today and spent several hours in consultation.

DR. A. M'L. HAMILTON, ALIENIST, DIES AT 71

TESTIFIED IN 100 CASES

Author and Ex-Professor of Mental Diseases at Cornell Was Grandson of Alexander Hamilton.

GREAT BARRINGTON, Mass., Nov. 28.—Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton of New York, widely known alienist and specialist on nervous diseases, died suddenly at his Summer residence here today.

Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton was born in Brooklyn in 1848, the son of Philip Hamilton, the youngest son of Alexander Hamilton. He received his medical education at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, graduating in 1870. From 1900 to 1903 he was professor of mental diseases at Cornell University Medical College. His active career as an alienist extended over a period of thirty-five years; during it he was associated with more than a hundred murder trials and was called as an expert in several of the greatest cases of the time. His opinion was sought at the trials of the two Presidential assassins, Guiteau and Czolgosz, and more recently at those of Carlyle W. Harris, Marie Barberi, and Harry K. Thaw.

Dr. Hamilton always maintained that Guiteau was perfectly sane, a "shrewd scamp," but that Czolgosz was a defective who had long been drifting to paranoia, (assisted by the attacks on McKinley by certain yellow journals), and that he did not receive an adequate defense.

In a book published three years ago entitled "Recollections of an Alienist," Dr. Hamilton provided a wide-ranging collection of reminiscences, of which those relating to his professional activities were the most interesting. From these an amusing anecdote may be taken. At a certain trial he found himself, as was more than once his experience, opposed by a physician who claimed to be an alienist, but was really an audacious impostor. Dr. Hamilton thereupon set the stage for the following exposure: The impostor was asked by counsel whether extreme length of head was a stigma of insanity. He asserted that it was, and that certains tracings of heads shown him were clearly those of lunatics.

Dr. Hamilton then proved to the jury that the tracings had been provided by Dunlap, the hatter, and were the heads of William H. Vanderbilt, his sons, and of the presiding Judge.

In 1907 Dr. Hamilton was called upon to examine Mrs. Eddy, the head of the Christian Science Church, her son having accused her of mental incompetence. The alienist found her of keen business understanding and ability, and the two letters he later received from her showed no trace of mental disorder, though rather wordy.

Dr. Hamilton was twice married. His second wife was Mrs. Mae Copeland Tomlinson of Sioux Falls, S. D. He at one time had an office at 36 East Fortieth Street, but this was given up shortly before a serious illness in March, 1913.

He was a member of the leading medical societies of this country and a Fellow of the Royal Society of Edinburgh. Among the books he wrote were: "Nervous Diseases," "Medical Jurisprudence," "A System of Legal Medicine," "Intimate Life of Alexander Hamilton," and many articles in medical journals.

Beware Another "Flu."
By DR. BERTHOLD A. BAER

The pandemic of influenza which spread over the world in 1918 was the most severe outbreak of this disease that has ever been known.

"In the United States alone, conservative estimates place the deaths from influenza at not less than 600,000, or about twice the number of American soldiers who lost their lives from all causes in the great World War.

"The problem for every individual is to develop his own defensive mechanism to the highest stage of efficiency," writes Dr. Henry Smith Williams. "Obviously I cannot here discuss at length the method by which this may be accomplished.

"Here the old Greek maxim 'Nothing too much' has full application. In particular, making a specific application, let me admonish you not to give too much attention to the subject of influenza, even with the thought of avoiding the malady. If you chance to be near some one who sneezes, do not let that worry you. Rather reflect that, inasmuch as you are paying just enough attention to proper hygiene—diet, exercise, work, recreation, sleeping—your bodily defences are in good working order, and that, therefore, you probably could not get the influenza if you tried."

"Does it not seem rather strange to use the 'Prevention of the Flu' as a subject for an Editorial," asked a friend who was present when Mr. Frank E. Campbell was speaking on the subject.

"Why should it?" asked Mr. Campbell. "The crude joke that Doctors and Undertakers do wish people to die should never have passed.

"Remember that the annual and normal death rate of the City of New York is over one hundred thousand men, women and children. Their earthly remains must be taken care of. The demised require the best of attention."

"That is true," said the friend. "Likewise it is true that no one is in as good a position and as well prepared to pay the parting honors to a loved one, be he rich or poor, as is Frank E. Campbell, whose trained organization lightens grief and changes sorrow into grateful memory. When your hour of sorrow strikes, call on him and you will be well taken care of."

The Library Bureau card record desk is a combination desk and card file. The operator works seated. Within arm's reach are 16,000 to 24,000 cards.

Consider what this means: Minutes profitably spent in working instead of wasted in walking—no lost motion—no interrupting of other departments—the day's work more pleasurable because less tiring—a time-proved friend of Efficiency.

Business executives appreciate the value of the L. B. Card record desk. It helps to solve the problem:—"How shall I keep my records up-to-the-minute in spite of increased detail?"

TWO BILLION RIDERS ON TRANSIT LINES

Figures on Transportation System of City Show Recovery from Influenza Period.

INCREASE ON THE SUBWAYS

It Cost an Average of 3.446 Cents Per Passenger—Public Service Commission Statistics.

Statisticians of the Public Service Commission have just completed a compilation of figures showing the traffic on the transportation lines of the city during the last fiscal year, the variation in the traffic for the different months due to epidemics and other causes, and the increase in traffic over the preceding year. Based on the number of fares collected the figures show that during the year 2,079,942,604 passengers rode on the lines, an increase of 104,430,015 over 1918.

A statement by the commission says:

"The almost unprecedented growth in traffic for 1919 was in spite of the ravages of the influenza epidemic during the Autumn months of 1918, which caused a falling off in October alone of more than 12,000,000 fares, and for the period of July to November inclusive of 1918, of 17,000,000 fares."

But in December, it is said, the conditions changed for the better, normal conditions for the year were resumed, and the number of fares increased 8,500,000 during the month. Each month after December showed increasing traffic, as follows:

December	8,500,000
January	15,700,000
February	13,200,000
March	15,800,000
April	20,600,000
May	23,100,000
June	25,600,000
Total	122,560,000

Increase in Traffic.

The report shows that the total increase of approximately 104,500,000 was divided between the various lines as follows: Rapid transit lines, 98,751,618; surface lines, 5,679,197. On the basis of percentages the total increase was 5.29 per cent., all of which went to the rapid transit lines except .65 per cent which went to the surface lines.

Details contained in the report disclose the fact that the largest percentage of gain was won by the elevated lines of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit System, where the growth was nearly 20 per cent., which represented a total traffic of 308,879,791, or an increase of 50,712,478 over that of 1918. The heaviest traffic on any single system was on the subway lines of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, where the grand total of passengers was 461,147,058, which represented a gain of 10.23 per cent., or 42,880,050 more than were carried in 1918.

There was a decrease of 1.27 per cent. on the Interborough elevated lines, representing a loss of 4,472,059. These elevated lines carried a total of 348,188,600 passengers during the year. Figures of the business done by the Hudson & Manhattan Company disclosed a gain for the year of 12.70 per cent., or an increase of 9,701,817 passengers in a total of 86,050,815.

Figures on traffic on the surface lines, divided among the boroughs, show that in Manhattan the total traffic was 370,085,099 passengers; a loss of 1,051,290, or .28 per cent. less than in 1918; in Bronx there was a gain of 1.11 per cent. in a total of 80,806,261; in Brooklyn there was a gain of about one-half of 1 per cent. in a total of 362,103,192; in Queens the gain was 7.54 in a total of 3,275,369, while in Richmond the gain was 4.38 per cent. and the total was 15,958,213.

Doubled in Sixteen Years.

The report says that the traffic problem in the city is exemplified by the fact that since 1903, a period of sixteen years, the traffic on all of the transportation lines has more than doubled, and that the billion mark was first passed in 1903. To illustrate the point the following table is submitted:

5,700,000 Ride Daily.

It appears from the figures that the average traffic each day during the last fiscal year was 5,700,000, which about equals the population of the city. Toward the end of the year the daily averages of rides increased to 6,400,000. The fares per capita collected in 1860 were 43, and in 1919 the number had increased to 370 which shows, according to a comment in the report, that the habit of riding is growing steadily more popular. Then the report says:

"The increase of 104,430,815 passengers brought approximately $5,220,000 additional revenue to the railroad companies, which with revenue other than that gained by operation of the lines, yielded a total revenue for the year of $110,191,682, or $6,690,919 more than in 1918. Operating expenses increased greatly, however, the total of these increases being $15,267,181, which caused a deficit in net income of $8,083,819.

"The average cost of transporting each passenger (no allowance being made for taxes, interest, or dividends) was 3.446 cents in 1919, as against 2.293 cents in 1918, and 2.638 cents in 1916."

It is pointed out that because of the opening of the new subway lines the total increase in the length of track was 64 miles, and the number of passenger cars in service grew from 12,775 to 13,035.

CHURCHES AID HOSPITALS.

More Than $50,000 Donated to United Fund Yesterday.

More than $50,000 was contributed to the United Hospital Fund by church congregations yesterday following pleas on behalf of the campaign to raise money for the free hospital treatment of the needy sick. According to the fund authorities, this sum will be doubled when final returns from the churches and synagogues, together with Saturday's collections, are in.

It was stated that half of the $1,000,000 sought as the minimum had been obtained. A dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria tonight is to end the drive. Mrs. August Belmont and Dr. George Vincent, director of the Rockefeller Foundation, will address the 1,000 workers in the grand ballroom.

Finley Heads Roosevelt Clubs.

Formation of a Committee of Roosevelt Clubs in Schools and Colleges, with the following members, was announced yesterday by the Roosevelt Memorial Association.: Dr. John H. Finley, Dr. Henry N. MacCracken, Prof. Albert Bushnell Hart, James Sullivan, Hermann Hagedorn, Jr., and H. S. West.

CALLS FOR RELIEF WORKERS

Jewish Committee Seeks Volunteers to Go to Poland.

An appeal was issued yesterday by the Joint Distribution Committee for Jewish Relief, 20 Exchange Place, for men of executive ability to go to Poland as relief and welfare workers. The appeal is for mature men who are American citizens and have exceptional qualifications for welfare service. The first unit of workers is to sail Jan. 1.

"The work which the committee is undertaking requires the highest type of American Jewish citizens," Felix M. Warburg, the Chairman, said. "We require men of intelligence and broad sympathies—men who are soft-hearted and hard-headed. The work consists in rehabilitating the Jewish population of Poland. Thousands of homes broken up by the war must be provided with material comforts and the means of livelihood. Countless victims of disease and hunger must be healed in body.

"The Jews of America, by participating in this task, are rendering service to the entire civilized world."

Your Friend:

Are you asking him to be a super business man?

MANY still cling to the old idea of naming close personal friends as Executors of their wills and Trustees of their estates.

Is it wise? Perhaps! But leaving aside the question of justice to your heirs, is it a matter of justice to your friend to ask that he assume the duties of:

1. An expert accountant.
   Quite often the distribution of an estate involves problems of higher accountancy.
2. A tax expert.
   Constantly changing tax laws affecting estates are hard to follow.
3. An investment expert.
   The watching of security values affected by economic trends is a business in itself.
4. A real estate expert.
   When the estate includes real estate its best interests often demand expert real estate knowledge.
5. A banking expert.
   In many cases concise banking knowledge is necessary to the proper handling of an estate.

Then, too, your executor must be prepared to give liberally of his time, perhaps at periods when it is vitally needed in his own business. Think it over! In many cases careful consideration of the diverse problems of an executor and trustee has brought foresighted men to us seeking help. We will gladly tell you as we have told them, of unguessed advantages in naming—

THE COLUMBIA TRUST COMPANY

to settle your estate

As executor of your will and as trustee of your estate, what duties would we assume? Here are a few of them:

1. Take possession of all property and become familiar with the affairs of the estate. This requires an experience not to be justly expected of an untrained individual.
2. List all property in a complete inventory. This demands a knowledge of accounting.
3. File returns for payment of Federal and State Taxes. Also, promptly pay such taxes to secure benefit of 5% discount as provided by law. This demands constant watchfulness and intimate tax knowledge.
4. Advertise for debts in the manner required by law. One of the apparently minor but really important steps.
5. Pay legacies as directed by the will. Columbia Trust Company handling assures promptness and thorough responsibility.

If you now feel that the administration of your estate deserves searching consideration, wouldn't it be a wise step at least to talk it over with the Columbia Trust Company?

The following officers will gladly give you further details. At our downtown office, Mr. Warren, Vice-President, or Mr. Judd, Trust Officer. At our Fifth Avenue office, Mr. Dunn, Vice-President. At our Harlem and Bronx offices, the Managers in charge.

AMERICA'S SHARE IN PEACE

Berlin Business Man Declares We Must See That Terms Are Administered Justly.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov 22 (via Paris).—There will be no early recrudescence of militarism in Germany. The strength of the Pan-German Party in the National Assembly, which is about 10 per cent., approximately expresses the strength of militarism in Germany today. It may get stronger during the Winter, but in my opinion the danger will not be from that side, but from the Left. Germany has broken her back and cannot strike in the old way.

The Pan-Germans are impenitent, arrogant, and loud-mouthed. The chief damage now being done by them is the impression of concealed and dangerous power in Germany which is created in the Entente countries by their behavior. These are the worst people in any country, not excepting the Bolsheviki, and they are as indifferent to the miseries of the German masses as they are blind to the causes and effects of the war. It is to be hoped that if there should be a Bolshevist upheaval it would result in wiping out this freed of ugly Prussions.

In my judgment the demonstrations for Hindenburg have been magnified and misinterpreted in the allied countries. They were made daily by young students and signified pride in the old military achievements rather than a set purpose to make trouble. I saw the demonstrations and they did not impress me as dangerous. The allied military men in Berlin have a certain measure of admiration for old Hindenburg, and they do not believe there is any mischief in him in the present situation in Germany.

One fact that makes against the growth of the military spirit is the utter, universal contempt for the ex-Kaiser. I have not heard a single good word for him. "Coward" and "poltroon" are the words commonly applied to him. It is a safe prediction that if a monarchy is ever re-established, first, that it will be a constitutional form, and, second, that no Hohenzollern will reign. The ex-Crown Prince is making foolish efforts to pose as a liberal, and a publicity bureau is maintained in his behalf. Any journalist who takes the trouble to go to Holland can get a daily interview with him on any subject. But he is a dead duck. The royalty who is discussed with the least contempt is Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria. But there is small prospect of a monarchy, and when normal conditions return the odds are heavy that Germany will settle down into a democracy.

The spirit of the masses is one of dejection which in another country would mean some sort of political upheaval, but unless Russian Bolshevism gets in, such uprisings as may occur in the next few months will probably be local, sporadic, and within the power of Noske's soldiers to control. Initiative and aggressiveness are lacking, and people will probably continue to suffer without any attempt at revolution, although the situation is not free from danger.

I believe that instead of occupation by the Allies arousing resentment in the people it would rather be welcomed. A good authority told me today that in spite of anti-Wilson feeling in certain quarters, a temporary joint control by America and England would be received with satisfaction by the masses.

The Government is lacking in positive popular strength. Curiously enough, the safety of the present situation lies in the very weakness of the German people. The complete paralysis resulting from political inexperience is the main oasis on which rests the probability that the present Government will not be overthrown. The Government is in, and there is not enough political life to get it out. It is a dull Government, with little aggressiveness, outside of Noske, but it will stand because it is stolid and can sit tight, while a lack of capacity in an atrophied electorate to fix on any scheme of opposition offers an additional guarantee that the Government will not be disturbed.

Cold and hunger may cause sporadic uprisings, but Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg are dead, and the Sparticists, like every element among the German people, lack both leaders and spirit.

There is a widespread interest here in the question of ratification of the treaty and the League of Nations Covenant. One business man said today:

"America cannot now withdraw from European affairs. The whole situation is the result of America coming into the war. Formerly we had our quarrels and wars in Europe. They were the result of our territorial and trade competitions. First one nation and then another would be the aggressor. After a war we would get together and make our settlements. In this war a country more powerful than any of us came 3,000 miles across the Atlantic and entered the contest when all other combatants were exhausted. This rendered German defeat inevitable. The power of America not only determined the result of the war, but threw our peace negotiations out of balance. Instead of the war being ended by our surrender and peace settled according to European viewpoints, the Allies, particularly France, proceeded to make demands based on American help. It becomes necessary, therefore, for America, which participated for reasons of liberty and justice, to stand by and see that the victory which her added strength won is administered along lines of liberty and justice."

Each Airplane Squadron to Have Its Own Insignia

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—For the purpose of identification of airplanes, the War Department has authorized insignia for each of the forty-four airplane squadrons, devices to be painted on machines and baggage having been selected by the members of the various squadrons. They show the same peculiarities that were common during the war in the marking of the British, French, or German fighting squadrons, many of which became famous.

The Thirteenth Squadron will decorate its planes with the figure of a running skeleton carrying a bloody scythe. Some of the others will have a great snow owl, the American flag, an eagle pouncing on a dachshund, a masked headsman with an axe, an American Indian, a wolf's head, a winged Cupid in a campaign hat, a pair of dice with the lucky seven up, and the "hat in the ring."

MONARCHISTS PLOT OPENLY IN GERMANY

Costly Struggle Feared if Royalists Should Try to Overthrow the Republican Government.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 22.—The recent demonstrations in Berlin for Hindenburg and Kaiserism have again awakened the apprehensions of all good republicans who realize that though the reaction may not have any chance just yet there is danger of some fanatics and fools starting a row at any time that may lead to fearful consequences. It is quite evident that even the cool-headed among the reactionaries have given up much of their reserve and now talk openly of restoring the monarchy, though they are by no means united on the question whether the Hohenzollerns shall resume the throne or some other dynasty.

Yesterday word was passed around by William II.'s friends that though a formal request would be made for the Kaiser's extradition, Holland had been given to understand that if she refused the Entente would not insist. This report, which is supposed to emanate from a Dutch diplomatic source, and is also known to the Kaiser, has done much to increase the optimism of his party, which is in very active communication with Amerongen, and has insisted that the becaming influence of General Dommes, chief of the Kaiser's private cabinet, be replaced by the feudal spirit of Baron von Berg, who is the arch fiend of the republic, and during the last year of the war acquired a fatal influence over the Kaiser's action.

Von Berg is one of the principal leaders of the Hohenzollern party, which regards Prince Eitel Fritz as the Kaiser's representative in Germany. There has been much activity lately at Eitel Fritz's palace at Potsdam which seems completely ignored by the republican authorities. Even some of Noske's officers have been "commanded" to report to that Prince on the military situation, which, however, was represented to him as not sufficiently favorable yet. Noske probably knows of these intrigues, but he believes himself strong enough to destroy the monarchist plans at any time he finds it convenient or necessary. Some of his officers are firmly convinced, however, that Noske is only a tool in their own hands whom they hope to use for their own monarchist intrigues when the time arrives.

It is just this playing with fire that some day is bound to start a conflagration. For the present there is no danger, the Junkers, by their noisy and tactless demonstrations, having prematurely alarmed the laboring classes, and leaders of both Socialist parties have at least agreed that in case of any monarchist movement they will make common cause against the Junkers. That would mean awful bloodshed, but a radical cure may be depended upon.

A private report from Holland mentions an early removal of the Kaiser from Amerongen to his newly purchased chateau. It is stated that Count Bentinck is heartily sick of his imperial guest, who deports himself at Amerongen as in the old days of Potsdam, while Count Bentinck and his family have imposed upon them the part of humble attendants.

Great Ovations for the Field Marshal En Route and At His Home in Hanover.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—Hindenburg had a triumphal journey home from Berlin to Hanover. At Brunswick, en route, he was greeted by great cheering and a song-singing crowd, and reports say the Field Marshal was greatly impressed. When he arrived at Hanover there was a tremendous demonstration of welcome and "Deutschland Ueber Alles" was, as usual, sung.

Hindenburg went to his residence, and the crowd followed. Again "Deutschland Ueber Alles" was sung. When he appeared at the door after much cheering the Field Marshal declared it had not been an easy thing for him to go to Berlin, but he had to admit that though the journey had been trying it had also been inspiring. He discovered with great pleasure, he went on, that the nationalist spirit was rising again. He came back, therefore, much more cheerful than he went away.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The Chronicle's Parliamentary correspondent says:

"The bill prepared at the instance of Lord Astor to enable him to divest himself of his peerage has been taken in hand by J. H. Thomas, who will introduce it on Wednesday next. It is described as a bill 'to empower his Majesty to accept the surrender of any peerage,' so that if it should happily commend itself to both houses Lord Astor will not only realize his own ambition to remain a Commoner, but will confer a similar power of renunciation on other peers who may find it inconvenient or a hardship to undertake the succession to the House of Lords. The bill is sure to excite the activities of constitutional critics in both houses pro and con."

ASSERTS HAYS SEEKS HUGE SLUSH FUND

GIVES OUT 'SECRET' LETTER

Quotes Appeal to Business Interests and Tells of Meeting in Cincinnati.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 23.—There was made public yesterday at Democratic State headquarters a telegram from Ohio Democratic Chairman W. W. Durbin to Democratic National Chairman Homer S. Cummings, begging him to "turn the spotlight of publicity" on an alleged attempt on the part of Republicans to raise "a huge slush fund beyond all dreams of avarice."

The telegram is based upon a letter which came into the hands of Mr. Durbin from some mysterious source. It relates to a meeting held in Cincinnati on Oct. 29 at which Republican National Chairman Will H. Hays was present to speak ostensibly on "Citizenship." According to the letter, the text of which was made public, Hays was there to wage a money-raising campaign. At the meeting $13,000 was collected, the letter says, and this was considered only a beginning. The matter was referred to as "a commercial proposition."

It is stated that Democratic leaders here are convinced that the secret letter, following the secret session, was placed in their hands because the tactics that have been employed have awakened a certain amount of resentment. The name of the informant in the case was not made public.

This is the letter which, the Democratic leader says, is documentary evidence of the beginning of the collection of the largest fund ever known in a political contest:

We regret exceedingly that you were not represented at the meeting held on Wednesday, Oct. 29, at 1 o'clock at the Business Men's Club, to hear the strong appeal and see the splendid response made on behalf of funds for the National and State Republican Campaign Committees.

It was made very clear to those present that the history of the Republican Party on all fundamental questions concerning our national life was sound and conservative.

We are again facing a crisis in the history of our country, which must be met by a strong and sane government. A large fund must be raised immediately, largely for the purpose of an educational campaign, to stem the tide of socialism, radicalism, &c., which is making every effort to overthrow our existing form of Government. This situation was so clearly presented and so impressed those at the meeting, that the committee is gratified to report the following contributions:

E. W. Edwards, $1,000; David C. Jones, $1,000; John Leblond, $1,000; R. K. Leblond, $1,000; George Puchta, $1,000; J. B. Doan, $1,000; B. B. Quillen, $1,000; Maurice Pollak, $1,000; Fred A. Geir, $1,000; Arthur Hoefinghoff, $500; C. A. Bickett, $500; G. H. Feltes, $500; J. A. Oberhelman, $500; Henry Marx, $500; John Christensen, $500; Henry Dreses, $300; A. H. Tuechter, $250.

This is your problem as much as the next man's. It is not a political problem as much as it is a commercial problem. The very existence of your business depends upon getting an administration whose attitude will be fair and equitable to all classes of society. We sincerely trust that you will be glad to respond fully, according to your ability and your obligation to this cause.

Yours very truly,
J. B. DOAN,
R. K. LEBLOND,
FRED A. GEIER.

Chairman Durbin says that the "commercial" meeting in Cincinnati was preceded by similar meetings in Cleveland, Columbus, Dayton, and other Ohio industrial cities. He continues:

"If the plan is carried out over the nation—and I am sure it is, as Will Hays is doing nothing much else now—it will produce a slush fund of $100,000,000 with which to buy the 1920 elections and put big business once more in the saddle."

In the telegram to Chairman Cummings Durbin says:

"There is great danger of Bolshevism in America. It is cropping out here and there. But let me say to you, Mr. Cummings, if the Republican Party and its main sponsors and financial backers are put in power again the foreigner, the agitator, and the preacher of Bolshevism will find a soil so fertile in which to plant his propaganda crop that the harvest yielded may even shake the foundations of the Republic.

"I am asking that you investigate this thoroughly and that you turn the spotlight of publicity on the Republican attempt. The American people will not stand for the turning over of the Government and giving free rein to the immense interests, and you can do the nation no greater service than by exposing it."

Durbin charges that the men from whom Chairman Hays is making the collections are representatives of a class as dangerous to the entire country as the present radicals. He holds that it is a logical development of 1896, when Mark Hanna, he asserts, organized the nation on the money basis.

"Then," he says, "the nation was put on the auction block and sold to the highest bidder. There never was so much corruption in any ten national campaigns before that time."

Signers of Letter Business Leaders.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 23.—Most of the men referred to in the letter made public in Columbus by Chairman Durbin are leaders in the metal and machine tool trade here.

E. W. Edwards is at the head of the Edwards Manufacturing Company, probably the biggest sheet metal concern in this part of the country. In the political deal which brought William Cooper Procter into the limelight and gave him a voice in local political affairs some six or seven years ago Edwards was included with Procter and since has played a big part in Cincinnati politics.

David C. Jones is the Vice President of the Lunkenheimer Company, makers of steam valves, whose trade is worldwide. Mr. Jones does not stand out as a Republican, but this firm has always been among the stalwarts.

R. K. Leblond is strongly identified with the Republican ranks. He is a machine tool manufacturer who has been highly favored by success, and whose fortune has grown greatly during the last few years.

George Puchta was formerly Mayor of Cincinnati, and is a Republican and head of the Queen City Supply Company, a big jobbing metal concern. He is also identified with banking institutions in the city.

B. B. Quillen is the Secretary and Treasurer of three of the larger machine tool and foundry companies here, and, while his political standing has never been much to the forefront, he is believed to be a Republican.

Maurice Pollak is the Vice President of the Pollak Steel Company, owning plants here, at Marion, Ohio, and South Chicago. His brother, Emil Pollak, was a Republican member of the School Board in the old days. Maurice has never been in the political limelight.

Fred A. Geier is President of the Cincinnati Milling Machine Company, and is one of the big business men of this city. His tendencies have always been Republican, though he has strong independent leanings.

Arthur Hoefinghoff is a wealthy manufacturer and head of the Cincinnati Grinder Company. He has never been in the political limelight.

J. A. Oberhelman is the proprietor of the foundry bearing his name.

Henry Dreses is at the head of the Dreses Machine Tool Company.

J. H. Christensen is the President of the Cincinnati Gear Company. Mr. Christensen was the partner of the late Phil Fosdick, who served several terms as the Service Director of the city under Republican administrations.

A. H. Seuchter is President of the Cincinnati Bickford Tool Company, and, while he has never mingled in politics, is of known Republican tendencies.

Turkish Sultan and Pashas Cut Harems Under High Living Cost; One Wife Enough

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 17, (Associated Press).—The high cost of living is badly hampering the Turkish households—especially with regard to wives. The Sultan has reduced the size of his harem; Pashas who formerly were rich also are retrenching in this respect, and, notwithstanding the Koran's authorization of four wives to a man, the proportion of unmarried women is said to be increasing, as the men are finding more than one wife too expensive to maintain.

Turkey's loss in population is not beginning to be made up by polygamy, according to the reports made to the Sheik Suleil. These losses, it is estimated, have resulted in there being three women for every two men. In the interior of the country maidens are so numerous that well-meaning natives have offered them as gifts to American and other officers engaged in relief work.

One angle of the present situation is the creation of a race of bachelor maids who are taking part in politics. Many of them are reported to be followers of nationalism, having been promised the vote and also husbands. The women of the country are anxious for a settlement of peace in Turkey, so that the resultant prosperity may make marriage less difficult.

READING PUTS BAN ON DEBS MASS MEETING

Mayor Fears Clash Following Arrest of Armed Aliens—Legion Seeks Maurer.

400 EX-SOLDIERS AT HALL

Special to The New York Times.

READING, Pa., Nov. 23.—Following the arrest of two aliens, heavily armed, here tonight, Mayor Filbert, fearing bloodshed, called off the Debs amnesty meeting in the Socialist-Labor Lyceum Four hundred former service men paraded to the Lyceum in a body and a crowd of 5,000 persons, nearly all men, gathered in the street. The announcement that the meeting would not be held probably averted a riot.

The Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker, an Episcopal clergyman from Chicago, who was advertised to deliver the speech urging the release of Debs and other radical prisoners, and James H. Maurer are being sought by the Legion men this evening, and further trouble during the night is feared.

Tucker, it is said, was ordered to leave town on the 8:24 train, but was not found by a committee of Legion members waiting for him at one of the stations.

Fully 2,000 citizens, many of them American Legion members, with a small number of women, parading past the Socialist and radicals' headquarters this afternoon after a big mass meeting in the square in front of the Courthouse, made the radicals change their mind about holding a Debs amnesty parade and mass meeting tonight.

James H. Maurer, President of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, and recently denounced by Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer, witnessed from a window of Socialist headquarters the parade of the "Legionaries." He said that no march to the Auditorium, where the meeting prohibited by Mayor Filbert was advertised yesterday in his Socialist-Labor Advocate, in defiance of the Mayor, would be attempted. He announced that the meeting would be confined to the Labor Lyceum Hall, which holds but 300 people.

The Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker, on his arrival here today, was advised by the police to leave the city at once, but declined. He appeared at the Legion mass meeting, asking Mayor-elect John K. Stauffer for an opportunity to speak for ten minutes, but was advised to leave, and did so before the crowd learned who he was. He went to the Labor Lyceum, joining Maurer there.

After the Legion mass meeting ended the crowd formed in line and marched past the Lyceum, where the doors were at first locked, it was stated, but then unlocked when it was seen that the ex-soldiers did not intend to attack the place. A big American flag was run out from a second story window just before the band leading the Legion parade turned a corner half a square away.

Maurer, seen inside the building during the parade, repeated his protests that he is 100 per cent. American and his recent offer of $100 to any one proving the contrary. He remained indoors while the parade passed.

Tucker admitted, in conversation with Mayor-elect Stauffer, that he was under a Federal indictment for violation of the Espionage act, and that he was convicted, but out on appeal.

At the legion meeting the Rev. A. V. Casselman, returned army chaplain, presided. The speakers were Stauffer, the Rev. Robert Marshall Blackburn, Presbyterian clergyman, the Rev. Scott R. Wagner, Second Reformed Church, Wilbur Wright, returned service man, decorated for bravery in Italy, and Elwood H. Deysher, a lawyer, representing the Elks Lodge.

GUARDS PATROL BOGALUSA.

Seek to Avert Violence After Killing—Want Leaguers Held.

BOGALUSA, La., Nov. 23.—Heavily armed guards patrolled the streets here today to prevent violence following a pitched battle yesterday between union labor leaders and special police, in which three of the former were killed and several persons were wounded.

The authorities announced today that the fighting was the culmination of an attempt to protect Sol Dakus, a negro union organizer, who was sought by the police as a dangerous character.

William L. Donnels, organizer of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, has asked for warrants against twelve members of the "Loyalty League," charged with deporting Ed O'Brien, union man, for alleged remarks approving the shooting up of the armistice day parade at Centralia, Wash. Donnels also telegraphed Attorney General Palmer, asking for an investigation of the disorders.

Space Limitations

The demand for advertising space in The New York Times is so great that, due to The Times' own limitations on number of pages and the shortage of newsprint paper, it is frequently impossible to publish all the advertising offered for a given day.

Today 7 columns of advertisements are omitted and 179 columns printed.

THINKS EASTERDAY CHIEF OF LOOTERS

TRACING 'THREE ACCOUNTS'

Names Given in Pledging Securities for Loans Fictitious, Prosecutor Asserts.

Additional evidence, which Assistant District Attorney John T. Dooling pieced together yesterday, convinced him, he said, that the "mysterious three accounts" in the books of Sullivan & Co. at 10 Wall Street, which were started on collateral from some of the $1,000,000 in securities stolen from the financial district, were "dummy" manipulations in the operations of W. W. Easterday.

"There is no doubt in my mind that Easterday is the man of the trio-account," said Mr. Dooling. "We have traced to these accounts orders issued by him, either here or in Washington and Philadelphia, to buy United States Steel. We have examined all the orders found at the office of Sullivan & Co., including purchase and sales, and the books and letters. The information obtained leads us to believe that Easterday was the directing hand and mind in the operations of these accounts."

Mr. Dooling spent most of the afternoon at home going over the oral testimony and documentary evidence, collected during the week, in his investigation of the robberies and in search for the ringleaders concerned in the thefts and disposal of the securities. Preparation of this evidence will take many days. Until it is completed, the extent of operations of the gang in this amazing looting of Wall Street houses cannot definitely be stated.

"Sullivan, since his arrest, had told me that these accounts were opened by three 'mysterious' strangers," said Mr. Dooling. "They apparently had walked into his office and walked out again, without telling anything about themselves or where they had got the securities put up for margin on trading accounts. Sullivan said one was 'George Wall of Washington.' The other two, he said, were Elmer E. Steel and Charles Enright, who claimed to live at the Commodore. These men were not known at the hotel.

"I find abundant evidence to indicate that these are fictitious names, and that the master operator of these accounts was W. W. Easterday. The evidence seems to show some of the orders were sent in by Easterday from Washington, but whether from the Washington office of Sullivan & Co. we have not yet determined. But there are the orders to buy, followed by some of the stolen securities to back the orders.

"In one instance a stolen security reached the office of Sullivan & Co. and was taken to some one from that office and pledged for a loan the same day. That was quick work and quick evidence. So far as the accounts have been checked up and the missing securities found, the house of Sullivan & Co. has pledged $300,000 of stolen goods for loans."

Mr. Dooling was asked why Easterday had not been apprehended. He replied:

"He is very elusive. Efforts to find him have failed. He knows, or ought to know, of the suspicions against him. If he is not concerned in these transactions, or if he is honorable, why doesn't he come forward and aid the authorities?"

It is said the thieves were able easily to dispose of the securities, because they were what is commonly known as "street certificates." That is, they were indorsed in blank by the record holders, and would pass current for loans, collateral for trading accounts, and even sales, conditionally, until a new purchaser might buy them outright and take them to a transfer agent to have the record placed in his name.

Only a few of the securities traced are being held in the custody of the District Attorney's office. Wherever the securities have been pledged for loans with banks and reputable individuals and brokers, they are left with the holders to retain, subject to the decision of the authorities. The proving of ownership to some securities and the position of innocent persons who have made loans on them probably will result in an intricate court review for decision.

IRISH-AMERICANS SEEK AID OF GERMAN ART

Committee in Berlin to Form an Exhibition of Works Dealing with Revolution.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 22.—Certain Irish-Americans who have arrived in Berlin recently via Switzerland have a unique scheme for propagating the revolutionary spirit in Ireland and the United States. They approached German painters and other artists to interest them in an art exhibition which is to open first in Dublin and later to be removed to the United States. In a way perhaps unknown to the general public in America, German painters and sculptors during the last few years before the war mostly selected subjects or motives that now seem surprisingly prophetic of the world war, and even more of the revolution, nearly all of them trying to show the degeneration of the old order of things and its chaos, while others were seeking to paint a happier future.

It is proposed to gather all these paintings, sculptures, and prints and try their effect on the Irish and American people. Thus far the Irish-Americans have not had much success, the artists fearing the loss of their works by confiscation by the English authorities.

WILL CLOSE TO SAVE FUEL.

Indianapolis Factories to Shut Down Three Days a Week.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 23.—Effective tomorrow, drastic measures of fuel curtailment, including a three-day-a-week closing order for factories, which were agreed on at a meeting of Indianapolis manufacturers, will be put into operation here. The measures, while not compulsory, will be observed by all the local industrial concerns.

Yesterday it was reported that owners in the Southern Indiana field were preparing mines for a resumption of operation Monday in expectation of a temporary agreement, whereby the miners will resume work under a temporary contracts guaranteeing their demands pending the outcome of negotiations in Washington.

SMITH PUTS BLAME ON MILK CONSUMERS

HAS NULLIFIED ALL STEPS

Community Councils Directed in Resolutions to Map Out Program for Action.

"We have not made any real progress; our study has brought us nothing. There isn't any new thought on the subject. What is the trouble? I could put my hand on it for you right away—the lack of interest by the people themselves."

That is the conclusion reached by Governor Alfred E. Smith as to the reason the milk problem in New York City has not been solved during the months of investigations, judicial and otherwise. He gave his opinion in an address, last night, at the Hotel Biltmore at a meeting of producers, distributers and consumers—chiefly the latter—held under the direction of the Community Councils of National Defense, which, under a resolution adopted by the meeting, is to confer with public officials and work out at "the next meeting of the City Parliament a constructive program to which the public may lend its support."

Governor Smith told the several hundred men and women that since 1917 the Governor has had no power in agricultural affairs. The Council of Farms and Markets was created by the Legislature, he said, and "is not functioning and doing the business it was intended to do." He said he held that from its very makeup it could not possibly function. "There is an absolute and utter lack of responsibility," he added.

He traced the steps taken in this city and State in the last twelve months on the milk problem, down to the appointment of his Fair Price Milk Committee, of which Dr. Royal Copeland is Chairman, and emphasized that whatever was done to bring about improved conditions must have the support of the public.

Referring to the statement made by Health Commissioner Copeland, who preceded him, that 30 per cent. of the children of the city are undernourished, due largely to the high price of milk, the Governor said: "If Dr. Copeland's figures are right then this ceases to be an economic question and becomes, as far as this community is concerned, a question of public health." He said the first and most sacred duty of every Government was the preservation of the health and the life of its people.

"If you take this view of the situation—and that is the only view you can take of it, according to the figures submitted," he added, "the State, with its sovereign power, has to say what the price of milk is going to be." This declaration, delivered with great earnestness, was greeted with applause.

"After all," he continued, "all the statistics and all the charts and all the arguments about conditions on the farm, do not avail if the statement made by Dr. Copeland is right. We may, by some action today, fix the price satisfactory for the time being, but what is going to happen when further and greater demands are made upon the distributers?

"Now, are we going to provide for anything in the future? We cannot always have a meeting of this kind. This is a problem of public health. The only solution of it is for the State itself to regulate it, and the step further must be taken empowering the municipality, if needs be, to make it a municipal function, just as it does the delivery of water or any other thing that is absolutely essential to the welfare and well-being of the people of the community."

After saying the State had exercised its power to fix the profits and the charges of public service corporations, the Governor continued: "It would rest with the Legislature, and nobody but the Legislature could do it. It will, therefore, rest with the Legislature to declare by law that in the interest of the public health the production and the distribution of milk is declared to be a public function, and I have no doubt, if the doctor's figures are right and the statistics can be sustained and presented, that the Court of Appeals would hold that to be a valid exercise of the police power in the interests of public health.

"Let me, in closing, repeat the last warning. I can recommend that, and I will; but don't you expect to see it if you don't take a hand in the fight."

Upon motion of George Gordon Battle, the meeting voted to uphold the hands of the Governor in whatever step he might take.

Federal Food Administrator Arthur Williams presided. Preceding the Governor on the program was John J. Dillon, who declared himself against the boycott carried on by the Community Councils for three days last week, but which will not be repeated again this week. He advocated that the means of relief lies in the saving between the farmer's wagon and the door of the consumer, as the farmer was not getting too much for his milk. He also advocated building up a delivery system through the stores in bulk and bottled milk and cream. He estimated the saving would be more than $100,000 a day; $3,000,000 a month, and nearly $40,000,000 a year.

Other speakers included Patrick D. Fox, Vice President of the Borden's Farm Products Company; Shepherd Rareshied, Assistant Treasurer of that company; Loton Horton, President of the Sheffield Farms Company; Nathan Straus, Commissioner of Health Copeland, and Commissioner of Public Markets Day. J. D. Miller, Vice President of the Dairymen's League, was the only speaker for the producers.

TAKE UP HINES OFFER TODAY

Brotherhoods Meet in Cleveland to Draft Answer on Pay Increase.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 23.—Approximately five hundred General Chairmen of the four railroad Brotherhoods, Engineers, Firemen, Trainmen and Conductors, will meet here tomorrow morning in response to a call from their four chief executives, to consider the offer of Director General Hines granting time and one-half for overtime in slow freight service and a standard rule for crews held from home terminals beyond a given period.

No strike vote will be taken, and the question of affiliation with a political Labor Party or approving the Plumb plan for handling the railroads is not to be considered. The conference is expected to last three days.

The grant of time and a half for overtime is conditional on the elimination of arbitrary allowances now given which create double or treble payment for the same hours.

There are also in effect "away-from-home rules," the most favorable of which provides that the crew's time will automatically start at the away-from-home terminal at the end of eighteen hours, and if not run out of that terminal will continue for a period of sixteen hours, at which time the Federal law releases the crews for ten hours, after which payment would again automatically begin unless the crew was run out on the road. The enginemen have in effect a twenty-eight-hour rule, while the Director General's proposition is for a uniform sixteen-hour rule for all crews held away from home terminals.

Whatever action the convention takes on the Director General's offer will have no bearing on the Brotherhoods' request for a general wage increase, said President Lee of the Brotherhood of Trainmen.

Gibbons Asks Aid for Jews.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 23.—Pastors of many Catholic and Protestant churches today from their pulpits urged their congregations to give the relief fund for suffering Jews in Central Europe their moral and financial support. Cardinal Gibbons made a special request of pastors to urge their parishioners to take an active part in the movement, and Bishop Murray of this Protestant Episcopal diocese appealed to all clergymen to encourage the work. More than $271,000 of Baltimore's quota of $1,750,000 has been pledged.

King Albert Found Us Anxious to Help Europe

BRUSSELS, Nov. 23.—King Albert's secretary explained to the correspondents today the object and results of the royal visit to the United States. The aim of the King, he said, was not to engage in political and economic negotiations, but it was a fact that numerous conversations which the King had with eminent American financiers, manufacturers, and scientists had developed American interest and sympathy for Belgium and created a favorable atmosphere.

Interpreting the King's impressions, his secretary said that the King's party was much impressed by the strong national feeling which was evident in the United States, and he added:

"America is conscious of sentiments of solidarity connecting her with other peoples, and it is impossible to imagine her leaving Europe to its destinies. It is for us to use best our intelligence and forces to seize the opportunities which the immense possibilities of America offer."

PICK LEFFINGWELL TO HEAD TREASURY

IS NOT A PARTY MAN

Bernard M. Baruch Expected to Succeed to Redfield's Position as Secretary of Commerce.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—It seems to be assured that when the Senate reassembles in December President Wilson will lay before it for confirmation the nomination of Russell Cornell Leffingwell of New York to be Secretary of the Treasury in succession to Carter Glass of Virginia, who has resigned to accept the appointment of Senator from his State. Mr. Leffingwell is now one of the Assistant Secretaries of the Treasury.

The fact that Mr. Leffingwell's law partners are affiliated with the Republican Party has led to reports that he is a Republican, but it is understood that Mr. Leffingwell has not taken any part in politics. In the consideration of his name President Wilson and those with whom he has advsied are said to have been of the opinion that under present conditions the necessity of continuing the work of the Treasury Department without a change of policy rises superior to political consideratoins.

There is also reason to believe that Bernard M. Baruch of New York is being urged by the Administration to accept the office of Secretary of Commerce, left vacant by the resignation of William C. Redfield of New York. Mr. Baruch once declined the President's tender of the Treasury portfolio, taking the ground that his wealth and his extensive financial interests were against his appointment to the Treasury Department.

President Wilson is known to have a very high regard for Mr. Baruch's ability and to be deeply grateful to him for his services as Chairman of the War Industries Board in Washington and as one of the economic advisers of the American Peace Commission in Paris. In official circles the belief prevails that Mr. Baruch will enter the Cabinet as Secretary of Commerce.

Mr. Leffingwell is 41 years old. He is a member of the law firm of Cravath & Henderson of New York, with which he has been associated for about ten years. He is a Yale graduate and after his graduation took a law course and then began the practice of his profession in New York. He was a student officer at the Plattsburg Training Camp in 1917, when he was induced by William G. McAdoo, then Secretary of the Treasury, to become special counsel to the Secretary in connection with floating the first war loan. He took part in a legal and financial advisory capacity in the flotation of subsequent war loans and late in 1917 was appointed Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and assigned to supervision over fiscal affairs.

Mr. Leffingwell has the cordial support of Secretary Glass and is understood to have been indorsed also by former Secretary McAdoo. In the best informed Administration circles little doubt is felt that Mr. Leffingwell's appointment as Secetary of the Treasury will be made.

FRENCH SLATE MAKERS TRY TO PICK CABINET

Belief Is That Chamber Majority Will Want Clemenceau for President.

PARIS, Nov. 23.—The Government slate makers have been actively at work the last few days, despite the fact that they are in complete ignorance as to whether M. Clemenceau desires to remain as Premier or whether, under pressure from his friends, he will accept candidacy for the Presidency.

The earliest declaration favored Alexandre Millerand as head of the Republic coalition to succeed M. Clemenceau as Premier, but toward the end of the week M. Millerand was put forward as a candidate for the Presidency, and Senator Charles Jonnart, former Governor of Algeria, succeeded him on the slate for the Premiership.

M. Jonnart is much favored for Minister of Foreign Affairs in the event of a Millerand Cabinet. Talk of former Premiers Briand and Barthou has been discouraged by the friends of M. Clemenceau, who resent their attacks upon the Government on the Peace Treaty and electoral reform.

Whatever M. Clemenceau may decide during his stay at Vendee, it is held that the Cabinet cannot remain in power after the meeting of the chamber, unless the Ministers who were defeated in the recent elections are replaced. The Cabinet may lose another member in M. Leygues, Minister of Marine, who at the end of the week will become the most likely candidate for the Presidency of the new chamber.

It has been suggested that M. Clemenceau himself will be unable to make a final decision until the new chamber is organized and the majority gives an indication of what it wants. The general impression is that it will want Clemenceau to accept the Presidency and that the majority will be composed of the groups that were affiliated in the recent elections under the leadership of M. Millerand, making him the logical choice for head of the new government.

Premier Clemenceau has rented at St. Vincent, Vendee, a small, solitary house on the seashore, where he hopes to rest and work in solitude, according to the Presse de Paris.

BIG 6 QUITS STRIKE; PRESSMEN TO VOTE

END OF TIEUP SEEMS NEAR

Fear of Open and Non-Union Shops in New York Influences Men to Reverse Stand.

"VACATIONS" TO END TODAY

Striking Inkmakers Decide to Stand Out Until They Win Arbitration.

By a three to one vote the members of Typographical Union No. 6 decided yesterday that the book and job men, who have been out on "vacations" for seven weeks, should return to work this morning. If the individual members of the union act in accord with this decision, and the general feeling seems to be that they will, the end of the tie-up in the printing industry should be a matter of only a few days.

A referendum vote will be taken tomorrow by Pressmen's Union No. 51 on the question of reaffiliation with the International, and the action taken will probably be largely influenced by the decision of Big Six. The compositors have held the key to the situation during the entire controversy, and the indications are that the seceding pressmen and feeders will not be able to hold out without them.

Big Six voted only a week ago yesterday not to return to work, but a reversal was brought about by a mandate from the Executive Council of the International Typographical Union based upon the complaint of the employers that the vote to remain out on "vacations" was virtually a vote to strike and was illegal without the sanction of the international officers. After an all-day session with the officers of the local union on Saturday, the Executive Council issued a mandate to be presented to the men at the meeting in the New Star Casino, 107th Street and Park Avenue, yesterday. The terms, when made known to the men for the first time at the meeting, were that they should return to work this morning and instruct their officers to arbitrate the forty-four-hour week with the employers. The threat of penalization by the international union was held over their heads if the mandate were not obeyed. The union voted to obey.

While the "vacations" have been taken, for the most part, on the initiative of individuals, and there is still an insurgent group that will meet this afternoon at Webster Hall to determine whether or not they will comply with the mandate, it is entirely probable that the majority of the men will be found at work this morning. President Leon H. Rouse said yesterday that, although they went under protest, they "were loyal international men, despite what had been perpetrated by their international officers, and they proved it by bowing to the mandate of the Executive Council." Big Six voted once before to terminate the "vacations," and yet failed to act upon its decision, but the fact that the international officers hold disciplinary powers which might include the revocation of the local charter gives a new aspect to the situation.

When the mandate of the Executive Council was read in the meeting, it was met with hisses and catcalls, which lasted for several minutes, and when President Rouse finally restored order he told the members that it was a disagreeable duty he had to perform. Debate on the question was long and noisy, with the opposition appearing to be strong, but a vote of approval was finally given. The only reason given by the Executive Council for ordering the men back to work and insisting on the arbitration of the forty-four hour week, which Big Six has heretofore refused to arbitrate, was that it was "fearful of open shop and nonunion conditions being established in many of the local shops."

J. W. Hayes, Secretary of the International Union, said last night that he was satisfied with the action of Big Six. He said the Council would endeavor to arrange for a speedy arbitration of the differences between the men and the employers, and that he had received assurances from the employers that all the compositors who returned to their shops would be put to work, but that he could not say how long it would last.

After a stormy meeting held in Beethoven Hall, 210 East Fifth Street, yesterday from 10 in the morning to 2 in the afternoon, it was announced that Pressmen's Union No. 51 would vote in the same hall tomorrow on the question of arbitration of hours and wages with the employers and on reaffiliation with the International Printing Pressmen's Union. While President Bernard Nolan opposed resumption of work until the 44-hour week with a $50 weekly wage was granted, the members seemed evenly divided on the proposal. At a recent meeting No. 51 voted to reaffiliate with the International Union and a few days later reversed its decision. President Nolan yesterday characterized those who favored arbitration and reaffiliation as being like the Germans, adding: "I come from a tribe that cannot understand the psychology of fear that comes to others who, when they get into trouble, yell 'Kamerad.'"

At a meeting of the striking Lithograph and Printing Ink Makers' Union No. 2 at Clinton Hall, 151 Clinton Street, yesterday, President John R. Ritchey reported that John J. Bealon of the State Industrial Commission had stated that he would try to get an arbitration commission appointed today to settle the strike. The 150 members present voted to remain out until the Ink Makers' Association, representing the employers, had recognized the union. Ritchey announced that sixteen of the thirty-five shops in the city had signed with the union.

COVER MINE WITH GUNS.

Governor Davis and Troops to Suppress Radical Virginia Miners.

Special to The New York Times.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 23.—Governor Davis left here tonight for St. Charles, Lee County, to take charge of five companies of militia ordered there Saturday night.

A message from St. Charles tonight stated that radical miners had mounted high-powered guns at the entrance to the mine and refused to permit any of the men who desired to resume work to enter the shafts. The troops are due to arrive in St. Charles Monday forenoon.

For the last week the situation at St. Charles has been grave. When the leaders called the strike off many of the men were ready to return to work. When some of them attempted to return to the mines shots from the mountainside disclosed that the radical element had mounted guns on the hillside above the shafts. The would-be workers ran for cover. Reports indicate that the radical element, consisting of several hundred men, is barricaded in the hillside district. It is understood that Governor Davis will make a personal appeal to the men to give up their arms and return to work.

SEASON IS OVER FOR MOST ELEVENS WITH A FEW GAMES REMAINING BY WAY OF AN EPILOGUE

MANY ELEVENS END SEASON OF MIXUPS

Illinois Owns Conference Title, but Eastern Championship Remains a Speculation.

ARMY-NAVY TILT THIS WEEK

Other Football Finales Are Between Penn and Cornell and Pitt and Penn State.

With Saturday's settlement of several of the most ancient rivalries of the gridiron, all but a few of the leading college elevens of the East brought their seasons to a conclusion, with the outcome so far as the selection of a champion team is concerned, still as much as ever a matter for individual opinion and speculation. It is difficult to remember another season when the records of the teams have contained so many puzzling upsets. Last Saturday offered its surprises, just as all the preceding ones had.

For such tradtional football foes as Harvard and Yale and Lafayette and Lehigh Saturday's games represented the one supreme goal of the season, and, whatever else may have betided or however the mythical championship may be awarded, the Harvard and Lafayette seasons, as they ended last week, are regarded by the supporters of those teams as unqualified successes.

At least one championship was decided on Saturday, however, when the Western Conference games reached their decisive point in the match between Illinois and Ohio State at Columbus. Coach Zuppke's Illinois eleven, with six victories to its credit and only one game on the debit side, gains the laurel leaf beyond argument over Captain Chick Harley and his Buckeye outfit, who can claim only three victories to one defeat. It was a narrow margin that decided this particular fray, but those extra 2 points in the 9-to-7 score loomed as large, so far as settling the final argument was concerned, as half a dozen touchdowns. It is as hard to go behind the returns in football as in politics.

Fine Array of Football This Week.

Of the leading Eastern teams, Harvard, Yale, Rutgers, Lafayette, Lehigh, New York University, and Stevens, among others, completed their seasons Saturday, and previously Colgate, Dartmouth, Amherst, Williams, and Wesleyan had been among those to return the pigskin to the locker for the last time in 1919. But there is still a fine array of arguments to be settled among this week's remaining games of the season. The Penn-Cornell, Pittsburgh-Penn State, Brown-Columbia, Syracuse-Nebraska, West Virginia-Washington and Jefferson, and Georgetown-Centre College games constitute as rich a Thanksgiving Day fare as could comfortably be digested by football fans, and then on Saturday will come what is in many ways the most picturesque gridiron game of them all, wherein the Army and Navy elevens lock horns up at the Polo Grounds. This will be a busy final week for the Georgetown eleven, for, in addition to its meeting with Centre College, conquerors of West Virginia, it will play Cavanaugh's Boston College aggreation on Saturday.

When Harvard scored its 10 to 3 triumph over Yale Saturday, completing its season with a record of eight victories and one tie, for once the dope ran true. Harvard's was a better drilled eleven than Yale's, and more resourceful, just as previous performances of the season had led one to expect would be the case.

Yale Neglects Modern Improvements.

Yale played well in the old line-smashing game, and exhibited plenty of pluck and fighting spirit, but her coaches did not seem to have appreciated the possibilities of the forward pass as a scoring weapon. Some old-timers may not like what they term the "basket ball element" in modern football, but, none the less, any team that neglects that department, either on attack or defense, places itself under a heavy disadvantage.

Dartmouth was another eleven that had great power in the old-time rushing game, but was poorly equipped in aerial tactics, and Dartmouth came a cropper in its final game of the season, though outrushing its opponent, just as Yale did while outrushing Harvard.

When it is possible for a single forward pass to nullify a long, hard march down the field by line-tearing tactics, as has happened more than once in important games of the season, it needs no keen observer to make the obvious deduction. The forward passing attack, rightly used, has won more games this Fall than the straight line-plunging game.

Is Western Football Better?

The greatest surprise of Saturday's results was furnished in the defeat of Syracuse at the hands of Indiana. Indiana's record in the Western Conference had not been impressive; it was defeated both times it started. On the other hand, it would be no easy matter to find an Eastern eleven with a record for the season more impressive than Syracuse's previous to Saturday. True, it had lost to Washington and Jefferson, but its conquest of such teams as the Army, Pittsburgh, Brown, Rutgers, and Colgate had seemed to more than counteract the effect of that setback. Indiana, according to all the reports that have come out of Bloomington, clearly outplayed Syracuse. Yet Indiana was certainly not at the top of the heap among Western elevens. Did Syracuse, after playing one of the hardest schedules of any team in the East, enter into a slump, or has Western football risen so high as the obvious comparison might indicate?

Another interesting though certainly not a conclusive comparison enters here in the fact that Syracuse beat the Army, 7 to 3, while Notre Dame defeated the soldiers, 12 to 9. The Syracuse-Nebraska game this week will furnish still another East-West comparison. Nebraska lost to Notre Dame, 14 to 9, but tied Minnesota, which won three Conference games and lost two, and in recent Saturdays Nebraska added Kansas and Missouri to its victims. All of which demonstrates that Syracuse will undergo another severe test on Thursday.

Rutgers Upholds the East Nobly.

While Indiana was sliding Syracuse down the sluiceway of defeat, Rutgers was nobly upholding the prestige of the East in its 28 to 0 triumph over Northwestern. The team from Evanston, Ill., had won only one of its five Conference games, it is true, but the emphatic manner in which Rutgers outclassed it in all departments of play adds a strong point to the Eastern argument. However, with games as few as they are between the two sections, comparisons are more or less fruitless.

Lafayette and Lehigh both approached their annual encounter with highly commendable records for the season. A hard game was anticipated and a hard game was played, with the decision left to the final moments of the second half. Weldon enacted much the same rôle for Lafayette as the illustrious Casey did for Harvard.

Although losing to Stevens, as well as in its three earliest contests of the Fall, New York University realized its principal ambition when it defeated Columbia. Coach Gargan, Captain Cann and the rest of the New York University outfit deserve a full measure of approbation for developing a team so hard-fighting. Columbia displayed the faults that have retarded her progress all season, seeming to lack confidence in her potential capacity and delaying her forcing tactics in open play until too late to make anything better than a fair showing against the old enemy. Columbia can hardly hope to do more than keep Brown's score fairly well down when the two meet on Turkey Day. If the Blue and White expects to revert next season to the sort of schedule played in Sanford's day, something revolutionary will have to be done with the system of developing the excellent material that is likely to be at its disposal.

The Stevens Tech football team took high rank among the smaller college elevens when it completed its record of an undefeated season by a one-sided victory over Worcester Poly. Stevens also placed to its credit the achievement of allowing only five points to be scored against it during the season. A safety was tallied against it in the Rhode Island State game and a goal from the field by New York University, but its goal line was not crossed by rushing. Coach Durburow and Captain Bloss may congratulate themselves and their men upon a performance like that.

Brown's Score Is Kept Low.

After defeating Dartmouth, Brown had a harder time than was expected in conquering New Hampshire State by the close score of 6 to 0. New Hampshire had a strong team this Fall, and, until its encounter with Maine, seemed to have a clear call for the championship of the State universities of New England.

The University of Pittsburgh performed according to Hoyle in trimming Carnegie Tech, and West Virginia and Washington and Jefferson were both easy victors over much weaker opponents. Georgetown's defeat of Washington and Lee complicated the situation among the South Atlantic teams. Washington and Lee beat Georgia Tech 3 to 0, Georgia Tech overwhelmed Georgetown 27 to 0, and Georgetown vanquished Washington and Lee 27 to 6, a state of affairs that might be utilized to prove almost anything. Swarthmore had an easy time beating its old rival, Haverford, and Bucknell was another team that came through with an expected victory over Susquehanna. Rensselaer and Union, old up-State rivals, battled to a scoreless tie.

BETTER SCHEDULE IN 1920.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 23.—Already there are reasons for believing that the schedule of the Naval Academy team for next season will be much better than it has been this year. The Army game will again be played in New York, the date being Nov. 27, and negotiations are under way to play the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia about midseason. The arrangements will be to play in alternate years, there and in Annapolis, and a similar arrangement has been broached with Princeton, that team playing in Annapolis next year.

The department has permitted one game outside of Annapolis a year, in addition to the Army game. The University of Nebraska has offered to play in Annapolis on Nov. 13 and the local management has wired it that the game will be agreeable if terms can be reached as to guarantee. Georgetown has also written in regard to a game, and Center College, Kentucky, has been suggested as another opponent of the Midshipmen.

Comment on Current Events in Sports.

When Soldier Meets Sailor.

The Army and Navy elevens, which will meet next Saturday at the Polo Grounds in the final and most picturesque battle of the 1919 gridiron campaign, will carry into this engagement an uncertainty that has not prevailed in any of their contests of recent years, if at all. The exigencies of a world war took out about all the veteran football stars from both West Point and Annapolis, making it necessary to build up teams of players for the most part unknown in the world of football.

The condition which the coaches found was an absence of veterans, rather than a lack of football material. West Point and Annapolis always have a surfeit of material for anything requiring physical fitness and brains. Coaches Daly and Dobie set to work on the green talent, and that they have developed it into truly representative teams may be gathered from some of the achievements in the season now drawing to a close. The Navy team ran up the highest total of the year, 121 points, against Colby a week ago. Reaching such a figure is something of a task against any college team. The Army eleven, in holding the strong Syracuse team to one touchdown, holding Notre Dame almost even, and winning all other contests gave evidence of a team above normal strength.

Never has it been so difficult to get a line on the relative strength of the two elevens. Made up of new material and meeting no common opponent, each has gone its way for the most part successful, but giving no inkling on which a comparison might safely be based. There is no Oliphant on the Army side to make the cadets stand out above the midshipmen, nor is there any Dalton on the Navy side to throw the balance of power to the future admirals. In recent games between these old rivals the presence of Oliphant made the cadets pronounced favorites and his work in the big games always justified the preliminary dope. The absence of an outstanding figure on either side will add to the uncertainty in the contest and also add something to its attractiveness.

The rivalry between the cadets and midshipmen has not been dimmed one iota through the fact that since their last gridiron struggle the sons of West Point and Annapolis have been working shoulder to shoulder in a common cause. With that important work concluded the old conditions again prevail. Show a Navy team an aggregation from West Point and it will rise to the heights of its athletic power. The same holds when the wearers of the gray gaze upon a blue-clad host from the banks of the Severn. There will be one full hour of as hard fighting next Saturday at the Polo Grounds as any football crowd has gazed upon this season. The Oliphants, Merillats, Prichards, Daltons, Browns and other stars are always welcomed, yet never are necessary to make this Army-Navy affair a real battle. Only fair weather is needed to make the coming struggle a fitting finale to the most successful gridiron season in the history of the sport.

The Horse Show's Success.

That there still remains a great interest in the horse, despite the ever-increasing popularity of the automobile, was quite definitely proved last week by the unusual success of the National Horse Show at Madison Square Garden. Though the horse is no longer the important factor it once was in the problem of transportation in the large cities, and in the minds of many has passed its age of real usefulness, it is estimated that nearly 50,000 persons availed themselves of the opportunity of watching the animals on exhibition at the show.

If there are fewer horses seen today than a few years ago it is also true that those of the present time are for the most part of a vastly better quality, so far as breeding goes. There are still many men and women in this country who are aiming to improve the breed of horses to meet needs which have been well established, and the Government is exercising a strong influence in this direction. It is obvious that merely the chance to exhibit their horses would not be sufficient incentive to more than a limited few to continue an interest in the horse, any more than racing alone would be a sufficient object for those who develop thoroughbreds. American horses have proved to be among the finest in the world and horsemen have found a real demand for the best blood that can be obtained.

It was with justified pride that the Horse Show officials were able to announce this year that the number of entries, as well as the number of exhibitors, had greatly increased over last year, and it is perhaps no exaggeration to say that the quality of the horses was never better than this season at Madison Square Garden. Remarkable specimens were seen in the hackney harness classes and also in the hunter classes, and in both instances the horses were of types for general use, not mere pets.

If the success of the show this year is any criterion, there will be greater horse shows in the coming seasons, for many horsemen who were in the service have again taken up the development of their stocks of animals, while there are many newcomers in the field.

A War-Shaken League.

An odd condition affects the two major leagues as they look forward to their annual meetings, scheduled to be held within the next two weeks. The National League, which has furnished most of the fighting in past years, is in complete harmony, and the American League, long noted for the close fellowship of its club owners, is torn by a civil war. That the National will be the gainer by this state of affairs at this time of reorganization goes without saying.

The breach in the junior major league is widening daily, with nothing to indicate that a peacemaker is in sight. Relations have been strained to such an extent that it looks like a fight to the finish, a battle that will not be decided until somebody gets out of the game. It is possible that the person getting out may be one of the club owners who has not figured prominently in the fight up to this time. Rumors are heard that each side has something big in reserve to spring at the opportune time, but the nature of the coup has not been indicated, unless it is that the belligerents will buy into another American League club and add to their strength, at the same time weakening the opposition.

The statement issued by Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the Chicago White Sox, during the last week would indicate that there is no tendency to back down or to compromise on the part of the faction of which he is a member. The showdown will come on Dec. 10, the date specified by the American League constitution for the annual meeting of the organization. The Board of Directors has called a meeting for New York, and it is certain that Comiskey, Ruppert, and Frazee will be here. President Johnson has intimated that the other club owners will gather in Chicago on that date. If any business is transacted, the belligerents probably will bring another fight into the courts to determine "who is who" in the conduct of American League affairs.

The transaction of certain business at the New York meeting and an adjournment by the Chicago crowd is the prediction now being made by baseball men. They contend that the Board of Directors has the upper hand on the league, and, guided by very competent legal talent, is moving along in a way that will admit of no reversal if the question of authority should be taken into court. The fact that all three belligerents are members of the Board of Directors has been a big handicap to the Johnson faction since the beginning of the fight. These members know the extent of their power, and for that reason all the advantage to date rests with them.

A deadlock in business relations is the probable outcome of the squabble, and it would not be surprising if the American League went through the Winter without holding one of its old-time sessions with harmony as a byword. It is unfortunate for the league, since it comes at a time when so many important problems are to be settled. But the game is greater than the most important personage connected with it, and it is certain to go along and prosper despite all the bickering within.

Cannefax's Victory.

That interest in three-cushion billiards is greater than ever before was convincingly demonstrated during the national championship tournament which was concluded in Cleveland last Wednesday. The event was a pronounced success from every angle. The attendance at most of the matches was big, and the quality of play by the ten contestants was up to the high standard set in championship events in previous years. In recent seasons this style of billiard play has grown by leaps and bounds, and, evidently, it has not attained its zenith yet.

The victory of Robert L. Cannefax, formerly of St. Louis, but who now claims New York for his home, was a popular one. Cannefax previously held the title but relinquished claim to it, so that the tournament could be held. He retained his crown by meeting and defeating some of the best players in the country. He was called upon to play nine games, and succeeded in winning all but one of them. He lost his first match to Charles McCourt, and, strangely enough, it was McCourt who finished second to him in the final standing of the players.

Cannefax won by playing consistently good billiards. There was little of the sensational about his work at the table in any of his games, but he was steady, and not only was his execution as near perfection as possible, but his safety plays—one of the most important factors in three-cushion billiards—was excellent. It was his ability to leave the balls safe, giving his opponents almost impossible shots, that counted more in his favor in the balance than anything else.

He also proved that he is a great money player. Such a tournament is the true test of a money player. To emerge successful against such high-class competition a player must not only possess billiard ability to the nth degree, but he must have the proper temperament as well. Nerves count for a great deal in events of this kind. A player must have them under perfect control at all times. Throughout Cannefax showed a steady stroke. It was smooth, but possessed plenty of driving power.

In meeting Charles McCourt of Cleveland, Pierre Maupome of Milwaukee, Otto Reiselt of Chicago, Charles Otis of Brooklyn, Clarence Jackson of Detroit, Hugh Heal of Toledo, Tiff Denton of Kansas City, Byron Gillette of Buffalo, and Jess Lean of Cincinnati, Cannefax was opposed by the cream of the three-cushion talent in this country. His victory should be conclusive proof that the best man won.

During the tournament two new records were established by Tiff Denton. One is a world's record, and the other is a record for championship play. Playing against Byron Gillette, the veteran of Buffalo, Denton made 56 points in thirty innings. At the same time he made a high run of 17 points. This run was within one point of equalling the best previous run ever recorded. Pierre Maupome and Charles Morin both made runs of 18, but they were made in exhibition matches.

A Chance for Boxing.

While the boxing game is thriving more than ever before in many States of the Union, the ban still continues in the two sections of the country where the sport reached its highest marks only a few years ago. Both New York and California continue to frown on the professional game, but the fans have something to be thankful for. The anti-boxing element has not carried the crusade to the point where the amateur boxer comes under the ban.

The annual effort to have the sport legalized in this State is to be made again when the Legislature convenes early next year, and conditions indicate a better chance for success on the next attempt. When the campaign for a boxing bill was carried on during the 1919 session of the State Legislature a handicap existed in the shape of the Sunday baseball bill. It was conceded from the start that one bill would pass and the other would be allowed to die in committee. The baseball bill went through and many who voted for it refused to aid in the fight for boxing, contending that one measure was all they would support.

As far as is known, there will be no other sport measures to conflict with the boxing bill to be introduced during the coming session. An added advantage for the bill rests in the fact that the boxing game is in better standing now than it was a few months ago. The heavyweight championship battle during the year met with some early opposition but it was carried out in a way that silenced the critics. The Army, Navy and Civilian Board in a quiet way has been doing much to elevate the boxing game, and now, with a recognized national body with which to entrust the sport, there can be no serious objections to boxing in this or any other State.

Adjoining States continue to allow boxing, and the sport is conducted in a manner that gives no cause for complaint. The game is flourishing in New Jersey, and in certain sections of Pennsylvania and Connecticut boxing is carried on under the supervision of local authorities. There was much reason for criticism when the boxing law was last in force in New York, but the criticism concerned the officials rather than the sport itself. Under competent supervisors boxing would be even more successful now than in the days when the sport was handicapped by the incompetents who were commissioned to direct it along safe and sane lines. The organization of the International Sporting Club, bringing to realization a dream of many years, will add further tone to boxing, and the influence which this club can command should go far toward making successful the coming campaign for legalized boxing in this State.

Tennis and Insignia.

The proposition to make lawn tennis a major collegiate sport is by no means dead yet, although the adverse decision of the Harvard student council was a severe blow to its prospects. That the attitude of these mentors does not necessarily reflect that of the student body as a whole may be gathered from a letter recently received from a Harvard undergraduate of the class of 1921. He writes, in part, as follows: "I feel quite confident that if a petition in favor of making tennis a major sport were put before the entire student body, it would receive a majority of all the signatures obtainable in college, and I am even optimistic enough to think that this really progressive act will be performed this year. It is only a question of time before the move will be made, but what a pity that there is this delay!

"Last Summer two very fine men of athletic reputation, Dr. Gardiner of Pennsylvania and Eddie Bayers of Cornell, told me that they would gladly give up all their football and crew recollections if only they could be given in exchange a first-class proficiency in tennis. This really means a lot when you consider that Dr. Gardiner was one of Pennsylvania's most famous athletes, a football and crew man for four years, and captain, I believe, of both, and that Bayers rowed on the crew and played on the football team at Cornell. By the way, I wonder if you know that both Michigan and California Universities rate tennis as a major sport?"

Two colleges, Yale and Princeton, have since Harvard's adverse action, decided to consider tennis a major sport to the extent of giving letters to the six members of the 'Varsity team winning the championship in the proposed new league for intercollegiate team play. Harvard, Cornell and Pennsylvania are still to be heard from.

This, at least, is a start in the right direction, in the view of those who favor that change. An honor granted at first only to the winning team in a championship series may easily in time be extended to cover all the athletes worthy of representing their colleges in first-class competition on the courts. The 'Varsity letter could hardly be said to be cheapened by its connection with lawn tennis. Rather would the game itself develop an added dignity and prestige.

ROBINS ELEVEN IS VICTOR AT SOCCER

Clan MacDuff Beaten, 2 to 0, in Second Round Match of A. F. A. Cup Competition.

Contesting every inch of the way and finally yielding only under the most powerful sort of pressure, the soccer team of the Clan MacDuff Football Club succumbed to the crack team of the Robins Dry Dock Club of Brooklyn in the second round of the American Football Association's cup competition at Todd Field yesterday. The Robins won by 2 goals to 0, but failed to score in the first half, although favored by the wind.

It was twenty minutes after the restart before McGuire, traveling through from centre field, found Clan MacDuff's net for the first tally. A pass by Lonie to Shanholt, who ran twenty yards and scored, yielded the second point.

The lineup:

By blanking the Tyrconnell Celts at Astoria yesterday the Astoria Football Club notched another victory, 5 goals to 0, in the championship series of the Metropolitan Football League. The home team led at half time by 2 to 0.

Frost, with four goals, monopolized the scoring. Read added the fifth point.

Eliminating the Interborough Football Club from the annual cup tie of the United States Football Association, the Babcock & Wilcox soccer eleven of Bayonne, N. J., winning by 2 goals to 1, advanced into the third round at Olympic Field, on Upper Fifth Avenue, yesterday.

For twenty-five minutes the New Yorkers held their own, but at that stage Elliott took a pass from McAneny on the right and shot the first goal. At half time the Jerseymen led by 1 to 0. Fifteen minutes later MacKay, by fine dribbling, placed the Babs 2 up, and Johnson missed a penalty. When Smith of the visiting team fouled, Carroll of the Interboroughs utilized the opportunity and negotiated the penalty kick.

A no-score game was played between the Longfellows and Hungarian-Americans in the New York State League soccer match at the Ridgewood baseball grounds in Ridgewood yesterday.

WEST POINT LINEUP IS STILL UNCERTAIN

Herrick May Replace Vogel at Right Guard — Blaik and White Race for End Job.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, Nov. 23.—Entering the final stretch in its drive for the Navy game, the Army eleven will have some tough sledding during the next few days. Yesterday's scrimmage was followed by a rest today, and the only exercise the men got was a brisk walk in the woods under the watchful eye of Harry Tuthill, their trainer. All are in good physical trim except Blaik, who has been ill for a fortnight, and is only just now finding himself.

McQuarrie's condition is all right, but the big back lost some of his kicking effectiveness during his recent lay-off. His hefts yesterday lacked carry as well as height and this plainly worried the mentors as they anxiously watched the former Montana University football captain go through his kicking drill.

With only four more days left for real work, the soldiers are to get some extra time for football and Head Coach Daly and his assistants will utilize every moment of these precious periods in further development of the team. The Army's offensive game, particularly the air line attack, has been going so poorly of late that Daly's problem during the remaining few days is to improve the overhead work.

Then there is the uncertainty concerning right guard and right end to add to the anxiety of the moment. Vogel, although playing for the most part in the position, is being hard pressed by Herrick and Pitzer at the doubtful guard place. Close observers would not be surprised to see Vogel displayed by Herrick. The latter is an experienced player, one of the left-overs from the Army's 1917 season, weighs 215 pounds and is six feet in height. He broke a small bone in the arm in the Syracuse game early in the season and has only recently been getting in regularly during the heavy scrimmaging.

Blaik's illness gave White, an aggressive, hard working player, an opportunity which he was quick to grasp, and his fine end play during the week as well as in the Army's last contest with Villanova attracted the attention of the mentors and he has been used nearly all the week at the right flank, where the other uncertainty exists.

With these problems confronting them, the Army coaches are entering into the final preparation with renewed vigor. A host of former Army stars are here to whip the team into shape. Daly is being assisted in the touching up of the Army eleven by Graves, '05; Meacham, '17; McEwan, '17, and Jones, '18, all of whom are working with the linemen; Hoge, '14, and Merrillat, '15, who are looking after the ends; and Prichard, '15, and Gerhardt, '17, who have developed the several quarter backs and half backs.

Morse Team Wins at Soccer.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Nov. 23.—Morse Dry Dock Soccer Team defeated the Newburg Shipyard in a second round match for the American Cup at Desmond Park today, 2 to 1.

The first half was without score. Lynch of the Morse goaled one for Morse soon after starting the second half. McDonald of the Shipyard tied the score ten minutes later, and it was but a few minutes before the close of the second half that Parker made the winning goal for the Morse team.

Holy Name Five Wins Again.

The Holy Name Big Five basket ball team added one more to its unbroken string of victories yesterday afternoon at the Manhattan Casino, by defeating the Hunt's Point Big Five by a score of 40 to 26. The tally at the end of the first half was 20 to 20, but the Holy Name players came with a rush in the finale and doubled their score, while their opponents could increase their total by only six points. Driscoll did most of the scoring for the winners. This was the sixth game the Holy Name quintet had won on successive Sundays. Its game next Sunday will be with the Lyceum quintet.

COLUMBIA'S HARDEST TEST.

Blue and White to Meet Strong Brown Eleven Thursday.

Columbia has met defeat at the hands of N. Y. U. and Stevens, but that isn't all. Unless something bordering on biblical miracles transpires on Thanksgiving, the Morningsiders will receive a final walloping from Brown. The wearers of the Blue and White have four more days of a schedule that has been replete with misfortunes, reverses, turnings of the tide, and, what has been really deplorable, dissensions within the squad. All college coaches in every sport have misunderstandings and troubles with individual players, but it is rare when the difficulties get outside the walls of the university in such a manner as the Canapary incident this Fall at Columbia.

The Brown game for Turkey Day was scheduled as the one really impressive battle on the Columbia schedule. The same still holds true and South Field again will be filled to overflowing. But the local team, by its disastrous year on the gridiron, appears only as a poor second against the Providence clan which defeated Dartmouth. With the exception of this contest with Brown, and the game last season with Syracuse under the abnormal conditions of war with the S. A. T. C. teams, Columbia has not scheduled a game out of her class since resuming collegiate football in 1915 after a lapse of nine years. With only about 700 students eligible to play, the Morningside team has held steadfastly to the rule of not engaging overpowerful elevens. The Brown game was booked as a transition between the restricted football of the past five years and the unrestricted participation which Columbia will have beginning next Autumn, when fully 2,000 students will be eligible for the team. Under the five-year ruling, Columbia could not engage with the quintet of leading elevens, so Brown was scheduled as the next best.

Columbia will go against Brown Thursday burdened under heavy disadvantages. In addition to Canapary there will be absent many of the first string backs and forwards. Eccles, third choice for quarter back, will pilot the course, as it is unlikely that Quigley can be groomed. Charlie Shaw, star half back and punter, will also be missing, in all probability, as he was Saturday in the N. Y. U. game. Kleninger, the tower of strength in the centre of the line, may not be able to play more than half the game. He has been injured again and again this Fall, and on Saturday was replaced by an understudy. Columbia's left side of the line, against which both Wesleyan and N. Y. U. pounded for substantial gains, has need of a strengthening that probably will not be possible. Forsyth, the left guard, has been under the trainer's care repeatedly and on Saturday gave way to a substitute.

YALE PLAYERS TAKE BLAME.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 23.—Nearly every member of the Yale eleven, together with the 2,000 undergraduates who have been for two days in Boston, have returned here. None of the players showed injury, but players and undergraduates alike were philosophical in not laying defeat to the coaching system, but attributing it to faulty playing technique. In the face of a dozen fumbles during the game, the players shouldered blame for the loss of the game.

The election of a Captain will be held in about two weeks. Guard John Acosta is favored, although Quarter Back Herbert Kempton, and Tackle Leon Walker have support. Kempton was the freshman Captain three years ago, and Acosta the class Captain two seasons since. Nearly all the members of the present eleven will be graduated next June, although, in addition to the three named, Lay, French, and Crane will return next Fall.

Some sensational disclosures are expected regarding the sources of tickets found in speculators' hands. A large force of detectives has been working up the matter, and it was stated today that, when the origin of the purchase of the pasteboards by the speculators is announced, a university scandal may be precipitated.

ENGAGE WEFERS AS COACH.

Twenty-second Regiment Engineers Seeks Strong Athletic Team.

In line with its campaign once more to attain prominence in local amateur athletics and in furtherance of its plans for a busy indoor season, the 22d Regiment Engineers have enlisted the services of Bernie Wefers, veteran New York A. C. track and field coach. Wefers's selection as coach of the military athletes was announced yesterday by Captain Charles J. Dieges, who is attending to the details of the Twenty-second's "100 per cent. Americanism" athletic meet, which will be conducted in the uptown armory Dec. 13.

Before the war the 22d Regiment enjoyed the distinction of being one of the leading organizations in local athletics. A recruiting drive is now in progress by the regimental leaders and plenty of new blood has been attracted to the ranks, while still more is expected before the drive ends.

ILLINOIS IS FIRST AMONG 'BIG TEN'

Ohio State Finishes Second in Conference Football and Chicago Is Third.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—Premier honors in the 1919 gridiron championship of the "Big Ten" tonight are held by the players from the University of Illinois.

Triumphant over Ohio State yesterday, in a spectacular 9 to 7 game, the scrappy Illinois squad finished the season with a percentage of .857. It won six of its seven contests. Ohio earned second place, with a percentage of .750, and a count of three games won and one lost.

Purdue, Michigan, and Wisconsin fell before the Buckeyes, while Illinois emerged victorious in its games with Purdue, Iowa, Minnesota, Chicago, Michigan, and Ohio. Wisconsin was the only team to defeat the Illinois.

Chicago, although beaten by Wisconsin Saturday, finished in third place, with a percentage of .667, four games won and two lost. Wisconsin and Minnesota tied for fourth position, their percentage being .600, with three games won and two lost.

Startling upsets and the tremendous interest in the games made the season remarkable. Many of the games drew between 20,000 to 25,000 persons. The gate receipts at the game yesterday between Chicago and Wisconsin were about $40,000.

The final games marked the passing of some brilliant stars. Chick Harley, All-American half back, played in his last game with Ohio. Chicago lost six men, Captain Higgins, Graham, Hutchinson, Hinkle, McDonald, and Stegeman. Men who finished their inter-collegiate careers at Wisconsin were Captain Carpenter, Meyers, and Fladoes.

Celtics Win at Basket Ball.

The original Celtics of New York basket ball quintet defeated the Treat 'Em Roughs yesterday in their game at the Central Casino by a score of 54 to 21. A crowd of about 3,000 witnessed the game, which produced excellent teamwork on the part of the victorious quintet.

Some men have an idea that Soft Hats and Derbies are cut out of a roll of cloth and pressed into shape. They've told us so. Others think that our smart Velours are nothing more than plush!

Our hat men will tell you that our Soft Hats, Derbies and Velours all owe their origin to the hare, rabbit, beaver, nutria, muskrat and otter.

The fur from their pelts is blown onto wet copper cones which revolve with great rapidity. As a result the little hairs or fur particles become closely interlocked, thereby forming a cone-shaped piece or "body." Under the microscope it's very easy to see how the barbed shafts or scales on the fur catch and hold to each other.

Later, the hat "body" or "felt" is shrunk through continued dipping in boiling water until it's reduced to a size and thickness suitable for further shaping into the styles you see in our stores.

In the case of Velours, the "felt" is subjected to a brushing process which causes all the little surface hairs to "stand up on end."

As with everything else, it's quality which makes for satisfactory wear. Our *"Composite" Soft Hats and Derbies, our Velours, our "Stetson Specials" are all made from the very best grades of fur obtainable.

CAREY LEADS FIELD IN BRONX A. L. RACE

Mohawk Runner Shows Fine Form Over Five-Mile Route —Gowdie Is Second.

HOLL TAKES TIME PRIZE

Clubmate of Winner Covers Course in 27:40—Thirty-four Harriers Go Entire Distance.

The towering, well-knit figure of Jack Carey of the Mohawk A. C. flashed past the judges in winning position yesterday in the third of the season's handicap road race of the Bronx Athletic League, held over the Ozanam A. A. No. 6 course of about five miles in the Bronx. Carey, in receipt of a handicap of 3 minutes 30 seconds, ran in impressive form over the entire route and finished with plenty of reserve. He had a victorious margin of about fifty yards on Robert Gowdie of the Bronx Church House, and his actual time for the distance was 28 minutes 57 seconds. Gowdie, spent after a futile chase of the tall Mohawk runner in the last half of the race, finished thirteen seconds later, a convincing margin in front of William Boak, who carried the Mohawk A. C. emblem home in third position.

The race attracted the largest field of the day's road running activities in the metropolitan district. A field of thirty-seven harriers started, and all but three finished the full course. One of those who failed to complete the distance was Frank Eacobacci, St. Francis Catholic Union, who was struck a glancing blow by an automobile after running about half the distance. Eacobacci was knocked down in such a manner that his left ankle twisted under him and he had to be taken to the Ozanam A. A. clubhouse in the officials' car. At the time of the accident Eacobacci was racing along strongly in third position.

The fast time prize went to Charles A. Holl of the Mohawk A. C., who started from scratch and finished thirteenth in 27:40. Inasmuch as this is the first race over the Ozanam A. A.'s new course, Holl's mark will stand as a record for aspiring harriers. To make a successful day of it the Mohawk A. C. representatives carried off the team prize with the low winning total of 20 points.

Provide Winner and Take Team Prize in Lower Manhattan Run.

Raymond Fox, the young Paulist A. C. harrier, raced to a comparatively easy victory yesterday in the Lower Manhattan Athletic League's handicap road race over the Paulist A. C. course of about four miles. Fox showed brilliant form in capturing the premier prize, judging his pace well from start to finish of the race and biding his time, after gaining the head of the field, until a favorable opportunity presented itself for a closing effort.

Peter Trivoulidas of the Greek-American A. C. was the honor starter and earned the fast time prize. He covered the course in 21:02 and finished in seventh position in a field of seventeen harriers. The race was the best attended of the season for the Lower Manhattan A. L., three clubs nominating full teams. The Paulist A. MARYLAND SEEKS TO STOP BOWIE BETTING State's Attorney Files Application for Injunction Against Racing Association.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 23.—The legal battle concerning the right of the Southern Maryland Agricultural Association to conduct horse racing at its track near Bowie assumed a new phase yesterday when State's Attorney S. Marvin Peach of Prince Georges filed on behalf of the State and himself a bill for an injunction against the association, seeking to restrain it from permitting race betting at the Bowie track.

In discussing the situation Mr. Peach said: "I am now under injunction by order of Judge Camilliar, restraining me from arresting or in any manner from interfering with the betting now going on at the Bowie track. I have filed my injunction papers with Judge Fillmore Beall, one of the Associate Justices of the Seventh Judicial District at La Plata, Charles County. I want the injunction otherwise I would not have filed it."

Judge Beall, at his home at Beltsville, stated that he had the papers but could say nothing at this time as to what action would be taken. It is understood that interesting developments may occur tomorrow or Tuesday as the result of the request for this injunction.

BERNSTEIN LEADS HARRIERS

Captures Opening Long Island A. L. Road Race in Brooklyn.

Herman Bernstein of the Brooklyn A. A. led home a field of thirteen rival harriers yesterday in the Long Island Athletic League's first handicap road race of the season, held over the Swedish-American A. C.'s course of about five miles in Brooklyn. Bernstein, who started with a handicap of three minutes, finished the victor in 29:25, and had an advantage of about 200 yards on R. Jekel, a clubmate, who finished second. A. Fleischer of the Kings County A. A. was third. A field of eighteen harriers got away on varying handicap marks, but four of them retired before the full course was covered.

Only two clubs were represented by teams in the comparatively small field, the quintets being the Brooklyn A. A. and Kings County A. A. The Brooklyn athletes carried off the laurels with the low winning total of 25 points. J. Wiberg, Swedish-American A. C., the scratch starter, captured the fast time prize when he covered the course in 27:32.

ANDERSON REPEATS FEAT AT THE TRAPS

Again Leads New York A. C. Nimrods in Winning High Scratch Prize.

E. D. Anderson, who did such excellent shooting on Saturday, again was the high scratch gunner at the Travers Island traps of the New York Athletic Club yesterday. He won the high scratch prize with a total of 94 out of a possible 100 targets. Anderson also won a special handicap and scored a leg on the Buermeyer trophies. He was one of the few gunners to make a straight string, "killing" every bluerock in the shoot for the Byronel Cup.

The high handicap prize went to W. R. Delehanty after a shootoff. In the special shoot for the Buermeyer Cup, H. G. West and C. L. King also scored legs as well as Anderson.

The New York Athletic Club will hold a holiday shoot on Thanksgiving Day. As the afternoons grow dark so early the first "bird" will be trapped at 12:30 o'clock.

FOUNDED 1856

PRONOUNCED trading activity in Men's Winter clothes is making heavy inroads into available supplies—and that condition is responsible for the action of many clothiers rushing their tailoring production beyond the limit of safety.

In these strenuous times we are reminded of the philosophy of Benjamin Franklin "Make haste slowly."

We are as exacting as ever in our tailoring—no exemptions from our established standard—no injurious forced speed—every garment for men and boys dependably tailored, insuring permanency of shape and continued clothes-satisfaction.

FINANCIAL SITUATION

Check on Stock Speculation Is Emphasized and Credit Position Improves.

The record of last week's stock market contained a period of additional drastic liquidation of speculative accounts followed by irregular and uncertain price movements under a dwindling volume of business. The Street had the opportunity of discussing its favorite theory that many stocks had passed from weak to strong hands, which usually presupposes the idea that conditions are again right for another advance. On the present occasion, however, little was heard about the resumption of speculative operations for the rise. The renewal rate for demand loans declined from 14 to 8 per cent., with loans made at 6 per cent. on the last lending day, but as the interest cost for carrying stocks receded prices also fell back. In the occasional rallies during the week even the hardiest traders were not wont to credit the movements to anything but short covering. Speculative fervor was considerably below par. It looked as though the lesson which Federal Reserve Bank officials and local bankers sought to teach had been learned. The comment of brokerage offices showed a belief that credit for the market, though inclined to grow easy, would quickly stiffen if stocks began to move forward with speed. The psychology of the market place was quite different from what it was a fortnight ago. In respect to tangible and practical results the week developed material of considerable importance. Through the continued lightening of margined stock holdings during the first three days the bank loan account was reduced, member banks made progress in paying off their obligations at the Federal Reserve Bank. The supply of credit was also increased by the melting of "frozen credit," entailed in merchandise consignments for overseas which began to move out in larger quantity than before as shipping conditions improved. Altogether, the situation reflected with considerable emphasis the effort of the banks to strengthen their position and also the conjunction with this effort of the fortunate release of much locked-up credit. Looking backward, the danger point seems to have been passed two weeks since when the Federal Reserve Bank reported a ratio of no more than 40¼ per cent. cash reserve to liabilities. Overzealous speculators have been chastened, and they have discovered, furthermore, that when the banks decide to check a runaway market they get action quickly. So it was not surprising that the Street discussed, as the week ended, the probability of a "trading market" for the remainder of the year.

The rejection of the Peace Treaty and League of Nations by the Senate had no important reaction in the financial markets, perhaps because of the possibility that the pact would be revamped and accepted at the session beginning next month. Stocks and foreign exchange quotations broke rather sharply for an hour on the morning after the vote was taken, but immediately rallied with fair vigor. In attempting to judge the effect of the rejection a difficulty arose in the decidedly mixed opinion of the event as expressed by bankers and business men. The line of cleavage was evidently not established by politics, but by varied conceptions of what the treaty, if accepted either with reservations or without, would have upon the country's business and finance.

Sterling exchange declined 9 cents to the pound during the first half of the week, later recovering more than 5 cents of the loss. The fact that the quotation broke downward through the $4 point would have been more of a historic event than it was if the slump and recovery had contained any promise that new low records would not occur later on. Quite likely, the persistent pressure against the exchanges which carried them downward day after day until Thursday was the product of short sales in part. But the factor of greater significance was the steady offering of genuine bills drawn against outflowing merchandise in a larger volume than the market could absorb. There are too many indications that this will continue to permit of the hope that sterling, franc, lire, and mark exchange turned the corner last week. In the light of current banking sentiment, which in some quarters is almost one of indifference toward foreign credits, it seems as though the purchases of allied countries will be paid for mainly by remittances for some time to come. Bankers interested in the sale of foreign securities here lay more stress than they did six months ago on the statement that a comprehensive program for reaching the public's capital can be carried out only through Government support. This is not forthcoming. Congress adjourned, leaving the Edge bill, which provided a medium for foreign investments, hanging in the air, so to speak.

Despite the enormous discount against the leading foreign exchanges, the records continue to prove our exports in an unusually flourishing condition. The October outward movement of goods, amounting in value to $652,000,000, was $149,000,000 larger than in the same month last year, when war material and supplies were going abroad in quantity, and exceeded September of this year by nearly $60,000,000. The export balance for the month was $236,000,000, compared with $157,800,000 in September and $256,300,000 in October last year. A large proportion of the export movement is going to countries whose exchanges are not so far below parity as those of European countries—some are in favor of the buyers—but the exhibit shows that the demand from all quarters is so great that exchange conditions are not yet acting as an important barrier to purchases. Exports of cotton in the last two weeks were greater than for a long time past.

We call your attention to a letter from Mr. E. E. Allyne, President of the Company, which is summarized as follows, and a copy of which may be had upon request:

Aluminum Manufactures, Inc., is to be organized under the laws of the State of Delaware, to acquire and extend the plants and business of The Aluminum Castings Company, an Ohio corporation, and to engage in the manufacture of other products of aluminum.

The Aluminum Castings Company is by far the largest producer in this country of aluminum castings. Production will be substantially increased by the operation of two new plants which it is planned to construct with a portion of the proceeds from the sale of preferred and common stock and from two plants which were put into operation in July last.

During the four calendar years ended December 31, 1918, the net profits of The Aluminum Castings Company, after payment of taxes, averaged over five times the dividend requirements on the proposed issue of $5,000,000 7% Cumulative Preferred Stock. The readjustment of operations from a war to a peace basis, which naturally resulted in an unfavorable showing during the first nine months of the year 1919, is now practically completed and, as a result of the increased demand for all aluminum products and the operation of the new plants, it is estimated that the net profits of Aluminum Manufactures, Inc., should substantially exceed the average net profits of The Aluminum Castings Company during the past four calendar years.

The 7% Cumulative Preferred Stock will be preferred as to assets and dividends and the Company will agree to purchase and retire or redeem and retire on or before July 1st in each year, beginning 1922, 2,000 shares of the then outstanding preferred stock of this issue.

Without the consent of 75% of the outstanding 7% Cumulative Preferred Stock, no mortgage (except purchase money mortgages on after acquired property) shall be placed upon the property of the Company, nor shall any capital stock preferred as to dividends or assets over said outstanding 7% Cumulative Preferred Stock, or on a parity therewith, be issued.

The charter of the Company will provide that no distribution shall be made on the common stock of the Company which will reduce its net assets (excluding patents, trademarks and goodwill) below twice the par value of the preferred stock of this issue then outstanding.

Subject to approval of counsel and when, as and if issued and received by us

100 and accrued dividend, yielding 7%

It is expected that temporary stock certificates will be ready for delivery on or about November 25th.

Automobiles Per Capita

Bearing indirectly on the per capita consumption of gasoline—the product of petroleum now of such growing importance—the figures for per capita ownership of automobiles are of interest. Iowa still leads with a car for every 6.95 persons. Nebraska is "runner up" with one car for 7.01 persons. Then follow among the leaders:

State	Population per car
South Dakota	7.55
California	7.82
Montana	8.84
Kansas	9.09
Wyoming	9.61
North Dakota	10.09
Minnesota	10.21
Michigan	10.90
Arizona	10.91
Ohio	10.98
Indiana	11.19
Wisconsin	11.36
Colorado	11.43

The tail-end position goes to Mississippi with one car to 47.89 persons.

PAY INCREASES FAIL, PLUMB TELLS LABOR

Not Getting Results, He Asserts At Labor Meeting in Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—Statements by Glenn E. Plumb that the trade-union movement for wage increases is wrong in principle and not getting results, and that some day labor may be paying for the privilege of working, startled delegates today to the Chicago convention called to form a national labor party.

Mr. Pumb, who is the attorney for fourteen railroad brotherhoods, made a plea for his "Plumb plan" for Government control of the railroads.

"After a ten-year fight by 124 labor organizations to increase wages, they found that the cost of living went up more," he said. "They are about 50 points behind now, and if they keep on they may be paying for the privilege of working.

"The shoe workers started it with a 25 per cent. increase in wages. The manufacturers just added 25 per cent. and more to the cost of shoes. The garment workers followed.

"With the present freight rates, an average family is paying about $200 freight each year, in a large number of cases for freight hauling that never was done. The consumers pay the freight and more in profits, but they don't know they are paying the freight."

The two sessions of the convention were taken up by speakers who discussed means to enable the workers "to get their rights."

Later in the week the platform of the party will be adopted.

"The Coal Strike and Government by Injunction" was discussed tonight by Sidney Hillman, Duncan McDonald, and John H. Walker, labor leaders.

Red Mogen David Meeting.

Members and friends of the Red Mogen David, the Jewish organization somewhat similar in purpose and aim to the American Red Cross, will meet tomorrow night at Carnegie Hall to lay before the Jews of New York the plight of their brethren in Eastern Europe and in Palestine. The goal will be the collection of a $50,000 thanksgiving offering for ameliorating the condition of the Jews abroad.

$1,500,000 due Sept. 1, 1922

Callable at 101 and accrued interest at any interest paying period on and after one year from date on 60 days' notice. Notes may be registered as to principal.

From letter of E. Constantin, President of the Company, and other official information furnished us, we summarize as follows:

BUSINESS: Established in Tulsa in 1912 by E. Constantin, with only a nominal capital from which there has been earned its present surplus of over $5,000,000. The Company now owns and operates two large modern refineries: No. 1 at Tulsa, having a daily capacity of 6,000 bbls., and No. 2 at Devol, Okla., with present capacity of 3,500 bbls., which will be enlarged to 7,000 bbls. by January 1st, making a total capacity of approximately 13,000 bbls. per day. The Company does a large and profitable business in refining crude oil and marketing its products in this and foreign countries. Its business is well established and constantly increasing. It owns valuable oil properties in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, which with its other contracts insures the Company an adequate supply of crude oil for refining at all times. It owns its own pipe lines connecting the various oil fields, from which it receives its main supply of crude, with its refineries. It owns 668 modern steel tank cars and has recently contracted for 600 additional for delivery within four months. It owns and controls its own gasoline and filling stations, and together with the Indiahoma owns two-thirds of the Export Oil Corporation through which it handles its foreign trade. The Constantin Company is, therefore, in the strong position of controlling the manufacture and distribution of its products direct from oil wells to the ultimate consuming market, both domestic and foreign.

MANAGEMENT: The Company has always had an exceptionally able and efficient management, as is demonstrated by its large net earnings and its high standing in the trade. No change is contemplated in the ownership, management and policy of this Company. Its officers are men of integrity and experience: President Constantin, the founder of the business, is also President of the Export Oil Co., and Vice-President Malloy is President of the Western Petroleum Refiners' Association, which includes the Sinclair, Cosden and other leading independent refining companies.

PURPOSE: The proceeds of these notes are being used to pay indebtedness incurred in the construction of the new refinery at Devol and to double its present capacity; to extend its pipe lines and increase its tank storage capacity and to very largely increase its working capital.

SECURITY: The present note issue constitutes the only funded debt of the Company and is secured by a FIRST MORTGAGE under which is pledged all of its property, real, personal and mixed, now owned or hereafter acquired. The present value of its assets is nearly $10,000,000, or over three times the present note issue, and its quick assets, including $1,791,950 cash in bank and $575,000 of U. S. Liberty Bonds, are nearly two times the present note issue.

SINKING FUND: The Trust Deed, securing the present note issue, provides for a monthly sinking fund of one-sixth of the next maturing installment of interest and one-twelfth of the next maturing installment of principal of these notes.

EARNINGS: Net earnings for the three years, 1916, 1917 and 1918, after payment of Federal Income Taxes and after liberal deduction for depreciation showed a yearly average of $709,502.99, or over three times the annual interest charge on this issue of notes. These earnings were from the Tulsa Refinery alone, the Devol Refinery only starting to operate about May 1st, 1919. The net earnings for the year 1919 (three months being estimated) will be $1,500,000, and for the coming year, with two refineries and its largely increased working capital, the net earnings are conservatively estimated at $2,500,000, after liberal deductions for depreciation but before payment of Federal Income Taxes, being a yearly average for 1919 and 1920 of nearly ten times interest charges on this issue.

All legal matters pertaining to this issue have been taken under direction of Messrs. Davies, Auerbach & Cornell, Attorneys, of New York, and Messrs. Breckenridge, Bostick & Daniel, of Tulsa; an appraisal of the refineries, pipe lines, tank cars and other fixed assets has just been made by the Keystone Appraisal Co. of Philadelphia.

We recommend these notes as a safe and desirable investment.

The Wages of Money

MONEY, like labor, earns the most where it is most useful. Nor does it follow that a large yield entails sacrifice of safety.

Keen students of investments are becoming more and more interested in the Preferred Stock issues of our great national industrial institutions, not only because of their generous earnings but more particularly because such stocks are inherently sound.

"National Industrials" are organizations which, because of their great size and importance, have cast off the limitations and dangers of one man control, narrow markets and restricted financing.

National Industrials are managed scientifically. Their markets are fortified by national good will. To a large extent they obtain raw material at its source. Their finances are as ably and scrupulously ordered as those of a bank. The strength of such Industrials is the strength of the Nation.

Dominick and Dominick offer their services to aid in the selection of Industrial Preferred Stocks which represent in many cases first claim on the respective companies, which are protected by every method employed in modern finance, which are exempt from normal Federal income tax and which yield a return in harmony with the pressing demands now imposed on fixed incomes.

A book which discusses this interesting form of investment will be mailed to those who desire it.

TREASURY TO ISSUE MORE CERTIFICATES

Secretary Glass Announces Decrease of $385,000,000 in Public Debt.

IS NOW $26,210,905,795

Two New 4¼ Per Cent. Issues to Run Only Two and a Half Months from Dec. 1.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Secretary Glass tonight announced that the Treasury Department had decided, after a lapse of several months, upon a resumption of the issuing of certificates of indebtedness at 4¼ per cent., and that a letter would be sent to the Presidents of all banks and trust companies under tomorrow's date, appealing to them to subscribe liberally to the new issues.

In his letter to the bankers, a copy of which was made public tonight, Secretary Glass points out that there has been a substantial reduction in the public debt and that great progress is being made in the absorption of Government war securities by investors. This is the first time since Sept. 8 that Secretary Glass has made an appeal to the bankers to subscribe for certificates of indebtedness. Then he gave assurance that no semi-monthly issues of certificates would be made before Oct. 15.

Secretary Glass points out that since the early part of September the position of the Treasury has become much more favorable than he, at that time, was able to hope for. There has been a reduction in current expenditures and a net decrease of $385,000,000 in the national debt from the high-water mark of $26,596,701,648.01, which was reached at the end of August.

The two new issues of certificates will have only two and a half months to run, instead of five, as heretofore. The first will be one of 4¼ per cent. Treasury certificates, series D, 1920, dated and bearing interest from Dec. 1, 1919, and due Feb. 16, 1920. The second will also be of 4¼ per cent., series TM3, 1920, dated and bearing interest from Dec. 1, 1919, but will not be due until March 15, 1920.

In his letter to the banking institutions the Secretary says:

"In my letter of Sept. 8, I stated that, while it could not be said definitely when semi-monthly issues of loan certificates would be resumed, such issues would certainly not be resumed before Oct. 15. Though most factors in the general situation since that letter was written have been adverse, the position of the Treasury has developed more favorably than then there seemed any reason to hope. The great success of the issue of the tax certificates then announced, the reduction in current expenditures, and the increase of receipts, notably from sales of war materials and supplies, have made it possible to avoid until now the resumption of the issue of certificates.

"On the basis of Treasury daily statements, in the month of October the net current deficit (excess of disbursements over receipts, exclusive of transactions in the principal of the public debt) was $319,239,450.35, the lowest figure for any month since April, 1917, excluding the months in which income and profits taxes were payable, and for the first half of the month of November the net current deficit was $118,630,787.30, indicating the likelihood of a further important reduction for that month.

"On the basis of Treasury daily statements, the total gross debt, which June 30, 1919, amounted to $25,481,506,160.05, and Aug. 31, 1919, had reached the peak at $26,596,701,648.01, had been reduced by Sept. 30 by more than $400,000,000, and, notwithstanding the increase resulting from the Victory Loan installment payments in October and November, when the final payment was made, stood on Nov. 15 at $26,210,905,795, a net reduction of about $385,000,000 from the high mark at the end of August, and a net increase since June 30 of only $726,399,634.95, although in that period only one quarterly income and profits tax installment had been received.

"The total amount of loan certificates outstanding and unmatured, which on June 30 was $2,478,317,500 and on Aug. 31 $2,012,587,500, was reduced in September to $1,634,671,500, at which figure it stands, while the total amount of tax certificates outstanding and unmatured, which on June 30 was $789,561,000 and on Aug. 31 was $1,925,837,500, was reduced in September to $1,827,386,500, at which figure it stands. Of the latter, certificates to the amount of $746,869,500 mature Dec. 15, 1919, and are amply provided for by the income and profits tax installment payable on that date.

"Very gratifying progress has been made in the absorption by investors of Government securities. During the period of five months from June 6 (when holdings of Victory notes were first reported separately) to Nov. 7 (the last date for which reports are available), all reporting member banks (about 783 member banks in leading cities, which are believed to control 40 per cent. of the commercial bank deposits of the country,) have, according to Federal Reserve Board reports, reduced their holdings of Liberty bonds from	$846,273,000

or	$212,323,000
of Victory notes from	438,589,000
to	292,410,000
or	$146,179,000
of United States certificates of indebtedness:
to	847,558,000

making a total reduction in all reporting member banks' holdings of United States war securities of $1,025,406,000.

"Loans by all reporting member banks, secured by United States war securities, after deducting those rediscounted with Federal Reserve Banks, are reported as reduced in the same period by $221,450,000 (from $1,420,581,000 to $1,199,131,000), this reduction being partly offset, however, by increased rediscounts of such paper with Federal Reserve Banks.

"The long intermission in the issue of certificates of all kinds makes it possible, upon resuming, to issue loan certificates, bearing 4¼ per cent. interest and having only two and one-half months to run, instead of five months, as heretofore, while fixing the maturity one-half month later than that of the last issue of loan certificates. Along with the issue of these loan certificates it has been thought wise, in order to make it possible and convenient for taxpayers, to prepare further for the large tax payments which fall due on March 15, 1920, to offer an issue of 4¼ per cent. tax certificates of that maturity."

Open Drive for Memorial Hospital.

Approximately 2,500 volunteers have been organized for the campaign to raise $500,000 for the Jewish Memorial Hospital Building Fund, it was announced yesterday. The campaign, which is to raise the money to go toward the erection of a memorial hospital for soldiers who died in the war, will begin on Wednesday with a mass meeting in the Great Hall of City College. The campaign is to last until Dec. 13.

HISTORY AND BUSINESS

The Brown Company, founded in 1852, is the largest manufacturer in this country of bleached sulphite fibre pulp and kraft wrapping paper, and it also manufactures bond paper, lumber and allied products. Sales in recent years have averaged more than $23,000,000 annually. Its operations in Canada are conducted through a subsidiary, the Brown Corporation, of Canada, of which the Brown Company owns all the capital stock.

PROPERTY

The mill properties at Berlin and Gorham, N. H., consist of two paper mills, two sulphite fibre mills, a saw-mill and five hydro-electric plants with an installed capacity of 25,000 H. P. and a steam power plant with a capacity of 20,000 H. P.

The Canadian plant consists of a pulp mill and water-power for manufacturing sulphate fibre, which product is shipped free of duty to the American plants.

A practically perpetual supply of raw material is assured by ownership in fee simple of more than 400,000 acres of timber land in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, and the acquisition in Canada through the Brown Corporation of more than 800,000 acres in fee simple and stumpage and about 1,700,000 acres in timber limits under perpetual license. Total holdings are over 4,530 square miles, conservatively estimated to contain 15,000,000 cords.

ASSETS

ay & Zimmermann, Engineers, Report to Morgan Committee on Interborough Affairs.

0,000,000 BEHIND BY 1924

erating Ratio of Income Has Jumped $10,000,000 in the Last Three Years.

he report and analysis of the Inter- rough Rapid Transit Company which engineering firm of Day & Zimmer- nn, Inc., has been making for the mmittee for the Interborough Rapid ansit Company first and refunding rtgage 5 per cent. bonds and the ree-year secured convertible 7 per nt. notes have been completed, and the cretary of the committee, William ving, sent out copies of the report to bondholders Saturday.

P. Morgan is Chairman of the com- ttee. The engineering firm was en- ed in February to make the examina- n. It completed its efforts in June, ore the award of the 25 per cent. g increase to Interborough employes. e engineers then revised the report to orporate in the analysis the effect the increased wages.

he committee, in its letter to holders bonds and notes, said that "although s impossible for the committee to pre- t with certainty the future trend of rating costs or the position the city l finally take with regard to in- ased fares, it is of the opinion that estments in both bonds and notes l ultimately be protected, and, there- e, recommend that the holders re- n from sacrificing such securities."

Upkeep of Property Maintained.

e report has been summarized as ows:

The corporate history of the Inter- ugh is unusually free from those plexities which have resulted from umstances incident to the growth of t transportation properties serving e communities. All the subways in ation have been constructed new e 1900, and the disbursement of the ceeds from the sale of the 5 per cent. ds and 7 per cent. notes (approxi- ely $200,000,000), and the investment he city (approximately $159,000,000), at all times been subject to the ervision of public authorities and is atter of public record.

The report shows the physical prop- is in good condition throughout, well maintained in spite of the diffi- es which the management has en- tered through and subsequent to the , and that the results of its opera- s with an unparalleled record of ty could not have been achieved but the highly efficient organization ch the company has created and ntained throughout the period of its ities.

The operating ratio increased from er cent. in 1916 to 67.9 per cent. in equivalent to approximately $10,- 00. Of this amount $6,000,000 is ac- ted for directly by the increase in s and $3,000,000 by the increased of coal and other supplies. These res do not include the increase in es of Aug. 17, 1919, equivalent to oximately $5,000,000 annually.

he report shows that if 1916 unit had remained in effect, the In- rough Company would have passed essfully through the remaining d of construction as estimated the contract with the Gaynor ad- stration was negotiated.

During the year ended June 30, 1918, company was experiencing the in- ing costs generally prevailing ow- to conditions growing out of the but it was not until the following that these increases became seri- In the early part of the fiscal year a wage increase (separate from prior to the 25 per cent. increase in August, 1919), was granted unting to approximately $3,000,000 ally.

he effect of this increase, together increased costs of materials and ies, notwithstanding the fact that earnings for the year ended June 919, increased $2,700,000 over the 1918, resulted in a decrease in net ngs, after the payment of operating ses and taxes, from $18,219,000 to 7,000, a loss of nearly $4,000,000.

lso, during this year the interest sinking fund on the 5 per cent. and 7 per cent. notes chargeable to e amounted to $9,215,000, an in- e of almost $4,500,000, the result of pening of the Seventh Avenue and gton Avenue subways and other sions. The deficit in this year, of ,000, was the direct result of the ding conditions.

e report includes estimates for the up to and through the year end- ne 30, 1924, all of which estimates ased on the continuance of the fare and present costs of ma- s and supplies. The report indi- that even with the 5-cent fare, ed unit operating costs prior to st wage increase had remained the through the next five years, the ny could have earned in the year s fixed charges for that year, ex- g, however, any return on the 00,000 invested by the city under act 3.

e wage increase of Aug. 17, 1919, hanged the situation completely. ncrease adds approximately $5,000,- nually to the operating expenses. gh the five-year period ending 30, 1924, it is estimated that the ulated deficit, as the result of nditions mentioned above, would t to about $40,000,000.

e report shows that on Dec. 31 of ar the cash position of the com- will be such that approximately 000 will have to be provided from ource other than operating income e company may meet the rentals xed charges payable Jan. 1. For cal year ending June 30, 1920, it is ted, based on present prices of materials and supplies, and the uance of the 5-cent fare, that the ny will fall short of meeting its charges (including rentals) by ap- ately $8,800,000.

must be borne in mind in con- with the foregoing estimates that unprecedented costs have been he basis of estimates, and while possible to forecast the future it ous that any decrease in operating es would be reflected directly in ivalent increase in the sum avail- r interest and sinking fund on the ding 5 per cent. bonds and 7 per otes."

Advertising is an Investment

Planning The Advertising Campaign

Some advertisers first select the media, then they decide upon the space a given amount of money will buy, after which they create a message to fit the space.

Sometimes they put a page message in a two-inch space, or a two-inch message in a page space. This method is much like making the foot fit the shoe.

Federal believes an advertising campaign begins with the product, its character, quality, price, the possible market and how to command it. Next in order is the creation of an interrupting idea that will attract attention and a message that will create desire.

With these fundamentals rightly determined, the buying of space must be figured as an investment and the media selected with an exact knowledge of their circulation and power in the market to be secured.

"Put it up to men who know your market."

STEEL STRIKERS FLOCK BACK TO WORK

Even the Wheeling District, Where Union Was Strongest, Is Resuming Operations.

SHORTAGE OF MEN FEARED

Many Have Left to Take Up Work in Other Industries—Market Is Active.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 22.—The iron and steel strike, which waned gradually in its early weeks, is now crumbling rapidly, and has almost disappeared from the reckoning, its after effects being regarded now as by far the more important factor in the market and in the trade generally. So many men have shifted employment that working forces need to be realigned, and when there are no strikers left there will still be a labor shortage. A few steel producers, however, believe that the wages paid are so high that sufficient men will be attracted from other lines of employment to man the mills fully. This is not the general opinion in the trade, however.

One of the most important items in the crumbling of the strike is the break that has occurred in the last week in the Wheeling district, long marked as being the one to hold out on strike the longest. At the La Belle Iron Works the major part of the men have returned to work. The Mingo works of the Carnegie Steel Company has begun operating on a limited scale, and several other plants seem to be in process of resumption. At the Laughlin plant, Martins Ferry, Ohio, nearly all the idle men were ready to go back to work this week, but the plant could not be started as it had no stock of coal. Another important break this week was at the great Cambria Steel Company's works at Johnstown, Pa., which had been tightly closed for weeks. More than half the full complement of men is at work, and at least four blast furnaces are in operation.

The Mahoning Valley and Cleveland districts are increasing operations at a more rapid rate than in previous weeks. The Chicago and Gary district is now operating at nearly normal.

Production of steel is now at between 80 and 85 per cent. of the rate just before the strike, but this does not mean that there is anything like a supply of steel equal to demands. Even though the time of the year is unfavorable, the current requirements seem to be greater than the requirements just before the strike, while a large expansion in demand is to be expected in late Winter or early Spring. All the regular consuming industries seem desirous of increasing their operations, while there is increased call for steel for building purposes. Fabricating shops already well filled with work are being solicited to take on additional jobs, premiums being offered to induce them to set aside work already in progress.

The volume of railroad demand is not estimated, but it is certain that the railroads will soon begin to buy in at least a limited manner, as it is established that the roads will be returned to their owners on Jan. 1, the Government guarantee of earnings being probably extended for a few months pending the final settlement of the whole railroad question by Congress.

Stock Running Low.

The search for steel for early deliveries is greater than that of a few weeks ago, despite the increase that has occurred in production, the change being due doubtless to stocks of steel running low in warehouses of jobbers and manufacturing consumers. Delivery premiums are now common, and are the rule in several cases. There will be no general advance in basic prices, however, owing to the attitude of the United States Steel Corporation and leading independents, that the March 21 schedule of prices should be maintained without alteration. The Steel Corporation has been making all its sales at not above the March 21 prices, and for weeks past all its sales have been for 1920 delivery, as the various subsidiaries were already sold up through the current year.

The last subsidiary to enter the market for 1920 deliveries is the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, which has opened its books for sheets and tin plates at March 21 prices. The prices are those long in force, tin plates being at $7 a base box, 100 pounds, and 28 gauge black sheets, tin and sheet mill sizes, $4.35 a hundred pounds. If demand exceeds supply, as is altogether probable, the action of the large interests in selling at old prices will not prevent advances in the market for prompt deliveries, such as the smaller mills may be able to make.

It has just been learned that the Lake Superior iron ore producers have no thought of advancing ore prices for the season of 1920, and the actual prices, at Lake Erie dock, will be a trifle lower if the expected reduction occurs in rail freights to upper lake ports. Connellsville coke, on the other hand, promises to be much higher for 1920 than it has been for the present half year, possibly $6 or more for furnace grades at ovens.

The iron and steel scrap market has become distinctly active, this being due largely to the iron and steel strike nearing its end so rapidly. Of consumers who are usually in the market for scrap, there are now very few that are not willing to make purchases. The main difficulty in buyer and seller getting together is the higher prices being asked and the fact that consumers want to make contracts apply to a later delivery period than dealers desire. The latter think it is quite possible that there will be continued advances in the market, and do not want to be involved in contracts running to April 1 or later dates, when they could not cover themselves at present for more than a very small part of the tonnage involved. With a little more advance in the market, however, shell steel and other scrap bought from the Government will begin to play an important part again.

There have been sales of heavy melting steel scrap at $22.50, delivered in this district, and at $23 delivered nearby, with no prospect that additional sales could be made at lower prices, if at as low. Hydraulic compressed has not had much movement, but bundled sheet has moved up $1 a ton, partly in sympathy with heavy melting steel and partly as a reflection of light production. The number of sheet mills in operation is increasing right along, and the proportion is a very fair one, but tonnage outputs, and consequently the production of scrap, are not good as yet.

Strike Affects Tubular Goods.

The strike affected the production of tubular goods more than it did the production of steel in general, and production since the beginning of the trouble has averaged less than 50 per cent. of the rate just before the calling out of the men. On standard steel pipe some premiums are being charged, but this is chiefly in a retail way. It does not appear that any large producer has a regular price schedule above the March 21 basis, and certainly no new discount lists have been issued on steel pipe. Line pipe, which is usually bought in the open market when large quantities are involved, has been bringing sharp advances above regular prices. One good-sized line has just gone at almost 50 per cent. above regular prices, another going at 15 per cent. premium, even though the delivery arranged is about the middle of next year. The National Tube Company is adhering to regular prices, but is sold up for months to come, and can only book tonnage from regular customers, and even then in many cases the requirements are cut down. The company's books for next year have been open for several weeks.

The American Sheet and Tin Plate Company is booking contracts with regular customers for tin plate for next year, contracts with jobbers being for three months, while contracts with large manufacturing consumers, such as factories, are for six months, these being the usual contract periods. There was no formal opening of books, such as there has been heretofore, since the offering will fall short of the requirements and the tonnage is allotted to the district sales offices, which in turn will allot to customers. At the present time the export price is firm at not under $7, and it is a question whether that price could be done. The low point in the export price was $6.50.

Were it not for the coal strike, which recently closed the large plant at St. Louis, and is probably menacing some other plants elsewhere, the independents would be operating more than 70 per cent. of their mills. As it is, their percentage is above 60 per cent. The American Sheet and Tin Plate Company today is operating 72 per cent. of its mills, against 65 per cent. a week ago and 59 per cent. two weeks ago. Furthermore, it would be able to operate many if not all its mills at the Laughlin plant, Martins Ferry, Ohio, were it not for the coal strike.

Bessemer and basic grades of pig iron have experienced sharp advances in the last week. One or two conservative interests were endeavoring to hold prices down, but the effort failed, as certain consumers had to have iron, and were willing to pay prices asked by those who could furnish it. Transactions regarded as making new prices for these grades include 2,500 tons of basic at $30, Valley, and 2,000 tons of Bessemer at $31.50, both for delivery over the next few months. Foundry iron has continued to advance. Sales are not being made for any very extended deliveries, but the restriction seems to be due to the furnaces more than to the consumers, there being a market for all the iron the furnaces are willing to sell.

FORTY-SECOND ST. PLANS.

Many Projects in View for City's Chief Traffic Thoroughfare.

The Forty-second Street Property Owners and Merchants' Association has prepared an elaborate brochure containing many interesting facts of this well-known thoroughfare. A detailed history of the accomplishments of this organization in its efforts to better oFrty-second Street is also set forth. Proof that the thoroughfare is the centre of the city's activities is offered in the transportation statistics, which show that 8,901 subway and elevated trains arrive and depart from stations on this street daily. During the fiscal year ended June 30 126,206,922 tickets had been sold in Forty-second Street stations.

Seventeen hotels are located in the district. Eleven theatres, seven national banks and trust companies, and two savings abnks have Forty-second Street addresses. The thoroughfare is crossed, according to the association, by five subway, four "L," and elenv surface car lines, in addition to five bus lines.

Among the improvements for which the association is working are the removal of the "L" structure between Park and Third Avenues, the extension of present bus routes to intersect Times Square, the location of a branch Post Office on the street, the extension of the Queensboroough subway to continue under Forty-second Street and the Hudson River to New Jersey, and better lighting. The officers of the association, which was formed last May, are: President, A. E. Thorne; Vice Presidents, John McK. Bowman, Irving Bush, A. E. Erlanger, Homer Foo, Jr., Louis Stern, and Travis H. Whitney, and Secretary, Edward W. Forrest.

PEOPLE, NOT BANKS, HOLD WAR PAPER

Amount in National Banks Was Cut $409,218,326 Between March 4 and Sept. 12.

HAVE 4¾% OF FOUR ISSUES

Banks of But Few Cities Possess $1,000,000 in Liberty or Victory Bonds.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Treasury officials are much gratified over the widespread distribution of Liberty bonds, Victory notes, and other Government securities among private individuals and investors, and issued a statement tonight through John Skelton Williams, Controller of the Currency, emphasizing the fact that a small proportion only of the Liberty bond and Victory note issues are now owned by or pledged with the national banks of the country.

It was announced that the total net reduction in ownership by national banks of all Liberty bonds, Victory notes, and United States certificates of indebtedness on Sept. 12, 1919, as compared with March 4, 1919, was $409,218,326. The only cities whose national banks held as collateral for loans made, in the aggregate, as much as $1,000,000 of the United States certificates of indebtedness were New York City, $12,000,000; Boston, $5,000,000; Chicago, $2,000,000, and Philadelphia, $1,000,000.

Held $801,753,000 of Four Issues.

"Reports of all national banks just compiled," said Comptroller Williams, in his announcement tonight, "show that on Sept. 12, 1919, the total amount of Liberty bonds of all four issues owned by them on the date named had been reduced to $801,753,000, or less than 4¾ per cent. of the total amount of Liberty bonds sold. This is a net reduction of $71,070,000 since March 4, 1919.

"The reports also show that the national banks of the country Sept. 12, 1919, had less than 3¾ per cent. of their resources invested in Liberty bonds, against more than 4 1-3 per cent. March 4, 1919. ASKS AID FOR LEPERS.

Appeal Made for Bandages for Bethesda Home at Surinam.

An appeal was made yesterday by R. Dan Wolterbeck of 31 Frankfort Street for bandage material for the Bethesda Leper Home at Surinam, Dutch Guiana, where suffering has been caused by the scarcity of bandage material, absorbent cotton, and disinfectants during the war.

Old but clean linen, cotton, cheese cloth, pillow slips, and sheets are useful for bandage material. Bandages in rolls should be from one to four inches wide, fastened with stitches. Other things sought include penknives, eyeshades, soft towels, muslin, underwear, white stockings, and games, toys, and hard candies. Checks or gifts of money orders, made out to the Bethesda Leper Home, also will be received.

HELD AT ELLIS ISLAND.

Goanese Stewards of British Ship Detained on Passport Error.

The thirty-five Goanese stewards from the East Indies, who arrived five weeks ago to join the former German liner Cleveland when she was taken over at Hoboken by the Peninsular and Oriental Navigation Company and were sent to Ellis Island, are still practically prisoners at the immigration station. Captain G. F. Butler, commander of the crew, sent from England, and the Cunard Line, who are the agents for the company in the United States, have tried in vain to procure their release.

There was some technical error in their passports and the matter has been referred to the State Department at Washington. The Congressional Investigating Committee will inquire into the case today when it visits Ellis Island.

GRAVEL FAMINE NOW VIES WITH BRICK

$20 BRICK GOES ABEGGING

Dealers Succeed in Holding Prices Below Danger Point—Lath $11 a Thousand.

Further evidence of the stress upon the meagre supply of basic building materials in this market developed toward the week-end when it became known definitely that gravel bids fair to vie with common brick for leadership in the famine class this Winter.

This commodity, which is an important component of concrete work, is in an increasingly active market, especially since it became known that the common brick situation was in danger of reaching a runaway state as to price.

It seems that early in October the weather conditions operated severely against the production of gravel. At about the same time the market demand for this commodity began to become extremely acute and has become even more aggravated as the month passed. So much pressure was applied in the last few days to this commodity and upon the various producers of this material that one of the largest companies decided to reopen its largest plant and to operate it as long as it was possible to withstand weather conditions.

Stampede symptoms began to develop, exactly as in the case of common brick, and a scramble ensued to obtain options on available supply for the Winter. In view of the uncertainty regarding the towing costs next year and the fuel situation, it was not possible for producers to figure their costs with any degree of certainty and, in consequence, all quotations are withheld on deliveries after Jan. 1 of next year and no contracts are at present being entered into for deliveries beyond that date.

Sand is in fair supply, however, with prices inclined to higher marking beyond the turn of the year, especially if there is a continuation of the present pressure for supplies. Structural steel inquiry is also showing the developing movement of the building market in no unmistakable terms. Some fabricators report that they have more business on their books than they have had since before the armistice was signed. The tonnage varied, with comparatively few monumental operations.

The general run is for moderate sized commercial operations as far as this market is concerned. The Bridge Builders and Structural Society shows that during the month of October 77½ per cent. of the entire capacity of the bridge and structural shops of the country was under contract. This shows a decline of 1 per cent. from September's total, but the business being taken in November promises to set a new pinnacle.

There is now no longer any question that lime will be advanced after the first of the year. This commodity has had a remarkable record during the last five years, with reference to price movement upward. While other commodities have been advanced several hundred per cent., even within the last two years, lime shows only a 90 per cent. advance in the last five years.

The cost of bags had advanced from $18 a thousand to $36, and production costs have gone up in even greater proportion in other lines. This commodity has been kept in rather rigid lines adjacent to the standards set by the one-time effort to stabilize building material prices, but the heavier demand incidental to the bursting of the building flood-gates now impending has made an advance necessary.

The extent of this price advance, together with that probable in the case of Portland cement, will depend largely upon the freight rate increase now generally expected.

The common brick situation is in much better control as far as runaway price conditions are concerned, says the Dow Service Daily Building Reports today. The Association of Building Material Dealers succeeded in holding the present price to $18 a thousand, wholesale, dock, New York, with the usual additional charges for handling, cartage and 15 per cent., although there was brick on barge that had been sent down to this market by recalcitrant manufacturers who demanded $20 or no sale. The dealers had the support of all but three of the Hudson River manufacturers in their efforts to keep the price at the present $18 per thousand level on the wholesale market, and at times the pressure upon the dealers and manufacturers with $18 brick on hand was so great as to almost make the actual stampede complete.

Had a single sale been made at $20 the market would have plunged beyond control, and there is little doubt that the brick market today would have been heading toward $30 a thousand wholesale, with no limit beyond that save a general blighting of the building movement now fairly under way.

Eighteen Cases of Wine Stolen.

John De Leo, 18 years old, of 2,334 Hughes Avenue, the Bronx, was arraigned in the Morrisania Police Court yesterday, charged with stealing eighteen cases of wine from the cellar of Nicholas Fennelli at 2,380 Hughes Avenue. De Leo was held in $2,500 bail for a hearing tomorrow.

THE HOUSE WHERE THE WINDOWS ARE ALWAYS LIGHTED

EVERY one of us knows this house.

It stands like a landmark in every town. It is always pointed out to strangers. Every man, woman and child in the community knows the way to it.

The family who live here are not always the richest nor the oldest the town can boast; but they are the family the town is proudest of.

In times of danger, of difficulty or sudden need, the lights here are always shining.

When a panic came and the savings of hundreds of working people were threatened—it was the man in this house who went to the president of the bank and offered to stand by to the limit of his personal fortune. When an epidemic swept the town—the women in this family were foremost in giving aid. Their sons were the town's first volunteers in the Great War.

For the men and women, the sons and daughters who come from this house are born and bred to a tradition of service. Rich in integrity—steadfast to obligation—they have an influence and standing that money alone cannot buy.

The community is poor that cannot point to such houses, such families in their midst; these are the people who make the backbone of American life; who give standards, ideals, new impulses to the people among whom they live.

It is to families like these that the editorial policy of the Christian Herald is directed.

In their homes the Christian Herald is more than a magazine—it is a family institution.

Because it reaches the most vital thing in their personal life. Because it interprets, as no other magazine in America today, the religious ideals of the nation—practical Christianity, as it is influencing industry, politics, education, community and national affairs.

Because it represents the broadest, most progressive elements in the Church.

Three hundred thousand American families rely upon the Christian Herald as a guide in daily conduct, a stimulating influence upon public thought—a constructive force in every American community.
